HOOVER PROPOSES 'WAR EMERGENCY' STEPS FOR SLUMP

Launches Program to Obtain Unity of Action.

SENATE BEGINS TAX BILL FIGHT

Smoot Leads Debate on Budget-Balancing Measure.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday served notice that just as the Federal Government had used emergency tactics to win the war, he intended to use similar measures if necessary to battle the present economic situation.

The President, speaking to newspapermen, said the immediate job being undertaken in a recent series of conferences was to secure "unity of action" to restore confidence.

The Government, he asserted, will stay on the job until the budget is balanced.

The compromise measures proposed, he said, do not constitute a drain on the taxpayer but are a "temporary mobilization of timid capital."

He said he had "no taste for any such emergency powers in the Government," but would use them to overcome "unjustified fear as to the future of the United States."

By J. B. McDONNELL.

The Senate, which has been the death chamber of so much poor—or worse—legislation, yesterday began consideration of the extraordinary budget-balancing tax bill with an apparent determination to pass the measure expeditiously to assure the world the American Government is and shall remain financially sound.

Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), of Utah, the least oratorical man in the Senate, who has won his legislative spurs by other qualities than ability to talk in newspaper headlines, began debate on the bill. Senator Smoot is chairman of the finance committee which reported the bill to the Senate. The bill doesn't embody Senator Smoot's idea of a perfect tax bill any more than it does the ideas of any other member of the committee. A minority report was submitted by some Democratic members of the committee.

But even the signers of the minority report were rooting for the tall, alim, seemingly prosaic chairman, who is one of the few men in Congress who changes the course of legislation on the floor because he deals in facts and figures and assumes that a senator making an inquiry is seeking information, which he tries to give to him.

Harrison Limps to Session.

But the fate of the tax bill rests heavily on the shoulders of the reserved senator from Utah. He is in charge of the bill.

At the tail end of the session yesterday he and Senator Charles L. McNary (Republican) of Oregon, majority whip, after having held a conference in the back part of the Senate chamber with Senator James E. Watson (Republican), of Indiana, majority leader, held a conference which doesn't show in the official record with Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi. Senator Harrison is ranking minority member of the finance committee.

Statement by Hoover On Economic Measures

The President's statement on contemplated economic measures follows in full:

Our job in the Government is unity of action to do our part in an unceasing campaign to reestablish public confidence. That is fundamental to recovery.

The imperative and immediate step is to balance the budget and I am sure the Government will stay at this job until it is accomplished.

When our people recover from frozen confidence then our credit machinery will begin to function once more on a normal basis and there will be no need to exercise the emergency powers already vested in any of our governmental agencies or the further extensions we are proposing for the Reconstruction Corporation.

If by unity of action these extensions of powers are kept within the limits I have proposed they do not affect the budget. They do not constitute a drain on the taxpayer. They constitute temporary mobilization of timid capital for positive and definite purpose of speeding the recovery of business, agriculture and employment.

I have, however, no taste for any such emergency powers in the Government. But we are fighting the economic consequences of overliquidation and unjustified fear as to the future of the United States.

The battle to set our economic machine in motion in this emergency takes new forms and requires new tactics from time to time. We used such emergency powers to win the war; we can use them to fight the depression, the misery and suffering from which are equally great.

7 RAIL UNION CHIEFS UTTER DOLE THREAT

Propose 25-Year War Debts Moratorium to Relieve Unemployment.

(Associated Press.)

Declaring they would "demand a dole" unless economic conditions are improved, the leaders of seven railway labor brotherhoods yesterday urged upon President Hoover a 25-year moratorium on war debts as a relief measure.

The seven labor presidents—coming en masse to the White House—proposed that during the quarter-century suspension of payments, the war debts gradually would be canceled in proportion to the exports from the United States to the countries concerned.

The labor leaders, declaring their brotherhood members had been "driven nearly to desperation," coupled their suggestion with a stern warning.

A statement left with the Chief Executive said:

"Mr. President, we have come here to tell you that unless something is done to provide employment and relieve distress among the families of

7 WILD BARGES CAUSE CHASE IN SWOLLEN RIVER

FIREBOAT IN DANGER, HELD AGAINST SPAN

A swollen and swift Potomac yesterday afternoon snapped the steel moorings of a heavily loaded chain of seven gravel barges at its dock just east of the Key Bridge, precipitating an epic four-hour water-front battle.

Heavy tugs of the Fire Department and United States Navy were called into the struggle, the naval tug at one time being forced to leave the chase of the drifting barges to rescue the fireboat when the powerful current caught it broadside and jammed it against an abutment of the railway bridge.

T. G. Herbert, general superintendent of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co., from whose docks the barges—each loaded with 200 tons of sand gravel—broke loose, was finally rescued from one of the runaway craft after four hours of struggle.

Late last night the seven ponderous barges had finally been shunted into the flats just north of the railway bridge and tugs of the gravel company stood guard against their again getting out into the channel.

Tugboat Springs Leak.

While participating in the struggle to capture the barges and free the fireboat from the grip of the mud flats, the tugboat Walter F. Mead, owned by the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co., sprang a leak on its starboard side and Capt. Steve Self ran it aground 100 yards south of the railroad bridge.

Two feet of water had risen in the tug when Capt. Self succeeded in beaching it. Two other tugs of the same company went to its aid, the Donald McLean and the T. G. Herbert. The foundering tug was lashed to the other two. Pumps were used to bale out the water and syphons from the assisting boats were placed in the hold of the Walter F. Mead. At midnight the rise of the water had been checked.

Crowds Watch Battle.

The river tug-of-war began at 5:20 when the cables holding the barges to the gravel company wharf at the foot of Thirtieth street northwest began to tear loose. Herbert leaped on one of the barges and began shouting orders to crews of the company's tugs.

Realizing that the tugs could not

S. S. President Roosevelt, May 13.—Lou Reichers, the transoceanic flier, was rescued from the turbulent Atlantic off the southern tip of Ireland tonight by a lifeboat crew from the President Roosevelt.

The New Jersey speed flier was forced to drop his wind-buffeted monoplane into the ocean near the liner because of a cracked wing, damaged fuselage and fuel shortage. He suffered a broken nose and lacerated face in alighting.

The lookout on the bridge sighted the plane fluttering to the surface at 9:10 p. m., Greenwich mean time (4:10 p. m., Eastern standard time) and Chief Officer Harry Manning immediately prepared to take aboard the occupant of the ship despite high seas and a dangerous southwest wind.

The liner was maneuvered as near to the monoplane as possible and lifeboat No. 10, with Chief Officer Manning in command, was lowered.

The lifeboat made for the monoplane and after dangerous circling made fast long enough to lift out the

POOL MANIPULATION IS CHARGED BY GRAY

Senate Group Will Resume Quiz in "Robbery of Public" Next Week.

(Associated Press.)

Widespread manipulation of the stock market was reported yesterday to the Senate banking committee, and it immediately decided to resume the investigation of the New York Stock Exchange next week.

Its counsel, William A. Gray, submitted the results of a fortnight's investigation by himself and a corps of agents who have been going through the books of the exchange and of brokerage houses.

"He's uncovering plenty of evidence and rotten practices for robbing the public," Chairman Norbeck said after the meeting, to which reporters were not admitted.

"We've found a great many pool manipulations, a great deal of paid publicity," said Gray.

Asked if his evidence disclosed that the public was not getting a square deal, the counsel said:

"There is no question about that."

Gray said he and his staff of investigators and accountants were working on a great many cases, some of which had turned out to be "worthless leads," but that several would be ready for presentation to the committee next week. He left for New York shortly after the committee meeting to resume personal direction of the work there.

The counsel reported to the committee the difficulties he has encountered in obtaining access to some of the brokerage records. Many subpenas have been issued against brokers who refused to let the committee see their books, but Gray said they had yielded when confronted with the summonses.

Norbeck explained that they had apparently decided they would "rather give the evidence up there than come down here with the books, and so have capitulated."

African Legislator Impeached in Bribery

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, May 13 (A.P.).—For the first time in the history of the Union of South Africa a member of the House of Representatives was impeached today on a charge of bribery.

A member of the opposition filed the charge against J. H. Nunnik, asserting that he had accepted a bribe of £300 for his services in getting a diamond-cutting agreement through Parliament. Nunnik, a mining engineer, said he had received £200 for professional services rendered a year after the agreement was concluded. He denied the bribery charge and said he would welcome an investigation.

HOUSE TROLLEY BILL VOTED BY SENATORS

Merger Act Is Substituted Over Capper's Opposition in Committee.

Washington yesterday moved nearer a street car merger than in all the years consolidation has been agitated here, when the Senate District committee voted to substitute the House merger bill on the Senate calendar.

The action automatically ironed out differences between the bill which passed the House Monday, and broadly amended merger on which the Senate District committee was seeking action. One amendment was grafted requiring the merged company to accept low school children rates fixed by the Public Utilities Commission.

Substitution of the House bill was over the unalterable opposition of Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the committee, and Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin. They have filed a minority report at variance with both bills.

Senator Blaine predicted there would be no action on the merger this year anyway, in view of the large number of appropriation bills unconsidered.

All efforts to persuade Chairman Capper to yield in his stand for universal transfers and Public Utilities Commission regulation of all electric current, were unavailing. Asked by Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, if he would give in on his transfer stand if power provisions of the bill were changed to meet his wishes, the chairman replied he would not.

"I can see many benefits the companies themselves would get out of

Youth Feared Drowned As Empty Boat Is Found

Harbor police were asked last night to drag the river in search for Joseph H. Hunter, 21 years old, 2414 Fourteenth street northwest, who disappeared after leaving his home for a fishing trip Sunday. The search was requested by Sam Bucolo, the young man's brother-in-law, after an empty boat was found swirling in an eddy 300 feet below Chain Bridge.

The boat was sighted in the eddy yesterday afternoon and identified by employes of the Joseph D. Mackey boathouse at Chain Bridge, Va., as one they had rented to a young man whose description tallied with that of young Hunter. Due to the swollen condition of the river, it was up 12 feet last night, it was impossible for them to pull into the eddy and recover the boat.

CURTIS REVEALS ALLEGED NAMES OF KIDNAP GANG

Police Believe Persons He Dealt With Those Who Murdered Boy.

FURNISHED EVIDENCE OF GUILT, PAPER SAYS

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—The New York Daily News says John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., intermediary in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, today furnished New Jersey State police with the names and descriptions of the supposed abductors with whom he was dealing at the time the baby's body was found.

"After listening to these stories of Curtis and Dr. John F. Condon, two principal intermediaries in the case," the paper says, "authorities were convinced the men whom Curtis named comprised the desperate band that kidnaped and slew the baby; obtained $50,000 in the Jafsie fraud, and were attempting to snare $200,000 more through Curtis when the body was found."

The Daily News gave the following account of attempts made by Curtis and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to consummate negotiations with the men they believed to be holding the baby:

The gang, aboard a 116-foot fishing schooner of the Gloucester type with an auxiliary 275-horsepowered motor, put out from Cape May, N. J., the night of April 21. Curtis was led to believe the baby was put aboard that same night.

No Baby Aboard Boat.

The day before Curtis had visited this boat at sea off Cape May and knew there was no baby aboard at that time.

Then followed a long and fruitless attempt by Curtis, later joined by Lindbergh himself, to locate the boat and make a definite deal.

The gang had furnished Curtis with numerous "proofs" that they were the actual kidnapers and had the baby.

They gave to Curtis for delivery to Lindbergh, a photograph of a child, purporting to be the flier's namesake. They said the picture was taken by them after the kidnaping.

They showed Curtis $1,500 in bills of small denominations which they said were part of the $50,000 ransom Dr. Condon paid to a man in a Bronx cemetery April 2.

"That fifty grand was taken by a double-crosser in our crowd and we

HOOVER ORDER TO CAPTURE SLAYERS SPURS MIGHTY HUNT

Flier Identifies Infant and Witnesses Cremation; Information Given by Curtis May Provide Clew in Search.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Hopewell, N. J., May 13 (A.P.)—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has maintained a calm and composed demeanor throughout the search and finding of her kidnaped and slain son, was ordered to bed late tonight and placed under a physician's care.

The strength of the slim, young mother declined appreciably, it was learned, when at her own insistence she was told of the details of the condition of the body of her baby boy.

The change in her outward composure came after her famous husband returned from the Trenton undertaking establishment where his examination of the child satisfied him of its identification.

The colonel, although haggard and worn, followed the body of his first born to a Linden, N. J., cemetery where it was cremated.

He continued to bear up under the strain despite that friends said he had lost several pounds in weight since hearing the tragic news and was fatigued by loss of sleep.

Mighty Man Hunt Gets Under Way.

The picture of a father standing alone before the body of his slain son, a mother secluded in grief and a President calling for action inspired the mightiest law enforcement agencies of the Nation tonight to catch the murderers of baby Lindbergh.

Meantime the wide-flung man hunters were gripped with the growing belief that the criminals who stole the infant March 1 sought ransom after they had killed him.

The focal point of this school of thought was the little white coverall sleeping suit the child wore on the night of the kidnaping. This was missing when the battered body, wasted to a skeleton, was stumbled upon in a woods by a Negro truckman yesterday less than five miles from the Lindbergh home.

And—a garment purporting to be this same sleeping suit was the "token" by which Col. Lindbergh and his 72-year-old agent, Dr. John F. Condon, were brought to pay $50,000 ransom in the murky darkness of a New York City cemetery.

Curtis Gives Information.

That no possible trail to the apprehension of the criminals was being overlooked was seen in a police statement that two investigators spent the day in southern New Jersey with John Hughes Curtis going over the ground the Norfolk, Va., intermediary had covered for the past 40 days. The closest examination was given a statement from him regarding information which he obtained and which seemed so important at the time that Col. Lindbergh was with him on a boat off Cape May, N. J., when the baby's body was discovered.

In their feverish quest for clews to guide both investigators and prosecutors, the authorities also summoned Morris Rosner, mysterious undercover man, for questioning. (The New York Times says one of the points which police wished to clear up in examining Rosner was whether the contents of the original ransom note left in the baby's nursery and symbols appended thereto by the kidnapers could have been, soon after the kidnaping, in the hands of any persons save the criminals themselves and Col. Lindbergh and his immediate advisers. It was further related that Rosner receved the ransom note which he brought to New York and from which it was asserted tracings were made for the use of Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bits, two other intermediaries, who later dropped from the case.)

Police reasserted that definite means of identification of the kidnapers was provided in notes which Col. Lindbergh received subsequent to the original note.

It was pointed out in other quarters that the contents of the note were known to several persons for almost a month before Dr. Condon entered the search.

These were the salient facts scrutinized by New Jersey's crack detectives gathered at a distance from the bare Trenton morgue where the famous flier looked at his first-born for the last time.

Haggard and worn, Col. Lindbergh called upon his most intimate friend, Col. Henry Breckinridge, to drive him by motor car to Trenton.

When he entered the room where the body lay, the coroner, Walter L. Swayze, inquired:

"Col. Lindbergh, do you positively identify this baby?"

"It is positively the baby," said Col. Lindbergh after a minute inspection.

His expression was sober and he seemed weary as he came from the building and sank back into a corner of his automobile. The car, driven by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, State police head, was preceded to a crematory in Linden by a hearse bearing the little oak casket.

When the grounds had been cleared

McAdoo, Long Idol of Drys, To Turn 'Wet,' Friends Say

Former Treasury Chief, Again Political Power After Garner's California Victory, Revealed Favor to Referendum on Visit Here, Is Report.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

William G. McAdoo, long a hero of the drys, is about to become a convert to the referendum ranks, according to his friends here in Washington.

McAdoo, these friends say, made his plans known during a recent visit.

If McAdoo does advocate a referendum, he will be classified by the Antisaloon League as a "wet," the league having assigned that label to all who retreat from the status quo.

After a period of political obscurity, McAdoo has bounded back into the limelight by virtue of Speaker John N. Garner's victory in the recent California preferential primary. McAdoo was Garner's sponsor in California, and it was his big dry following in the southern part of the State that put Garner over in the race with Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith.

Garner's position on prohibition is a mystery. He voted against the eighteenth amendment, but has voted for all subsequent enforcement legislation. Now he won't say where he stands. It is widely believed at the Capitol, however, that he is a foe of prohibition.

In the California primary, McAdoo's lieutenants branded Garner as a dry, Smith as a wet, and Roosevelt as a straddler.

As a result of Garner's victory, McAdoo is now virtually Democratic boss of California, Isidore Dockweiler, the Democratic national committeeman of the State, having backed Roosevelt.

McAdoo is said to have ambitions to come to the Senate. If he is to win his party's nomination, he could hardly remain the bone dry he has

Jafsie's Dealings to Gain Return of Baby Disclosed

"Pleace Tell Mrs. Lindbergh Not to Worry," Said One Note Sent to Dr. Condon; Movements Up to Delivery of $50,000 Described.

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—The notes exchanged between Dr. John F. Condon and the supposed kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby were published by the Bronx Home News today in a copyrighted article.

It was in this newspaper that many of the "Jafsie" communications addressed to the kidnapers appeared in the form of classified advertisements.

The aymbol signaturized in the letters to Dr. Condon, according to the copyrighted story, was three circles, two overlapping each other and a third in the overlapped space. The third was in Red. There were holes in the center of each circle. These signatures corresponded to the signature on the ransom note, the newspaper said.

After Dr. Condon had conferred first with his man—presenting two safety pins of peculiar design which the man identified as safety pins used to pin the baby's blanket to the crib mattress—he received a note outlining a program which in part said:

"We will not allow ouer man to confer in a way like befor. Circumstances will note allow us to make transfare like you wish. It is impossibly for us. Why could we move the baby and face danger to take another person to plase is entirely out of question.

PRESIDENT DEMANDS FINDING OF KILLERS

Calls for Nation-Wide Hunt as Capital Is Aroused by Crime.

(Associated Press.)

A man hunt second to none in the Nation's history, a search that will not end until the murderers of little Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., have paid in kind, was ordered in vehement words yesterday by President Hoover.

"I have directed the law enforcement agencies and the several secret services of the Federal Government to make the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never-to-be-forgotten case, never to be relaxed until these criminals are implacably brought to justice," the Chief Executive said.

"The Federal Government does not have police authority in such crimes, but its agencies will be unceasingly alert to assist the New Jersey police in every possible way until this end has been accomplished."

Search Gets Under Way.

Even as the President spoke, his words were being flashed to the Nation's law enforcement officers. Attorney General Mitchell announced a few minutes later that he had relayed the orders to the men under his command.

Feeling throughout the Capital ran high.

Sympathy mixed with determination to run down the murderers echoed from the halls of Congress to the White House Cabinet room. On street corners it could be heard.

While the full power of the Federal Government has been held in leash until now for fear of hampering the search for the Lindbergh child, today the bars were down.

Senators and representatives moved to enact new antikidnaping laws.

Chairman Norris, of the Senate judiciary committee, said categorically that legislation would be hastened to place kidnaping under Federal jurisdiction. Representative Cochran, of Missouri, author of a measure to make the transportation of abducted persons across State lines a capital offense, said that action withheld for fear of hampering the search would now be taken.

President Sends Sympathy.

Messages of sympathy were directed to Col. Lindbergh and his wife from all corners of the Capital. President Hoover dispatched a message of condolence to Hopewell, expressing his personal sorrow at the tragedy. His telegram was not made public.

The kidnaping and murder were discussed at the President's meeting with his Cabinet. One after another of the Cabinet officers left the White House with expressions of sympathy for the Lindberghs.

Vice President Curtis spoke of the case as "shocking." Secretary Adams declared it "a terrible tragedy," and indicated that although the Naval Intelligence had not been included in the President's mention of Secret Services, any aid the Navy could render would be given. Secretary Hyde said he could not express strongly enough his hope that the kidnapers would be caught.

Attorney General Mitchell regretted that his men lacked direct jurisdiction, but he nodded in vehement acquiescence at the emphatic words of the President's statement.

Plans for Investigation.

The bulk of the Justice Department search will be carried on under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation. He has already conferred directly several times with officials working upon the case.

Another Federal officer, Elmer Irey, chief of the special intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, has maintained active touch with the case. He was present as "observer" on one of the aerial searching trips with Col. Lindbergh. Irey was out of the Capital yesterday.

Chairman Sumners of the House judiciary committee said he planned to call up the Cochran antikidnaping bill, held in abeyance during the Lindbergh search, on Tuesday and added: "We very probably will report out a bill."

The Texas Democrat emphatically asserted, however, that he did not think his committee would approve any measure which would put the Federal Government in the position of "initial responsibility" in abduction cases.

"Personally I am quite willing for my committee to report favorably a bill which would penalize by death the transportation of a kidnaped person from one State to another," he said, "but I want to avoid anything being done which would shift the sense of responsibility from the States to the Federal Government."

He pronounced the Lindbergh case an excellent illustration of his point.

"It can't be taken for granted that a kidnaping is an interstate transaction and the Federal constabulary be sent in," he said.

Before the House went to work yesterday, it heard a prayer by its chaplain, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, asking comfort for Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Words of Prayer.

"O thou eternal God," it went, "our words falter as the shadows of the Nation's sorrow fall and deepen.

"Yonder home today is a world shrine, at whose footstool we tarry. The night winds of sorrow murmur as tears fall and sink on the curls of gold, matted and damp.

"Merciful Father, may the parents be fed no longer with the dread of affliction; do Thou give them rest which the world can nevermore defile.

"Consider and hear us, O Lord. Ours is national humiliation as we vision the depths of this infamy.

"Arouse the public conscience that a slight atonement may be made, by smiting murderers and outlaws into the dust.

"Cleanse the arteries of our whole country, where breed and swarm the filth and crime of our national household.

"Almighty God, lift us up, let us see, lead us on; hear us for Thy mercy's sake.

"Through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

Site Where Body Lay Guarded From Curious

Hopewell, N. J., May 13 (A.P.).—A wall of cement blocks, 2 feet high, today inclosed the spot where the body of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., was found.

Three State troopers were stationed around the wall, which presumably was built to preserve any evidence that might be there and prevented sightseers from approaching too near. Other troopers beat through the tangled underbrush in the vicinity, searching for clews.

POLICE ARE PUSHING INQUIRY AT NORFOLK

Negotiators Still Are Not Convinced Dead Baby Was Lindbergh Child.

Norfolk, Va., May 13 (A.P.).—Police instead of negotiators played the leading roles here tonight in the epilogue of the Lindbergh kidnaping tragedy.

An investigation at the request of New Jersey authorities was launched by the Norfolk police only a short while after the news came that the famous child had been found dead. The assistance of the local police was requested by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, New Jersey State police head.

Charles B. Borland, director of public safety, and S. W. Ironmonger, chief of police, who have been quietly working on the case for weeks, said the investigation would not include the questioning of Norfolk intermediaries.

Intermediaries Are Silent.

Meanwhile the two intermediaries here kept a tight-lipped silence on their negotiations as they awaited the return of their associate, John Hughes Curtis, questioned today by New Jersey authorities.

Still evincing some lingering doubt that the dead baby found near Hopewell, N. J., was the kidnaped Lindbergh child, the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock said he was at a loss to account for certain facts he had learned as an intermediary. He declined emphatically to reveal these facts.

"I can not understand," he said, "why our group should have continued their part of the negotiations when it was understood that no advance payment of ransom would be made. There would have been no purpose in that if the baby were dead."

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, the third member of the trio, still refused tonight to make any comment.

Were Confident of Success.

During their negotiations the three men repeatedly stated they were convinced that they were dealing with the kidnapers.

That evidence of this was considered convincing is shown by hesitancy of the men to believe immediately the report that the child had been found dead while their various "contacts" and negotiations were taking place. One piece of evidence, it was learned, authoritatively, was a photograph of the baby.

Col. Lindbergh himself is known to have taken an active part in the Norfolk negotiations. He was reported to have made several cruises aboard the yacht Marcon, in the two weeks of repeated endeavors to make contact with what they believed to be the kidnapers' boat off the Virginia coast. On one occasion, it was learned, a boat was sighted flying the colors agreed upon as a signal, while on another of the cruises the hoped for contact was believed to have been near before the approach of a fishing vessel interrupted the maneuvers.

Maniac Is Blamed In Baby's Murder

New York Detective Official Also Sees Revenge as Possibility.

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—A theory that the kidnaper and slayer of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., was a maniac was expressed today by Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan, head of the detective division of the New York police department.

"This apparently lets the gangsters out," he said in commenting on the discovery of the child's body. "It looks like a maniac to me, although there is a possibility of some revenge work."

Sullivan's theory had the weight of 30 years' detective experience behind it. In his present official capacity he will have an important part in what even now is one of the greatest manhunts in history.

He said he believes the negotiations which terminated when Dr. John F. Condon, retired New York school principal, tossed $50,000 over a cemetery wall in the Bronx, were conducted with criminals who had no part in the kidnaping or slaying.

Child Pushed Off Bank Breaks Leg.

While playing on a lot near 55 M street northwest yesterday, William J. Helmuth, 6 years old, of 77 New York avenue northwest, was pushed over an embankment by some unidentified boys and received a fracture of the left leg. He was taken to Sibley Hospital.

ANNE LINDBERGH IS ORDERED TO BED AS STRENGTH FAILS

the casket was taken from the hearse into the building, followed by Col. Lindbergh, Col. Schwarzkopf and Col. Breckinridge.

The three silently witnessed the cremation. They saw the body lowered into the retorts by three engineers and assistants.

Without visible emotion, they peered for a moment through the transparent opening provided for special witnesses.

Then the bereaved father turned to the superintendent of the crematory, shook his hand and said:

"I thank you."

The party left in the same automobile in which they had arrived.

It was understood the ashes of the baby would be left there overnight. A Trenton undertaking establishment was instructed to call for them tomorrow. Where they will be taken was not revealed.

Thus was written the last chapter in the tragic story of the baby, Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., whose life was snuffed out before he was 21 months old.

But officialdom—backed by outraged public opinion and spurred by President Hoover himself into making this the most intensive manhunt the world has even known—displayed a desire to write a sequel to the story.

Hoover's Order Spurs Hunt.

The call from the White House for a search "never to be relaxed until those criminals are implacably brought to justice" was their campaign cry.

As the search spread far and wide, some evidence of a diabolical hoax on the part of the killer-kidnapers was seen in a statement by Dr. Condon.

He told officials he was convinced the sleeping suit turned over to him was the same one the famous flier's son wore the night he was snatched from the crib.

He received the garment nearly a month after the abduction.

Medical authorities have agreed the kidnapers killed their victim almost immediately after making off with him—probably the same night.

Police finally said the suit furnished to Dr. Cronin was "the same kind" as that the Lindbergh child wore.

Although they added it still was uncertain whether the garment the intermediary received was the one the Lindberghs had purchased for their son, an ugly aspect was cast on the case which would not be quickly dispelled.

This theory is that the kidnapers, who many officials believed to have been maniacs, almost immediately after stealing the baby from the crib where he had lain ill, stripped off his sleeping suit, murdered their helpless victim, cast the body into the woods and then set out to obtain the ransom for the child they knew could never be returned alive.

Intermediaries Questioned.

Dr. Condon and John Hughes Curtis, of Norfolk, who also figured in the case as an intermediary with the supposed kidnapers, were questioned throughout most of the night by police on the Lindbergh estate, in an attempt to get an official picture of their activities in the flier's behalf.

Dr. Condon returned to his home in New York after Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, State police head, issued a news bulletin dealing largely with the examination of the two men.

"Dr. Condon's entire statement was taken," he said, "and nothing resulted which would in any way implicate him as being connected with the kidnapers. He tried to act in the best interests of Col. Lindbergh. * * *

"Mr. Curtis has been taken by two investigators to check up on certain elements as reported in connection with an alleged group of kidnapers * * *."

Swiftly the New Jersey investigators were piecing together the full story of the events that followed the sensational abduction 73 days ago—much of which information had been withheld from them because of private investigations and negotiations.

Col. Lindbergh himself aided them in mapping their man-hunting campaign.

Father Gets News Late.

It was hours after the discovery of his son's body that the grim news came to him. He had been on a yacht off Cape May, N. J., seeking to establish a contact with men he had been led to believe were the kidnapers.

A radio code had been arranged so that while away from home working on his own investigation he could keep in touch with police and his family.

But something went wrong with the radio on the yacht at the crucial moment.

While the flier's wife waited in their hilltop home, striving to keep from breaking down, a radio operator tapped out the tragic message over and over again.

It was late in the night before it was finally picked up by the yacht, which then raced for a landing place near Atlantic City. After a wild drive up the State, the colonel arrived at the side of his distracted wife.

Until 3 a. m. he came and went from the garage on his estate where the police investigation has been centered and where now plans for the intensified search are being formulated.

The fast-moving events of the day included:

President Hoover's orders to Federal police authorities to "make the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never-to-be-forgotten case"—a statement which he read to newspaper men in emphatic tones and later repeated to members of his Cabinet.

Disclosure that identification of the baby's body was made positive when the Lindbergh nursemaid produced a spool of thread with which she had done some sewing on one of the undershirts found on the body, and when she exhibited a piece of cloth she had cut from the other undershirt.

Search of the Atlantic seaport from Boston to Cape May by 25 Coast Guard boats on the lookout for a vessel reported to have been connected with the kidnaping case.

A statement of District Attorney Erwin E. Marshall, who will have jurisdiction because the body was found in his county, that an arrest might be expected, although, it might not be for several days and although he said no one was under suspicion at that time.

Investigation in Detroit of a possible connection between the Lindbergh case and the attempted kidnaping there in 1931 of the children of a Detroit business man, who received notes reported to be similar to those the colonel got.

Means Not Linked in Death.

A statement by Schwarzkopf that no information had come to him linking Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent, with the kidnaping and death of the child. (Means is under indictment for obtaining more than $100,000 on the statement he could effect the return of the Lindbergh baby.)

A charge by Emerson L. Richards, leader of the Republican majority in the State Senate, that State police were no better equipped to solve the kidnaping-murder case "than the traffic policemen down on the corner." He said he believed it the duty of the Senate to make an inquiry and determine whether an investigation were advisable.

Announcement by District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin, of the Bronx, that "the question of any crime committed in Bronx County in connection with the payment of money" for the return of the Lindbergh baby "will be disposed of," now that the body has been found. (The $50,000 ransom payment was made in the Bronx.)

Advancement of a theory by John J. Sullivan, head of the New York City detective force, that the kidnaping and killing were the work of a maniac.

Prepared to Seek Indictments.

A statement by District Attorney Marshall that he was ready to seek murder indictments in connection with the death of the baby, when the evidence warrants, but that there was no justification for such action yet.

Interest also centered in three men known to the underworld, who at one time or another since March 1 figured as intermediaries in the case.

Statement by Hoover On Lindbergh Search

The President's statement on orders for the search for killers of the Lindbergh baby follows:

I have directed the law-enforcement agencies and the several secret services of the Federal Government to make the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never-to-be-forgotten case, never to be relaxed until these criminals are implacably brought to justice.

The Federal Government does not have police authority in such crimes, but its agencies will be unceasingly alert to assist the New Jersey police in every possible way until this end has been accomplished. HERBERT HOOVER.

LINDBERGH WATCHES CREMATION OF BABY

Identifies Murdered Child at Morgue; Displays Deep Emotion.

Trenton, N. J., May 13 (U.P.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, a gaunt, silent man from whom the spirit of youth seemed to have departed, passed courageously through the valley of death today with his little son.

He stood, rigid and unblinking, in an undertaking parlor here when, for the sake of a formality which must have caused him excruciating torture, he was forced to look upon the mutilated form of his boy.

Again he stood, his hand clenched until they became bloodless, and watched the consuming fire of the Linden crematory as it obliterated the body—but not the memory—of his murdered son.

There were no sobs. There was no hysteria. His spirit, torn and battered by the assaults of fate, refused to crack.

He stood alone—although friends were with him. He stood alone, as he had flown into fame and into the hearts of the world.

Refuses to Spare Self.

Lindbergh might have been spared this ordeal. It was his nature that he refused to spare himself—to become afraid, and soft.

He strode into the undertaking rooms, a little ahead of his closest companion, Col. Henry C. Breckinridge, and awaited orders. He was told to go into a little chapel and he walked, not uncertainly nor hesitantly, but firmly, to the table where, in an oaken casket, the sorrowful spectacle awaited him.

His step was steady but his face was drawn into weary lines and he was pale. There was silence for a moment.

"Col. Lindbergh," the voice of Prosecutor Erwin Marshall broke the silence, "Col. Lindbergh, are you convinced this body is that of your infant?"

The colonel bent over the small form. He looked at the curly look of hair and the tiny baby teeth. He seemed to be examining them—or to be pondering. Then he straightened up.

"Yes," he said. "It is."

Leaves for Cremation.

Col. Lindbergh turned away. If he had reached the breaking point there was no indication, but he entered another room alone and closed the door. Three minutes later he reappeared and took his place beside Col. Breckinridge.

Outside the funeral chapel thousands of men and women and children had gathered in respectful silence. They were driven away by police.

Ten minutes later Lindbergh was riding along the sorrowful road in Linden, where cremation of the body had been arranged.

The hearse containing the little casket in which the body lay arrived at the Rose Hill Crematory at Linden, about 6 p. m., followed closely by the automobile containing Lindbergh, Breckinridge and Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf.

Two of the undertaker's assistants stepped from the hearse and lifted out the casket—a light burden.

Sees Casket in Flames.

Then the casket was borne into the crematory chapel, followed by the father—walking a little in advance of the others. Lindbergh stood bareheaded, and watched the burden slowly descend on a silent elevator to the floor below. His head was bowed and his hands were gripped convulsively behind his back.

As the casket disappeared, the colonel turned and went down stairs, still leading this silent funeral party. A short flight of stairs that led—to eternity.

He watched as the casket rolled into the burning chamber of fire clay. He continued to watch as attendants closed the doors and sealed them. He looked, with straining eyes—through the fearful windows that were ranged on either side of the walled chamber—until the white heat became blinding.

The ordeal was over. As one determined to bear his grief alone, the silent Lindbergh turned away and walked to his automobile. Then he returned to Hopewell, to Anne Morrow Lindbergh, who was waiting for him.

WORLD IS AROUSED BY BABY'S MURDER

Killer Is Condemned and Sympathy Expressed in Many Lands.

(Associated Press.)

Newspapers all over the world gave their front pages to the Lindbergh story yesterday, most of them printing pictures of the child and nearly all of them running indignant editorials.

In Shanghai there were columns in the Chinese papers.

The Osservatore Romano, unofficial organ of the Vatican, expressed the hope that the criminal would have "inexorable punishment for the satisfaction of wounded humanity."

La Nacion of Buenos Aires stated: "All of the peoples of the world hope and believe that sooner or later those who committed this deed will be punished."

Dino Grandi, the Italian foreign minister, cabled his sympathy, "as a friend and a father," to Col. Lindbergh. Similar messages were sent by the colonel's friends in every corner of the world.

"What infamy!" exclaimed Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, when he heard the news in Mexico City. President Ortiz Rubio, who is a friend of both the colonel and of his father-in-law, Dwight Morrow, when the latter was ambassador to that country, telegraphed his sympathy to the parents.

The Evening News in London wrote in an editorial:

"It is for the people of the United States to decide whether, in the name of other children, it will call a halt to a state of things which looks as though it will make the gangsters and thugs the final arbiters of America's destiny."

Francois Latour, president of the Paris Municipal Council, cabled Col. Lindbergh: "The officials and the people of Paris feel to the bottom of their hearts your terrible sorrow."

CURTIS BARES NAMES OF KIDNAPERS' GANG

have taken good care of him," was their sinister explanation.

They attempted to prove further they were the actual kidnapers by demonstrating their authorship of the ransom notes received by Lindbergh.

Lindbergh Refused Demand.

They demanded the payment of $200,000.

"Not 1 cent until the baby is in my arms," Lindbergh informed them.

"O. K. with us," came back word from the gang.

Talk of placing a substantial part of the ransom demand in escrow in Curtis' hands ended with Lindbergh turning a $50,000 check over to Curtis. This sum, however, never fell into possession of the gang.

Curtis and Lindbergh went out on the Atlantic twice last Sunday in an 85-foot auxiliary ketch-rigged yacht, the Cachalot, hoping to weather the heavy seas better in that craft than in the power yacht Marcon they had been using.

The gang with whom they were dealing gave a long list of alibis to explain their failure to go through with negotiations.

Once they sent a message:

"Be patient; we were so close to you last night we could hear your exhaust."

Another message read:

Talked of Hijackers.

Another failure to keep a contact appointment was explained, by this word:

"Couldn't make position during last three days, account burned out bearing."

But the main excuse was the presence of "enemy" ships. They talked repeatedly of hijackers.

They claimed they had the baby aboard in charge of a shanghaied nurse. They told Curtis the big part of his job was to get immunity for the nurse and skipper, who were pictured as being kept under the constant range of the gang's guns.

Curtis said he thought the gang actually had taken a child aboard the yacht and planned to turn him over as the Lindbergh baby on payment of the ransom demanded.

He said the skipper, whose name he furnished to authorities, had been in the hands of the gang for three weeks and that his hair actually had turned white.

White towels flung from the masthead were designated as the means by which Curtis was to spot the gang's craft.

Heavy Seas Prevent Contact.

Capt. Kenneth Whiting, Navy pilot, who aided Curtis from the air, claimed he once sighted a ship flying such insignia, but heavy seas prevented Curtis from getting close to it by boat.

The maneuvers of the gang to get the $200,000, which they apparently thought were nearing success, were halted by the discovery of the child's body.

New York, May 13 (U.P.).—The woolen sleeping garment worn by baby Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., on his last night at the home of his parents has become the most important material link toward a solution of his kidnaping and murder.

When descriptions of the clothing were published, directly after the kidnaping, details of this garment were, by design, withheld. Instead, an erroneous description was published.

The world believed that the Lindbergh baby had been wrapped in a sleeping garment that was buttoned down the back, and that its color was white. Instead, it was gray, and it buttoned on the side.

Real Garment Sent Back.

The garment sent back to the Lindbergs by the alleged kidnapers, through Dr. John F. Condon (Jafsie) answered the truthful description of this dress.

A careful check was made. Col. Lindbergh traced the manufacturer's number on the label of the returned piece of clothing directly to the store from which it had been purchased. The identification was complete. And it was on the basis of this identification that he paid $50,000 for the promised return of his infant.

When the body of the baby was found, no sleeping garment was with it. The little dress had been used for bargaining purposes.

Today it became a potential key to the mystery.

been, for in the recent primary, the combined vote of Roosevelt and Smith was far greater than that given Garner. In the Literary Digest poll, California voted 3 to 1 against prohibition.

McAdoo, sponsor of the Hudson Tunnel, son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury in Wilson's Cabinet, had been counted on by the drys to lead their fight in the Democratic national convention.

His reported defection therefore must come as a blow to them. Not that McAdoo could have done much good at Chicago. A month in advance of the convention a referendum plank in the Democratic platform is as certain as anything could be.

While wets in the Senate were harassing the drys yesterday in the tax bill debate, four men in the House of Representatives added their names to the beer petition.

The four were Representative Howard, of Nebraska, one-time secretary to the late William Jennings Bryan, a celebrated dry in his day, and Representatives Gifford, Foss and Martin, all of Massachusetts.

The petition, which would force a vote on the Hull-O'Connor bill, requires 145 signatures. It now has 137. The wets hope to get the remainder today, which will be the last day on which the document can be signed.

The Hull-O'Connor bill would legalize 2.75 per cent beer, and its authors say it would raise $200,000,000 a year in revenue.

POLICE IN KIDNAPING CALLED INEFFICIENT

Detective Chairman Demands Schwarzkopf's Resignation; Resentment Up.

Hopewell, N. J., May 13 (U.P.).—While the New Jersey police, haggard and nervous, were pursuing their frantic investigation into the Lindbergh case today, an undercurrent of resentment, reaching a climax in open demands for investigations and inquiries into their efficiency, swept through the State.

A definite charge of "incompetency" was hurled at Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, who has had charge of the police investigation throughout the case, by Frank J. Harrold, chairman of the executive committee of the County Detectives Association. Mr. Harrold announced that the association will be asked to go on record as demanding Schwarzkopf's resignation.

Basis for much of this resentment and many of the charges lay in the fact that ten weeks had passed, during which the baby is presumed to have been lying dead within 4 miles of his parents' home, before the chance discovery of the body by a passing truckman provided the tragic climax.

Reports of friction between various police officials were intensified when the New Jersey authorities met in conference today in an endeavor to work out a unified plan for the manhunt, and to select a chief executive for the task. They adjourned without even coming to an agreement.

Present at the conference were Attorney General William A. Stevens, two of his assistants, Erwin E. Marshall, prosecutor of Mercer County; Anthony M. Hauck, prosecutor of Hunterdon County, and Col. Schwartzkopf. The kidnaping took place in Hunterdon County, and the murder was committed, it is assumed, in Mercer County. The body was found in Mercer County.

Prosecutor Marshall is one of the officials who is convinced, by evidence presented by Dr. Condon, that the men who took the $50,000 ransom from Col. Lindbergh and then failed to return the baby—because the baby was even then dead—were the same who committed the kidnaping.

Lindberghs Bearing Up Well, Dr. Hibben Says

Princeton, N. J., May 13 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were described tonight by a close friend as "bearing what they have to bear, most bravely."

Dr. John Greer Hibben, president of Princeton University, called on the grief-stricken parents early in the evening, as he has done frequently since the night of the kidnaping. "I can definitely say neither Col. nor Mrs. Lindbergh has broken down physically," Dr. Hibben said, "although they are both under a tremendous nervous strain."

WASHINGTON STILL FLOUNDERS.

The Senate amendment of the House tax bill broadening the proposed amusement tax to include 10 per cent on all admission tickets costing more than 10 cents is a concrete example of the fact that the power to tax is the power to destroy.

The House had previously proposed a tax of 10 per cent on admissions costing more than 45 cents. This would have injured the business of thousands of motion picture theaters and producing companies, which are already losing tremendous sums, and now the Senate goes even farther than the House, proposing a tax on all tickets. This will definitely close thousands of theaters and will mean the virtual destruction of an industry which employs hundreds of thousands of people.

Even now without a tax it is estimated that half the motion picture theaters of the country are losing money because of lack of patronage due to unemployment and reduced income. Of the 12,000 theaters now open, it is believed 5,000, mostly neighborhood and small town houses, will be forced to close. This will mean a loss not alone to the owners of the houses and their employes but also to the cities which collect realty taxes on them. It will mean, too, a loss to the motion picture producers who, deprived of possibly half their already small market, will be forced to reduce operation, lay off more people, and contribute further to unemployment, while bondholders and stockholders, scattered all over the country, would see a further shrinkage in the values of their securities.

And the most ironic part of it all would be that the Government would not receive the revenue it hopes to get even though it destroys an industry in an effort to get it.

The task of the men in Washington is admittedly difficult, but it would not be one-half so difficult if they would face facts.

The country must have the budget balanced, but not in a way that would destroy instead of help trade.

Let taxes be raised equitably through a sales tax and a tax on legalized beer. These items alone would be sufficient to take care of the deficit. They would be generally popular. They would help revive employment and, if followed by a Prosperity Bond issue such as Senator Robinson has proposed, and which bill the writer and other publishers have urged Congress to pass, the country would then definitely find an upturn in business.

What a difference all this would make to the unfortunate eight or ten million people who are out of work, for the many millions who have only part time work and for the many business houses which are hovering between success and failure!

BABY'S DEATH FOILS FLORIDA KIDNAP PLOT

Two Held in St. Petersburg After One Loses Nerve at Lindbergh Tragedy.

St. Petersburg, Fla., May 13 (A.P.).—The intended child victim of a $30,000 kidnaping plot was safe today because one of the conspirators lost his nerve as he read in a newspaper that the Lindbergh baby had been slain.

Tipped off by an unidentified person who was approached to act as a "go-between" in a conspiracy to abduct the 6-year-old daughter of Dr. David M. Gardner, general chairman of the Southern Baptist Convention, meeting here, police arrested Edgar ("Shine") Mote, 25, and Jerry Metz, 35.

The officers are seeking three other persons they believe were implicated in the plot to kidnap little Edith Marie Gardner and hold her for $30,000 ransom to be made up by delegates to the convention.

Frightened by Murder.

Mote, officers said, confessed to his part in the plot. He said he "got cold feet" as he read about the Lindbergh baby's death in newspapers he was selling on the street last night.

The police blamed Metz, who identified himself as a former West Virginia police officer, with originating the plot, and said he had joined Dr. Gardner's church last Sunday night, presumably to learn the habits of the family.

The officers received the tip several days ago, it was disclosed, and placed the child under guard while they investigated.

While the prisoners are held without formal charge, authorities have asked Circuit Judge John U. Bird at Clearwater, the county seat, to call the grand jury into session to investigate.

Was Freed in Killing.

Hagerstown, Md., May 13 (A.P.).—Jerry Metz, believed by county officials here to be the man held in St. Petersburg, Fla., on a charge of plotting to kidnap the daughter of Dr. David M. Gardner, was tried and acquitted at Westminster, Md., in October, 1922, for manslaughter.

Metz, a special policeman for the Norfolk & Western Railroad, shot and killed a boy by the name of Doffemyer, whose home was in Shenandoah, Va., in the railroad yards here. At his trial Metz claimed that he found the youth robbing a freight car. The State said the boy had been at the Hagerstown Fair and was riding the freight train back to his home.

Metz's former home was in Roanoke, Va.

HOUSE KEEPS PLAN FOR BIG ARMY CUT

Votes to Retain Provision for Forcing Retirement of 2,000 Officers.

(Associated Press.)

After prolonged debate, the House voted yesterday to retain the provision in the Army supply bill which would save about $4,000,000 by forcing the retirement of 2,000 officers. No record vote was taken, but after members swarmed up the aisle to be counted the Republicans who led the fight against reducing the number of officers from 12,000 to 10,000 were told they had lost, 141 to 135.

Democratic leaders were confident last night they would keep other savings in the measure which reduce the $386,000,000 appropriation bill $24,000,000 below budget estimates.

Representative Barbour (Republican), of California, led the attempt to keep the Army officer strength intact and most of the Republicans followed, although a sprinkling of Democrats were with him.

Their claim was that the enforced retirement of 2,000 officers would impair the National Defense program. They cited the opposition of Secretary Hurley and Gen. McArthur, chief of staff.

Directing the successful effort to keep the provision in, Representative Collins (Democrat), Mississippi, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, replied that the slash was actually an aid to Army efficiency.

Among the Republicans who sided with them, Representative Wood, of Indiana, who visited the White House yesterday, said the Chief Executive "authorized me to say to this House that he expected and hoped and desired that this bill, when it leaves this House, will carry the reduction of $24,000,000 that is proposed by the committee."

Representative Beedy (Republican), Maine, later arose to say that while the President favored a reduction in the measure, he thought that the War Department should say where cuts should be made, so that efficiency of the service would not be impaired.

"NOT-GUILTY" PLEA ENTERED BY MEANS

Sleuth Forfeits $65 Bail Charges From Encounter With Reporter.

(Associated Press.)

Gaston B. Means, arraigned yesterday on charges of embezzling $104,000 from Mrs. Edward B. McLean, was called almost simultaneously to testify for Mr. McLean in a suit to oust him as cotrustee of his father's estate. The action goes to trial Monday.

It was Mrs. McLean's complaint which put authorities on the trail of Means last week. She says he appropriated money she gave him on promises he could recover Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr. She hired Means to negotiate with kidnapers soon after the baby was stolen.

Means pleaded not guilty in the District of Columbia Supreme Court and was allowed until Tuesday to file demurrers or other pleadings automatically withdrawing yesterday's plea.

The possibility that both cases—the McLean ouster suit and the charges against Means—may be tried concurrently in separate sections of the court was suggested by lawyers.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover told Justice James M. Proctor that he understood Means said he would do everything possible to delay trial until next fall—and that the Government "is very anxious" for quick action.

Rover told reporters he was confident Means would go to trial during this term, which ends early in July. Lawyers on both sides of the McLean case say it will last for weeks.

Means yesterday was allowed to forfeit $65 collateral instead of appearing for trial on charges of assault, drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Michael F. Keogh, assistant United States district attorney, announced in Police Court that Means would be permitted to forfeit the collateral and the case would not be pushed.

The smaller charge against Means grew out of his rough treatment of Lee Somers, a Washington newspaperman, Thursday. Means said he had mistaken Somers for an undercover agent and preferred charges of disorderliness against the reporter.

These charges were dismissed in Police Court yesterday, after the policeman who made the arrests testified he saw no evidence of disorderly conduct on the part of Somers.

Means headed a list of witnesses made public by McLean's lawyer. Other witnesses for McLean included Bertha Martin, former society editor of The Post; Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, editor of the Washington Herald, and Gustave Griffoni, the McLean butler, who is a witness in the case against Means.

2 Oil Station Robbers Get 12-Year Sentences

Two twelve-year sentences were given a pair of convicted colored robbers yesterday when they were haled before Justice James M. Proctor in the District Supreme Court.

They were Leroy Harrison and Otto Adams. The two were accused of robbing David O. Thompson, manager of a gasoline station at 2612 Sherman avenue northwest, of $63 last November.

IDLE RELIEF ACCORD IS NEAR IN CONGRESS

But Some Senate Democrats Demand $1,500,000,000 Bill Be Changed.

(Associated Press.)

Confidence prevailed yesterday at the Capitol that an agreement would be reached on the $1,500,000,000 unemployment relief program, although modifications still were demanded by some Senate Democrats.

Democratic leaders set up a special committee to draft a new program, with a general understanding that it would provide for an expanded Federal construction program to which President Hoover is opposed.

Republican leaders maintained their confidence that an agreement would be forthcoming in time for legislation at this session, but took no steps to frame a program of their own or introduce a bill embodying the plan to which the President has given his approval.

Public Works Program.

As the dust settled behind the rapid developments of the past 24 hours, it appeared that the President and the Democrats were agreed upon the phase of the program that would lend $250,000,000 or $300,000,000 through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to States for direct relief of the jobless.

There was also some unanimity of opinion, although a disagreement over details, about lending through the corporation for private and public construction projects of a self-liquidating nature.

The proposal for a large public works program developed as the chief issue in dispute at a joint meeting yesterday of the Senate Democratic steering and policy committees.

The view was forcefully presented there that a tremendous public construction program was the only thing that could offer hope of a large number of new jobs for the unemployed.

A subcommittee was appointed and directed to draft a bill. Senator Wagner, of New York, author of a bill to relieve unemployment, was named chairman. Other members appointed were: Senators Robinson, of Arkansas; Pittman, of Nevada; Walsh, of Montana, and Bulkley, of Ohio.

Mr. Wagner announced that the committee would start work at once gathering material and studying the situation, but that the legislation probably would not be completed for some time.

He said the program should include at least $1,000,000,000 for a Federal construction program.

Mr. Wagner now has pending a bill to appropriate $1,100,000,000 for the public works which have been authorized but for which funds have not been provided.

Rainey Criticizes Hoover.

Some doubt was expressed by Mr. Wagner over the extent to which a program for constructing self-liquidating projects would be effective. He said one of the first things the committee will consider will be how large a fund of this kind could be efficiently used.

President Hoover in his statement Thursday night, emphasized that a sharp distinction should be drawn between loans for self-liquidating construction projects and the issue of bonds for public works.

Meanwhile from Representative Rainey, Democratic leader of the House, came further criticism of the President's proposal.

"Loans to States seem a doubtful proposition to me," he said. "Most States already have borrowed to the limit of their constitutional capacity. It would seem better that the Government undertake this relief directly."

Mr. Rainey warned that the budget must be balanced "before we can sell bonds."

The President took another step toward aiding relief work. He sent to the House a request for an appropriation of $120,000 so his organization for unemployment relief may continue to work during the 1933 fiscal year.

In an attached letter, J. Clawson Roop, director of the budget, said money for 1933 had not been asked in the original budget submitted last December because it was not known then whether the organization would be needed after June 30, 1932. Then he added:

"The necessity for continuing this organization, however, is now apparent and these estimates of appropriations for the support of the organization are herewith submitted."

Phone Company Given Extension in Rate Quiz

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday granted the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. an extension of time to submit certain data requested in connection with the scheduled public hearing on telephone rates, and consequently the hearing was delayed until some time in June.

The commission last week notified the telephone company that it would set a date for the hearing at the end of ten days. The utility representatives said they could not prepare the necessary information within the 20 days that ordinarily would elapse before the hearing.

SENATE BODY STEPS UP TROLLEY MERGER

this merger, but thus far I have not seen any benefits accruing to the public. I think the least we can do is to provide transfers between street cars, and street cars and buses."

Other bills reported favorably included measures authorizing the District Commissioners to close useless streets, after report by the National Park and Planning Commission; and increasing from 50 cents to $1 a day sums paid dependents of prisoners in the District workhouse.

The point of no quorum was raised when the Howell "home raid" bill, a bill to provide for an elective board of education, and an antivivisection measure, were called up to vote.

ROOP GIVES SENATE BODY ECONOMY LIST

Steward Charges McDuffie Issued Prejudicial Data on Federal Workers.

A list of all economies proposed to date in the drive to balance the budget yesterday was laid before the special Senate economy subcommittee by Col. J. Clawson Roop, director of the budget.

The list was compiled and presented at the request of President Hoover, a source close to the committee explained. Heretofore the committee has worked with the House omnibus economy bill as a basis.

Asked last night whether the list represented the White House program, Col. Roop replied it represented economies put forward from every source. He said "no new projects" were advanced.

Secret Deliberation.

The budget director made an explanatory statement, then left the committee to its secret deliberations. Prospects of a report next week appeared very remote. Senator Hiram Bingham again postponed hearings on the District appropriations bill, from Monday to Thursday.

He explained this did not mean the economy group would be ready to report by Thursday. Absence of Senator Kenneth McKellar from the city will make it impossible for the economy body to go ahead that day, so the District group will meet instead, he said. Four members of the District appropriations subcommittee also are members of the economy group.

In having Col. Roop tabulate economies, through which the administration and committee members hope to save more than $300,000,000, the President followed a precedent set in House economy deliberations, when the budget director gathered proposed economies in one omnibus bill.

Steward Scores McDuffie.

Appropriations Chairman Wesley L. Jones said last night he will not stop all work on supply bills while the economy measure is under deliberation, although no supply bill will be reported to the Senate until the emergency savings bill is out of the way.

While the economy group debated retrenchment vitally affecting Government workers everywhere, threatening salaries, jobs, pay increases, Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, issued a statement assailing Chairman John McDuffie, of the House economy committee, for statements allegedly "prejudicial" to Government employes.

"Federal employes welcome fair criticism," he said. "At the present time many exaggerated statements are being made concerning the working conditions of civilian employes of the Federal Government. Many of these prejudicial statements that appear in print are based upon ignorance and misinformation; some undoubtedly are made with the full knowledge that they are not true. Federal employes have a right to expect, however, that a member of Congress occupying the position of chairman of the special economy committee of the House of Representatives, which was charged with the duty of drafting proposals for reducing Federal expenditures, would have ascertained the facts before publishing statements which are prejudicial to the Federal employes group."

Increase in Employes.

He charged Representative McDuffie in a radio address declared Federal employes get paid for 365 days in the year, though they may work only 221.

"The facts are," said Mr. Steward, "that the average sick leave in the departmental service is less than 7 days per annum, and the average annual leave less than 28 days per annum."

While Mr. McDuffie pointed out Federal employes here have increased from 32,000 in 1915 to 70,000 in 1932, he did not show the vast growth in Governmental activities that has made the increase necessary, President Steward declared.

"The mere bald statement as to increased Federal personnel not only fails to give a true picture, but fails to give a fair picture," he said.

LATIN TARIFF BLOC AGAINST U.S. DENIED

South American Envoys Say Retaliatory Measures Are Not Planned.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Formation of a Latin-American bloc to bring into effect retaliatory tariff measures against the United States was denied here yesterday by diplomats of the various countries involved. Oscar Blanco Viel, charge d'affaires of the Chilean Embassy, denied that his country was contemplating entering any united front movement against the United States. The Peruvian Ambassador, Freyre de Santander, was unwilling to comment on reports of a movement in the Peruvian Congress to hoist Peruvian tariffs against American imports, but he had no corroborative information on the subject.

The objection from the South American countries is over the proposed tariff on copper. This possibility brought on a heated debate in the Peruvian Congress in the course of which one deputy urged the passage of a retaliatory tariff against the United States. Another deputy urged that the tariff be placed at 300 per cent on American products.

The State Department would not comment on the tendency, but it was nevertheless pointed out that all such agitation was premature as the tax act, with its proposed tariff, was still in process of formation and as it had not either been passed by the Senate or approved by the President, the fears of South American countries over the tariff increases were not justified by the facts.

Representative Critical.

In certain legislative circles there was an undercurrent of resentment at the reported intention of the South American countries. One representative expressed himself vigorously at the action of certain South American countries, which had already cost the American investor millions of dollars in defaulted securities, proceeding on an unwarranted assumption that the United States was intent on causing them further economic difficulty.

In this connection the observation was made that criticism has been reported from Peruvian, Bolivian and Chilean parliaments at the action of the United States in allowing American bankers to make unnecessary loans to South American countries when no provison was inserted in the loan agreement by the State Department that the loan was to be made for productive purposes.

One deputy in the Chilean Parliament declared that these loans had been made to a dictator and had been approved by a Congress that was not a Congress of popular election.

The State Department scrupulously followed the same procedure in the case of loans made to Chile, Peru, Bolivia and Brazil which it follows in the case of financial agreement between American bankers and any European country. Sometimes in the case of Caribbean countries it is necessary to ascertain the uses to which such loans shall be put before the formal agreement of the State Department is secured.

U. S. Criticized Both Ways.

It would have been possible for American authorities to control the purposes of certain loans by making it contingent upon satisfactory productive activity for the funds so offered, but in this case the United States would have been accused of interfering in the internal affairs of such a country. Therefore the State Department refrained from exercising any censorship over the funds offered to South American countries by American bankers and which in almost all cases have been defaulted.

The result has been a complete surprise to various American authorities. Resentment is now expressed that the United States refrained from exercising interference in South American financing out of a too great deference to national susceptibilities. The exercise of such control in the case of smaller countries in the Caribbean region has aroused on other occasions in notoriously anti-American sources in Latin America an outburst of criticism. Now the criticism has been voiced because the United States did not exercise its veto with regard to these loans.

the unemployed, we can not be responsible for the orderly operation of the railroads of this country—that we will refuse to take the responsibility for the disorder which is sure to arise if conditions continue. * * *

"It would be with great reluctance that those we represent would ask for a dole. On the other hand, Mr. President, what other alternative is there available? Everything else suggested has either failed or has been denied. If something is not immediately done we will be obliged to demand a dole.

"The unemployed citizens which we represent will not accept starvation while the two major political parties struggle for control of government and, meanwhile, fail to observe the rapid approach of a critical situation that threatens our whole country and our very existence."

The labor presidents submitting the statement were: D. B. Robertson, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; S. N. Berry, Order of Railway Conductors; A. F. Whitney, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; T. C. Cashen, Switchmen's Union of North America; E. J. Manion, Order of Railroad Telegraphers; J. G. Luhrsen, American Train Dispatchers Association; F. H. Fljozdal, Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes.

Mr. Robertson explained the purpose of their proposal as being to relieve the international debt through increasing exports, thereby stimulating manufacture and providing employment and additional business for the railroads.

The railway men's plan was embodied in a proposed joint resolution of Congress, which Mr. Robertson said would be introduced today.

The plan calls for the appointment by the President of a committee of five to be known as "the international trade and War Debt Commission. The Commission would be empowered to make agreements with foreign Governments that during each year of the 25-year moratorium, part of its war debt to the United States "will be cancelled in proportion to its imports."

President Attends Doumer Memorial

Officials and Diplomats of Washington Join in Services Here.

(Associated Press.)

Led by the President and Mrs. Hoover, official Washington paid a memorial tribute yesterday to Paul Doumer, the late French president, shot down by an assassin, at a high requiem mass in St. Matthew's Church here.

Diplomats from around the world, wearing the gold braid, swords and medals of their office, joined with Ambassador Claudel of France and the staff of his embassy in tribute of Doumer, who was buried in state Thursday.

Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department, Vice President Curtis and Secretary Adams, together with high military and naval officials, attended the memorial services.

Garage Builder's Contract Annulled

New Bids Will Be Asked for Completion of Municipal Project.

The District Commissioners yesterday annulled the contract of the Fidelity Construction Co. to construct the sewer department garage at First and O streets southeast on account of the refusal of the contractor to complete the job until the plans for the steel work are redrafted.

The Commissioners will advertise for bids probably next week to complete the project unless the controversy is carried to court in the meantime. The contractor refused to remedy a bent steel skeleton, caused by a windstorm, on the ground that the plans had been drawn illegally, in that they were done by the sewer department instead of the municipal architect's office.

The structure is more than three-fourths complete, and the District government has already paid the contractor $26,664 on his bid of $36,085. If the cost of finishing the structure exceeds this difference, the District will sue the bonding company for that amount.

Horrible Fate of Man Who Took Life of Baby

—By JOHN J. DALY—

AND it came to pass that there were murderers in the land.

And one of them descended farther into the abyss than any other, reaching the lowest depths of degradation — down, down, down where there is no bottom; far beyond the lowest levels of hell, past the remotest echo of the sound of weeping and the gnashing of teeth.

And there, in the outer darkness, this murderer—always to be shunned as unclean by other murderers—committed his deed, the crime of crimes;

And it cried to high heaven, to the highest peak of heaven, for vengeance;

And the cry, seemingly, went unheard and unanswered;

But the murderer, in his lowly pit, heard the reverberations of the cry, coming back, pounding in upon his consciousness, shattering his eardrums;

And he will hear it, every moment—for he has murdered sleep. He will never sleep again. The clarion call of vengeance is ringing in his brain, battering down the blinds of his mind, with the furies following him wherever he goes, dogging him, from now until the crack of doom.

* * * * *

THOUGH he go unpunished by mortal man the darkness of his own misery will overcome him, blinded even to the light of the world, and no man, not even the scum of the earth, will touch in helpfulness the hand that destroyed innocent childhood.

He will be swallowed up in loneliness. Humankind are not his kind. Every hand is against him. Nature lies in wait to trap him. Fate is weaving the web to enmesh him.

In fear, in deadly fear, this hunted thing will wear down to death—death by his own scarlet hand or death by the law. It would be well for him if the mountains should fall down upon him or for the sea to rise and save him from his pursuers.

INJUNCTION DENIED MINE RELIEF GROUP

Fail to Win Protection Writ After Officials in Area Warn of Violence.

London, Ky., May 13 (A.P.).—Members of the American Civil Liberties Union Investigating Party will have no injunction to protect them when they enter the southeastern Kentucky mine area. Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran denied their injunction petition tonight.

Simultaneously Judge Cochran announced he had changed his mind and would not accompany the party to the coal fields. In court last night he said he intended going with them to afford his personal protection.

Judge Cochran, in denying the injunction, said he was not holding they had no right to enter the mine area, but strongly advised them not to do so in the face of testimony their lives would be in danger while there.

Determined to Make Trip.

Arthur Garfield Hays, Ernest Sutherland Bates, the Rev. Charles C. Webber, Prof. Broadus Mitchell, all from the East; and the Rev. Eugene Sutherland, Louisville minister, promptly announced they would go to Bell County tomorrow regardless. Dudley Field Malone, international lawyer, who accompanied the group, said he was undecided whether he would make the trip.

Mayor J. M. Brooks of Pineville testified today he did not believe Bell County officers would permit the delegation to hold meetings or make speeches in that county. "In view of that admission," exclaimed Hays, "unless we get this injunction we can't go to Pineville."

Police Chief Pearl Osborne, of Pineville, said his police force would be as powerless as "a gnat in a storm" to protect them, and Sheriff J. H. Blair, of Harlan County, testified his entire force of a 150 deputies would be necessary to fully protect the delegation.

Warned of Danger.

Both officers said they would guard the delegation from violence if it was threatened in their presence, but Osborne said he "couldn't follow them around" because of other duties. Blair said he wouldn't go "very far out of my way" to protect them.

Judge Cochran, who yesterday pointed out that those who were to be investigated have rights as well as the investigators, commented during the hearing today that it was possible the officers had a legal right to eject a visiting delegation.

Springer Robinson, a Harlan County mine superintendent, testified general sentiment was strongly against another delegation visiting the county, and that even the women were aroused to the point of action in the matter. He said he knew of a group of women at Evarts who had asked their husbands "to stay home with the children while they attend to you."

AVIATOR IS RESCUED AFTER FALL INTO SEA

exhausted Reichers from the pilot seat.

The Roosevelt meanwhile was lowering her ship's ladder and maneuvering it as near as possible to the lifeboat.

Capt. Manning and his crew caught the ladder and the flier was carried aboard. The sea was running too high to salvage either the lifeboat or the plane.

The pilot, Reichers, was placed immediately under the care of Surgeon Mulligan.

Capts. George Fried and Harry Manning have been often involved in Atlantic rescue operations, and probably their most noteworthy effort was the rescue of the entire crew of the steamship Florida 700 miles off the Virginia Capes January 24, 1929.

At that time Capt. Fried was in command of the liner America.

Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, May 13 (A.P.).—Lou Reichers, lanky 31-year-old Arlington, N. J., flier, nosed his low-winged monoplane out over the North Atlantic 7 hours and 40 minutes after he roared away from the Newark (N. J.) Airport at 10:02 (Eastern standard time) last night. He was on the second leg of a three-part "Pony Express" survey flight to Paris.

Reichers, married and the father of an 11-year-old boy, used 6 hours and 23 minutes for his Newark-to-Harbor Grace hop. He had hoped to reach here in five hours.

His departure from here was delayed an hour beyond his expectation by a broken stabilizer his plane suffered when he put down here. Repairs were effected more quickly than at first seemed possible and Reichers taxied away with a 550-gallon load of fuel at 5:51 a. m. (Eastern standard time).

Wife Expresses Relief.

He had before him an over-water hop of about 2,000 miles before reaching Dublin. He had planned a quick refueling at Dublin before the final short hop of a little more than two hours to Le Bourget Field in Paris.

Arlington, N. J., May 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Lou T. Reichers expressed relief upon being informed tonight by the Associated Press of the rescue of her husband, whose plane was forced down at sea off the Irish coast, but said she was disappointed he had failed in his attempt to reach Paris.

"We were beginning to worry," Mrs. Reichers said over the telephone.

Dublin, Irish Free State, May 13 (A.P.).—A sizable crowd gathered tonight at Baldonnel Airdrome and the landing field was brilliant with floodlights in anticipation of the arrival of Lou Reichers, American flier, from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on the way to his goal in Paris.

"Poor" Clerk in Grocery Left $27,000 in Trunk

Newport, R. I., May 13 (A.P.).—In all the years George D. Ferrent worked as a grocery clerk, he never achieved as much attention as he did today—a month after he died—when appraisers of his modest belongings revealed they had found $27,000 in cash in his trunk.

People who knew Ferrent, who dealt with him and worked with him in a Newport grocery store often heard him plead poverty. Some had advanced him small loans. None dreamed he had any money. He was unmarried and was 65 when he died. Two sisters and a brother long will remember Friday, the thirteenth of May, 1932, as a lucky day—for they are the heirs.

WAR EMERGENCY MEASURES ARE PROPOSED BY HOOVER

on the floor of the Senate yesterday was indicative of the intensity of the tax battle. Suffering from a hurt leg and foot, Senator Harrison limped to the tax-framing sessions of the finance committee with the aid of a cane and his secretary. Then he went home to bed. Yesterday he returned to the floor when consideration of the tax bill was begun there.

Opening debate on the bill, Senator Smoot urged the Senate to accept the committee bill and not to approve amendments which would so change the measure that it would have to be rewritten on the floor, as was done in the House.

Tydings Demands Beer Tax.

Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, smiled his way into the discussion by way of a beer tax proposal. Senator Tydings, of course, knew that President Hoover wasn't sitting in the White House waiting to hear his demand that the President declare himself on a beer tax proposal. But the senator made his demand. He cited figures to show how much revenues would flow into the Federal Treasury from satisfied drinkers of beer if the Government only would recognize the legality of such beer.

Senator James Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, who is generally accepted as the most multimillionaire member of the Senate, provided the real shock of the day. His proposal was not new. He had advocated it before. The senators yesterday, however, were talking for the Record. They felt as conscious of their treatment of ideas, perhaps, as Senator John G. Townsend, jr. (Republican), of Delaware, when he fell over his chair in an earnest moment.

Senator Couzens proposed an amendment to the committee bill which would substitute the 1918 income tax rates for the committee rates. The Michigan senator's disapproval of the committee bill had been indicated earlier when he suggested to Senator Tydings that the Marylander go to Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills for approval of his beer amendment. The tax bill was a Mills, and not a committee, bill, Senator Couzens said.

Walsh Jeers Surtax Plan.

Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, attacked the Couzens income tax amendment. It would mean that the "middle class," represented by struggling $3,000, $4,000 and $5,000 citizens who are buying their home, would find their Federal income taxes increased by twelve times, Senator Walsh said. He jeered at the 65 per cent surtax proposed by Senator Couzens on incomes over $1,000,000. Not even the richest man would have his income tax increased as much as the middle class fellow, Senator Walsh said.

Senator Huey Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, asked if the average citizen wouldn't be satisfied to trade his present position for a $5,000 a year income and count himself lucky to pay $180 a year income taxes. Senator Walsh said undoubtedly he would, but however ideal that might be in theory it wasn't the question in practice before the Senate.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, presented a declaration from representatives of an organized farm group against taxes the bill would levy on automobiles used by farmers.

The most significant suggestion of the day, however, was that advanced by Senator Harrison, who proposed that all of the tariff items be postponed for consideration at the end of the bill. The leaders are afraid that if the tariff battles come early in consideration of the bill there is no telling what may happen. They want consideration of tariff postponed until last.

YESTERDAY IN CONGRESS

Postal Lease Data Angers Harry New

Former Postmaster General Affirms Regularity of Boston Award.

(Associated Press.)

Former Postmaster General New, aroused by documents presented Thursday in the Senate postal lease inquiry, denied emphatically yesterday there had been anything irregular in the 1926 leasing of the Back Bay station in Boston.

"On that lease," he said, "there were a number of bids, all submitted in the regular way. They were very carefully analyzed in the department, and the award was made on the recommendation of all the officials who opened and analyzed the bids."

Mr. New said he would get the post-office records on the case for introduction into the Senate inquiry record.

Help Asked for Magyar Bonds.

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—Recommendation that American bankers unite as soon as possible to protect American holders of Hungarian bonds against future discrimination by Hungary was made by the Institute of International Finance today.

Fleet's Maneuvers Extended 15 Days

Scouting Force Return From Pacific Is Postponed Until May 28.

(Associated Press.)

Navy orders to Admiral Frank H. Schofield yesterday directed an extension to May 28 of fleet maneuvers in the Pacific, and a delay for that period of the return to the Atlantic of the scouting force.

The scouting force was scheduled to depart yesterday from the San Pedro, Calif., area for the Canal Zone to return to the Atlantic. Officials said the two weeks extension was to afford the scouting force and battle force an opportunity for "target practice."

The original schedule called for the arrival of the scouting force along Atlantic ports early in June and the arrival of the force in New York June 10. Sometime ago the State Department suggested that the scouting force be kept with the rest of the fleet in the Pacific. The Navy, however, raised the question of the additional expense.

KENTUCKIANS DENY COAL MINE CHARGES

Terrorism and Starvation Hit to Senators; Dreiser's Group Assailed.

(Associated Press.)

A vigorous answer to charges of terrorism and starvation in Kentucky coal fields was lodged with a Senate committee yesterday by citizens of that State.

In addition, one asserted that two of the group which accompanied Theodore Dreiser into the area were Communists.

Speaking slowly and steadily, at times reading from an official report he made to the governor, Maj. George M. Chescheir, of the Kentucky National Guard, told the committee of his observation of the Dreiser investigators last fall.

Then, he coupled with the group the names of Harry Gannis and George Maurer, whom he described as "Communists," and quoted at length from a report on Communistic activities in the United States made by the House investigating committee headed by Representative Fish (Republican), New York.

Membership Is Denied.

From New York came a prompt denial that Gannis and Maurer were members of the Dreiser group, in a statement from Alfred Wagenknecht, secretary of the Workers' International Relief. A man named Lansy denied Chescheir's statement that Gannis was editor of the Daily Worker, the official organ of the Communist party in the United States.

In beginning his statement Chescheir put into the record, among other excerpts from his report to Gov. Sampson, who sent him and other guard officers into the area when Dreiser was there, the statement that Dreiser's committee consisted of:

Lays Blame to Communists.

There were two others whose names he did not get, he said. He told the Senate committee, with occasional references to the fish report, that the National Miners Union and Federated Press were Communist affiliates while the American Civil Liberties Union was closely connected.

Communism is being "frustrated" in the coal area, Chescheir said, "and the Communists are using every agency at their command to supplement the work of the National Miners Union."

He blamed most of the agitation and trouble in the area to "an effort on the part of Communism to come into an industrial area," adding the people "resent the various agencies that are trying to force that movement into their section."

Clergymen Charge Kentucky Peonage

Senate Inquiry Demanded by Group Which Made Mine Area Study.

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—An assertion that "nothing but a senatorial investigation will serve to restore the full civil liberties to the citizens" of the Kentucky coal regions was made in a resolution adopted today by the committee of 21 clergymen who memorialized the United States Senate in support of a senatorial investigation of the region.

The resolution was adopted after the four ministers who visited Bell County, Ky., last week had reported their findings.

"The evidence," the resolution said, "points to deplorable infringements of constitutional rights in the coal areas; the right of labor to organize, in spite of operators' claims to the contrary, is either seriously impaired or abrogated; charges of criminal syndicalism are brought on slight provocation against those who assert the rights of the miners; the peril of communism is used to justify violence against visitors and citizens who are friendly to the miners' cause; the economic power of the companies in the ownership of company towns and miners' houses and the extremely low wages paid to the workers creates a condition of essential peonage."

Yale Honors Eugene O'Neill, Jr.

New Haven, Conn., May 13 (A.P.).—Eugene G. O'Neill, jr., son of the playwright, added to his scholastic attainments at Yale today by winning the Noyes-Cutter prize for excellence in interpreting the Greek of the New Testament into modern English. O'Neill, a Phi Beta Kappa member, recently was given a scholarship to begin graduate study in the classics next fall.

AKRON BEATS STATIC AND MOORS SAFELY

Lands at Naval Base After Spending Day Aloft Over San Francisco.

Sunnyvale, Calif., May 13 (A.P.).—The Navy dirigible Akron landed at the West Coast naval base here at 6:55 p. m. (9:55 p. m. E. S. T.) tonight, completing its transcontinental journey begun from Lakehurst, N. J., last Sunday.

Success attended the second attempt of the great craft to moor. Landing crews were left waiting after the first try failed. The dirigible circled a few minutes and returned to the field, where it was finally tied to the mast at 7:05 p. m.

Two crews, totaling about 100 men, manned the "spiders" attached to the port and starboard lines. The ship's powerful winch pulled her to the mast.

Last rays of the setting sun glinted on the Akron's aluminum hull as the mooring was completed.

A few moments later the rear of the ship settled on the "riding out" car and the landing was complete.

Cruising lazily over the San Francisco Bay region, the Akron awaited dusk to moor to the mast.

Commander C. E. Rosendahl decided to spend the day in the air to conserve the precious helium gas that keeps the sky queen afloat.

Though short of helium, due to a loss of one-third of the supply at San Diego, the ship was given so much buoyancy from static generated by friction of her sides against clouds that it could not be safely brought down in the warmth of the day without further release of gas.

Naval officers said the static heated the helium about 16 degrees above the navigator's calculations, greatly increasing the gas expansion and making the ship too buoyant to be landed safely with little ballast aboard.

The cooling temperatures of sunset were awaited for a landing, after futile attempts in the morning to bring the Akron down to the mooring mast.

The Akron idled over the bay area throughout the day. She was the cynosure of tens of thousands of eyes as she appeared over Market street in San Francisco at the noon hour.

SEVEN WILD BARGES CAUSE RESCUE CHASE ON POTOMAC

herd the gravel craft back to their moorings, a battle began to jockey them along toward some safe haven. The first serious hazard was passed when the unit was steered safely underneath and past the abutments of the Arlington Memorial bridge.

The few motorboats and other craft on the river noted the situation and kept well out of harm's way. Police boats chugged alongside and in front of the danger craft. Crowds gathered on and near three great bridges across the Potomac—the Arlington Memorial Highway and the railroad trestle south of the latter.

Then the Highway bridge was reached, with the tugs puffing bravely at their task. The seven-mile current was said by rivermen to be almost unprecedented. High tide was approaching and the river was almost 20 feet above a normal high.

The tugs managed, with narrow escapes, to marshal the thousands of tons of gravel-laden barges past the barrier of the Highway bridge. Now the fireboat, the chunky Firefighter, hove into view on the far side of the Railroad bridge.

The tugs then edged the flotilla of heavy scows over toward the flats and and mud of the Mount Vernon highway project. For a time they seemed to have them in such a position as to be safe for the night.

The Firefighter then had steamed underneath the Railroad bridge and all eyes were turned toward her for any help she might give. Almost before any of the watchers or crews of the craft on the scene realized what was happening, the fireboat was caught broadside by the powerful current in the middle of a turn apart to near the barges and the tugs.

Tragedy Creeps Near.

Irresistibly the puffing fireboat was carried downstream toward one of the abutments of the railroad bridge. A moment later she had warped up against it and was stuck fast. The center of the battle shifted to the fireboat.

Calls had been put into the navy yard for assistance and soon the Tecumseh, heavy naval tug, chugged under the railway span and took the Firefighter in tow. After considerable jockeying, the naval vessel managed to free the fire craft and a cheer went up from the onlookers along the Virginia shore and on the bridges.

At this juncture came the nearest approach to tragedy. One of the barges broke partially loose from the unit and bore down on one of the Smoot Co.'s tugs, threatening to crush it and its small crew against one of the stone abutments of the railway bridge.

Quickly coming to the rescue, the Navy boat, the other tug and two other vessels of the gravel company, shunted the errant barge back on the flats and the endangered tug was saved. It was just after this that Herbert was taken from the barge.

Early yesterday morning the river had reached a high mark of 9 feet 8 inches above normal. The crest of the flood was expected by Weather Bureau officials to arrive between here and Great Falls about noon today.

No particular precautions were being taken along the river. It was not thought that the banks would be overflowed except possibly at especially low places. One disturbing report was received from the Potomac Edison power plant at Williamsport, Md., yesterday. This advice said that the river was rising about a foot hourly.

Reports all along the river from Cumberland down, however, indicated a general fall in the height of the river beginning last night. No further rain was predicted, for the time being, in the Weather Bureau report last night, except in middle West Virginia and this would not affect the Potomac or streams feeding it.

Cumberland Escapes Damage.

At Cumberland, Md., the establishment of flood gates in the Potomac River since the last flood inundated streets there seemed to have prevented a repetition. This was despite the precipitation of 4.92 inches for the week, the heaviest in years.

Early yesterday the river backed up Paca street, in Cumberland, for a short distance, but receded without causing any damage. Reports from Bedford County, Pa., indicated that water had flowed over the spillway of the new Thomas W. Koon impounding dam 9 miles north of Cumberland for the first time. The dam, built at a cost of $800,000, impounds 2,300,000,000 gallons of water and was completed about two months ago.

A number of families were driven from their homes at Keyser, W. Va., according to reports from that town, when high water flooded Water street there. Frank Smith, removing a piano from his home, sustained a broken leg.

Four Inches Fell in Valley.

The river was rapidly returning to its banks from Hancock to its headwaters, and the fall was expected to be rapid at Williamsport during the night.

Approximately 5 inches of rain had fallen since Sunday in the section near the headwaters of the stream, while 4 inches fell in the entire Potomac River Valley, causing the stream to rise rapidly Thursday night and early yesterday, when it was coming up at the rate of a foot an hour.

Aside from inundation of clubhouses along the banks of the stream, the damage has not been great. The heavy rains have, however, proved a great boon to underground streams, which never had recovered from the drought of 1930.

At Cumberland most of the flood gates in the river were opened to carry away high water. Georges Creek was high and the island at Lonaconnig was flooded, washing out gardens. A foot of water early yesterday covered route 28 between Cumberland and Romney, W. Va., at the bridge over Pattersons Creek. On route 50, 2 feet of water blocked traffic at the gap, west of Romney.

Man Missing in Boat.

The rainfall in Washington totaled 3.75 inches since Sunday, bringing the total for the month to 6.28, within .23 of an inch of an all-time May rainfall record.

The Potomac and Shenandoah Rivers at Harpers Ferry were about 19 feet above normal yesterday afternoon and reported still rising. None of the residents close to the river had moved out, but were taking every precaution to avoid being marooned.

William Lancaster, of Harpers Ferry, who started in a boat down the Potomac River from Harpers Ferry to Brunswick on Wednesday evening about 10 o'clock, has not been seen or heard from since, according to reports yesterday at Harpers Ferry.

JAFSIE'S DEALINGS TO GAIN RETURN OF BABY DISCLOSED

about that. We don't want another way. Because we don't like to give up. If you are willing to accept this deal put those in the paper.

"'I accept; money is ready.'"

The note said that within eight hours after the money was paid Condon would be advised where to find the baby.

The advertisement was placed in the paper with the added notation: "They won't let me deliver without getting the package." To this the writer answered that Condon knew the kidnapers' program, that the sleeping suit had been sent and that no further communications would be made.

It added:

"The kidnapping cage was prepared a year ago already so the police will have no look in searching for us and the baby. The baby is well. Tell Mr. Lindbergh his search for the baby will do no good."

Then another advertisement was issued, asking for a simple code.

To this came the reply:

"There is no use to furnish you with a code. You know our program. There is no use to delay. If you don't give us the money by 8th April we will add 30000D and Mr. Lindberg will have to pay 100000D note 70000s. We will keep the baby in ouer safe plase. * * *

"Mr. Lindbergh does note have to worry about the baby. The child is safe."

Further Negotiations.

There were additional negotiations, after which the money—$50,000, instead of $70,000—was paid. One letter was mailed from station "E," at Atlantic avenue, in Brooklyn, and another from station "N," at 203 West Sitxy-ninth street, in New York.

Each letter was addressed to "Mr. Dr. John Condon."

Dr. Condon received on March 8 a letter bearing the strange symbol which later served as the signature for further communications with the supposed kidnapers. The letter asked Dr. Condon to obtain authorization to act as intermediary and to pay over $70,000 as ransom, an increase of $20,000 over the sum asked in the original note left at the Lindbergh home on the night of the kidnaping, according to the Bronx Home News story.

Dr. Condon obtained such authorization. Col. Lindbergh was said to have been convinced that he was in communication with the kidnapers. But Dr. Condon preceeded cautiously. He obtained from Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh two large pins with which the baby's blanket had been fastened to the crib. He also learned from Col. Lindbergh about the child's favorite toys—a lion, an elephant and a double-humped camel. Col. Lindbergh said the baby was able to pronounce the names of these toys clearly.

On the night of March 12 Dr. Condon met the messenger purporting to come from the kidnapers in Woodlawn Cemetery. He carried with him the three toys and the two safety pins. He showed the man the pins and asked him if he knew where they came from.

"Sure I do," the messenger said. "They were used to pin the blanket to the crib."

Asked to See Child.

Dr. Condon pleaded to be taken to the child. He wanted to be sure of identifying the baby. The messenger refused.

"Take me to the baby," Dr. Condon begged. "You have an automobile. Take me there. You are armed. You could shoot me, or your friends could shoot me. I will go alone with you to any place. Let me see the child and I will see that you get your money."

The messenger looked out on Jerome avenue as if trying to see some one in the darkness.

"Your friend is with you?" asked Dr. Condon. "Yes, I might have known. Why not call him? I will go with both of you. Two against one. The only thing I want is the baby."

"No," the messenger is quoted as saying. "I must not call my friend. He would kill me. And I must not bring you back with me."

He assured Dr. Condon, however, that he would send him the baby's overall sleeping garment.

On March 16, according to the Bronx newspaper, Dr. Condon received the suit and it was identified by Col. Lindbergh as the baby's. Then the kidnapers' "program" was outlined in a letter and subsequently the $50,000 ransom was paid over after several other communications with the supposed abductors.

Ransom Sum Reduced.

Mrs. Lindbergh, it was said, was one of the first to urge payment of the money. Col. Lindbergh gave Dr. Condon written authorization to pay $70,000. This was the sum Dr. Condon carried with him to the cemetery at the next meeting with the supposed kidnapers.

"You know," Dr. Condon is quoted as saying to the kidnapers' representative, "the reason why there was delay is that we had a hard time scraping up money. Col. Lindbergh hasn't all the money the newspapers say he has."

"We will be satisfied with $50,000," the messenger is said to have blurted out, nervously.

"That's fine," said Dr. Condon.

"I'll get the money for you right away. Wait."

He returned to the automobile in which Col. Lindbergh was seated, told him of the developments, removed $20,000 from the package containing the ransom money and returned with $50,000, which he paid to the kidnaper, according to the copyrighted story published today.

OUTPUT IN BULK OF 4 VITAMINS HELD NEAR

Two British Scientists Point to Potential Trade Value of Successful Tests.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Cambridge, England, May 13 (A.P.).—Vitamins A, B, C, and D may be produced on an industrial basis if the discoveries of two young Cambridge scientists fulfill initial expectations.

Dr. F. B. Bowden and Dr. C. P. Snow announced today completion of a series of experiments which Sir Frederick Hopkins, president of the Royal Society, pronounced of "major importance" in the study of vitamins.

The scientists were confident they had produced vitamin A from carotene, described as a reddish substance found in carrots, by treating it with ultra-violet rays.

They gathered evidence which led them to believe they had succeeded in identifying that part of the molecule of vitamine B which gives it its biological effects.

A method of distinguishing between opposing theories regarding the nature of vitamin C was another result of their work. This may determine whether the vitamin is made up of hexuronic acid or whether it is derived from narcotine by the action of light.

Increased efficiency in the present method of manufacturing vitamin D, known commercially as calciferol, was presaged by their statement they were in a position to offer vital suggestions from their research.

In the past vitamins have been produced by treating previtamins with mixed rays of light but this method has its disadvantages in that the rays have decomposed the product almost as fast as it was made.

Celebration Today Will Honor Morse

Hoover Will Open World Broadcast on Date of Telegraph Invention.

The one-hundredth anniversary of the invention of the electric telegraph by Samuel F. B. Morse will be celebrated at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon with a world wide broadcast from the law library of Congress and the Supreme Court—the room from which the first telegraph message was sent.

The program will be opened by President Hoover when he throws a switch at the White House, setting a modern electric typewriter in motion. The President will deliver a message which will be heard in Europe. Marconi will listen in from London, while Ambassador Edge and Mrs. Leila Morse Rummel, 80-year-old daughter of the inventor, will hear the program in Paris.

Leila Livingston Morse, the granddaughter of the inventor, will make the principal address from the Capitol. The first words sent over the telegraph, "What Hath God Wrought?" will be broadcast in the Morse code with a Morse key by the dean of Washington telegraphers, Capt. W. A. King, of the War Department Message Center.

10 Years in Prison Given Robber Pair

Men Who Held Up Stores and Taxi Driver Plead Guilty to Charges.

Two men, convicted of three robberies, yesterday were given ten years each in jail by Justice F. D. Letts in District Supreme Court. They are Walter Jordan and James Donovan.

The two held up a grocer, delicatessen store and a cab driver, all in one night, and were arrested at Eighteenth and T streets northwest when their fourth would-be victim stopped his cab in front of a policeman and yelled for help.

Both men stood trial until the Government had unveiled a strong case against them. Before their defense was to have been presented, both entered pleas of guilty. Each has a prison record.

NEW SOUTH WALES PREMIER REMOVED

Provincial Governor Acts on Letter Seeking to Hamper Commonwealth.

Sydney, New South Wales, May 13 (A.P.).—The commonwealth of Australia wound up its dispute with Premier J. T. Lang, of New South Wales, today by removing him from office through the executive authority of Sir Philip Game, the provisional governor.

The governor's demand for Lang's resignation was based specifically on the distribution of a circular letter in which Lang urged the provincial department heads to withhold their local revenues from the commonwealth which moved to collect them some time ago to cover Lang's default on foreign debts.

Sir Philip demanded that the letter be recalled; Lang refused to recall it, and the governor demanded his resignation. Immediately he asked D. S. D. Stevens, head of the United Australian party, to form a provisional government. Stevens accepted. Then the governor ordered a general election to be held as quickly as possible.

Early this year New South Wales defaulted on interest payments due in London and in New York. A month or so later it defaulted on another installment. The commonwealth passed the financial agreement act under which it accepts responsibility for the provincial obligations. The defaulted payments were covered from the commonwealth treasury.

Then the commonwealth moved to seize the income tax revenue in New South Wales. Premier Lang balked that temporarily by locking up the tax file. The commonwealth earmarked other sources of provincial revenue and the high court decided against Lang, who had sued to declare the commonwealth's course unconstitutional.

At that point Lang capitulated, but last week he sponsored a bill in the provincial legislature to levy a 10 per cent tax on mortgages. The provincial governor declared this unconstitutional.

ALFONSO'S FACE CUT BY ANGRY SPANIARD

Exiled Monarch Pardons Veteran Who Tried to Push Him Into Ocean.

Marseilles, France, May 13 (U.P.).—A Spanish laborer attacked exiled King Alfonso of Spain, at the Marseille dock today, and attempted to push the former ruler into the ocean.

When the attempt failed, the laborer struck Alfonso in the face, cutting his cheek, and tried to choke him.

"Alfonso needs a lesson," the attacker, Gonzales Massanares, 38, shouted when he rushed at the former monarch.

Alfonso was startled, but quickly regained his composure and with the aid of his son, Juan, fought off the Spaniard, who was arrested.

The exiled king suffered only a slight cut on his right cheek. His face was scratched from the eye to the jaw.

Only a few persons were on the quay at the time of the attack and the king—unruffled—went immediately to his hotel, where he will remain until he leaves for Paris Sunday.

"I could not bear to see Alfonso traveling luxuriously while the Spanish people are living in misery," Massanares told police later. He faces a maximum of two years in prison, after which he would be subject to deportation.

Later the king asked police to free his assailant.

"I willingly pardon him," Alfonso said.

The police, however, charged the Spaniard with assault and battery. He told them he had served in the disastrous Spanish expeditionary force to Morocco and that Alfonso "was responsible for all the suffering I then endured."

WAR ON DEPRESSION.

The President's compromise plan for emergency relief through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is now under the scrutiny of a special committee of Senate Democrats. An effort is made on all sides to avoid the injection of partisanship into this matter.

Any plan for emergency relief can be questioned, but this is not a suitable time for setting up constitutional objections. The situation demands action; and if this action is within the scope of the powers of the Government it should be taken, no matter how novel the plan may be.

President Hoover's statement of yesterday intimates that the proposed emergency relief may not be necessary. It is a plan to re-establish confidence as well as to extend actual relief. As the country becomes busier with its every-day affairs, and as the reconstructive measures already in operation become more effective on a Nation-wide scale, it may be that States and communities will find their unemployment problems solving themselves. From the people, rather than from the Government, must come the multifarious activities which spell resumption of normal life. Credit and confidence extend like an invisible cable from one individual and one community to another. This cable at present is like a dead wire. It carries no current. The Government is doing its best to charge this cable with the life current of confidence.

By increasing the funds of the Reconstruction Corporation and enlarging its powers, means can be found well within constitutional warrant whereby capital can be employed for vitalizing American industry, agriculture, and labor. The President has in mind a plan whereby projects calling for employment of labor for productive purposes can be financed in part by the Reconstruction Corporation, and in part by private enterprise. Uncle Sam, in short, would lend a hand and impart courage to individuals, corporations and communities which are now paralyzed with fear. The very fact that Uncle Sam is actually present, willing to act as a partner, will be sufficient in most cases to inspire enterprise with the courage and confidence which it now lacks. Banks, secure in the knowledge that the United States is behind enterprise, will lend the funds necessary to start the wheels moving. A thoroughly business-like plan has been evolved. It is novel, and smacks of the urgency of war, but as the President well says, the misery and suffering of the depression are as great as in war, and the Government is as well warranted in fighting the depression as it has to fight a foreign invader. The depression is in fact a grisly invader, none the less deadly because it comes in such a questionable shape.

The war is on—war against the depression. Legislators who measure up to the needs of the hour will not inject partisanship into the conduct of this war. The Commander in Chief is not playing politics, but is facing the foe. He is entitled to the loyal support of every American in the fight for their cause. As the giant forces of the Government are brought into operation against the enemy there can be but one outcome—the depression will be routed. Prosperity will again rule in the United States, restored by the courage of the people and maintained by their industry.

DEATH TO KIDNAPERS.

A little child, paying with his life for the almost universal indifference of Americans to the increase of crime, has become the symbol of the aroused national spirit. All the forces of law and order are now mobilized for the apprehension of the murderers of Col. Lindbergh's child. That the assassins will escape is not probable, in view of the agencies that are now at work. The arm of the United States Government is long, and its search never tires. Death by suicide is the only means by which the murderers can cheat the law.

Granting that everything humanly possible will be done to bring to justice these assassins, what about preventive measures to protect communities and families against similar atrocities?

Congress should not hesitate to enact laws which will hold kidnapers accountable to the United States, as well as to the States in which their crimes are committed. It is virtually impossible to commit a crime of this nature without using instrumentalities of interstate commerce. Under its power to regulate commerce Congress can properly make kidnaping a Federal crime. Any one using the mails, telegraphs, telephones, railroads, buses, automobiles, or other agencies between States, or conspiring in more than one State, for the purpose of kidnaping or extorting a ransom, should answer to the United States. A penalty sufficiently severe to deter the most desperate criminal or criminal gang should be imposed. The death penalty should attach to the person who actually steals a child.

It should be possible to obtain clues to the Lindbergh kidnapers by following up the numerous "go-betweens" who are now known to have been trying to swindle Col. Lindbergh and his friends by pretending to have possession of or access to the child. Among these miscreants was Al Capone, now safely in Atlanta, thanks to a courageous judge.

What about that judge, who faced threats of death in performing his duty to society? He is held up by a Senate committee, which thus far has failed and refused to report his nomination to a higher court. In effect Judge Wilkerson is punished for sending Al Capone to the penitentiary. That is the reward thus far meted out to him by the committee over which Senator Norris presides. Judge Wilkerson has been on the bench many years, and his record is well known. There is no valid reason for delaying action upon his nomination.

The public would feel more reassured as to the desire of the Senate to cooperate with the forces of law and order against gang crime if Judge Wilkerson were placed on the bench to which President Hoover nominated him. There is one judge who has stood the test. There are many others. When they have made good, as Judge Wilkerson has done, the least the Senate can do is to consent to their appointment. The delay in Judge Wilkerson's case has doubtless caused many another judge to wonder whether he, too, would be hazed and humiliated if he should happen to be nominated for a higher post.

"DARK HORSES" EMERGE.

"Dark horses" in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination are beginning to show their colors. The time is ripe to begin trotting them out into the sunshine. Each passing day tightens the political strings that are drawing the major candidates into a deadlock struggle. This means that the "dark horses" will continue to frisk about even more sprightly during the next month.

The grand opening for a "dark horse" has been created by Alfred E. Smith. No one believes that Al will be a serious contender for the nomination himself. His interest in the contest is to nominate a candidate who will be able to command support from all elements of the party and to make a good race against President Hoover. Mr. Smith is convinced that Gov. Roosevelt is not the right candidate, and the primary results in California, Massachusetts and Connecticut indicate that a considerable portion of the Democratic electorate agrees with him.

A few weeks ago political observers thought that Al Smith was merely gathering up what delegates he could so as to be in a position to throw his strength to the strongest candidate and to influence the Democratic platform. That view has now been completely changed. The row between Mr. Smith and Gov. Roosevelt has all the earmarks of a death struggle. It will probably become more acute as the date of the convention approaches. Former Gov. Smith may be expected within the next few weeks to sponsor a definite presidential candidate in opposition to his successor at Albany.

Present indications are that the Smith candidate will be Owen D. Young. Mr. Young has been considered a possible candidate ever since the Democrats began canvassing the strong men of their party about two years ago. Until recently he repudiated every suggestion that he would be in a receptive mood when the proper time came. A few months ago he chided the public for refusing to take him at his word, saying: "I should think that one of the first qualifications for the Presidency would be not only to tell the truth, but to have all people believe that you told the truth." In spite of this apparent attempt to disqualify himself, Mr. Young is the strongest "dark horse" in the field today.

Mr. Young has now abandoned all efforts to keep his name out of political discussion. In fact, he has been hobnobbing with Al Smith and other Democratic leaders in New York and making speeches that have a distinct political flavor. His equivocal support of the equalization fee for the "salvation" of agriculture does not bear the earmarks of a disinterested economist passing judgment upon an issue that is certain to influence the farmer vote.

The significant point, however, is not that Mr. Young is being groomed as a dark horse, but that the "stop-Roosevelt" movement is being supported by an aggressive effort to supplant the New York governor when the convention reaches the deadlock stage. A bitter fight between the conservative East and the liberal West is impending, with two easterners leading the opposing forces. It appears certain that the Democratic nomination will be won only after a terrific fight that will split the party along its old dividing line.

PASS THE TAX BILL.

With a plea for non-partisan action from Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of its finance committee, the Senate began consideration of the tax bill yesterday. The manner in which the Senate responds to this call for unity will determine, to a large degree, the future course of economic recovery throughout the United States.

"Doubt and uncertainty," Senator Smoot said, "are obstructing the processes of rehabilitation and recovery, which the wealth of our resources and the industry and enterprise of our people assure us." There is no possible way by which Congress can remove that uncertainty without balancing the budget. An orderly program of raising taxes and reducing expenditures is absolutely essential as the corner stone of recovery.

So far as its revenue features are concerned, the Senate finance committee bill is probably as fair a means of curbing the deficit as can be devised by hasty legislative processes. There are basic objections to every form of taxation. As pointed out by Senator Smoot, this measure can be justified only because the revenue is absolutely necessary, and because it attempts to distribute the burdens of taxation fairly, to avoid hardships and impose a minimum of impediments to economic recovery. The Senate may be expected to analyze every provision with extreme care, but it is questionable whether the basic structure of the bill can be substantially changed without loss of revenue or the imposition of undue burdens.

Incomes are taxed in this bill to the maximum that is consistent with sound policy. The proposed increase in revenue from this source is 133 per cent. Higher rates would drive capital into tax-exempt securities. The excise and miscellaneous taxes are placed on non-essentials and luxuries. A conscientious attempt has been made to restrict the new taxes to those individuals who are able to pay.

Every group and every industry that is taxed cries out against the bill. That is inevitable. If the requests of every one were granted, there would be no taxes, no revenue and no Government. Compromise and the sacrifice of individual preferences are absolutely necessary to the public welfare. If the Senate attacks its problem with that attitude the tax bill can be passed in a week.

The State Department has discovered that Washington was the first President. This momentous finding gives hope that the department may yet discover the First President's address about entangling alliances.

In view of the manner in which Senator Harrison has been hobbling around the Capitol this week, a new simile is in order: As dangerous as a Pat Harrison putt.

Mr. Borah says conditions in Europe are "going to be beyond the power of human language to express," but he will keep on trying to express them, just the same.

Circuses are reported to be cutting Washington off their itinerary now that Huey Long is in the Senate.

WINGED BLESSINGS

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

There are beauties and blessings in nature which enrich and ennoble human existence. And these are free gifts from the hand of God. They are of infinite variety—infinite in their appeal. But among them all forever must rank high the singing, soaring, fluting, warbling, busy comrades who so buoyantly and joyously greet us when winter has retired to his boreal caves and spring once more dances in the fields and on the hills.

With April's sheen and flowers and showers the birds most sweetly and triumphantly drench the world with floods of melody unknown to other scenes and season. In these Midwestern valleys is to be found one of the supreme paradises of earth—a paradise which our innumerable species of winging life and adoration of Life's Author contribute most greatly to the loveliness and harmonies of existence.

The migrants again are here. The wood thrush challenges the greatest among the divas. The bluebird's warble now mingles with the sweet music of childhood's laughter. The raucous crying of jays and calling of crows but adds to the charm of finer minstrelsies. The chewink and sparrows chatter, or patter, their prayers. The vireo woos us from treetops, jealous, perhaps, of the glorious cardinal, whose vibrant notes now ring out with ecstatic fervor. At our feet the brown-and-russet robin cocks a beady eye and seems to ask, "Is life sweet and dear?"

And so they wing on scented winds, these friends of ours—these blessings of life—or they hop about, seeking that which each mortal must seek if he would be happy—a mate, and sustenance for themselves and for bairnies or birdies born, or for those soon to come from life's heaven-haven of delectable dreams.

Convention Preparations.

POST HASTE

If Col. Lindbergh will now head a Nation-wide organization to help rid the United States of the disgrace of organized crime it will be the most inspiring leadership possible.

The universal sorrow and sympathy for the bereaved parents at Hopewell is only equaled by the fervent desire that justice be done. Americans have been awakened to the necessity of taking whatever steps may be necessary to end the menace of the professional criminal.

It is shocking, in view of all the many manifestations of gangster depredations, that a crime like the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby was necessary thoroughly to arouse public sentiment. Terrible as the sacrifice is, it will not have been entirely in vain if the American conscience is now spurred into taking effective action.

Nothing can be done for the sorrowing mother and father beyond extending infinite feelings of compassion and pity for their irreparable loss, unless it be a demonstration that an aroused Nation is determined to rescue society from the minatory terrors of such crimes.

Whether or not it develops that gangdom perpetrated the Lindbergh outrage, it is the example of these criminals that is responsible for such atrocities. Their systematic operations have gained such a powerful hold that the most complete cooperation of all good citizens with the constituted authorities of law and order will be required to stamp them out.

Organized crime has reached such proportions that only organized opposition can successfully combat it. It is high time that officials of every rank should know that public sentiment not only supports them but demands that effective measures be taken and at once to restore security, not only to the home circle, but to life, property and business operations generally. Col. Lindbergh can be a valuable factor in making manifest this determination of the American people.

PAUL HUDSON.

Congress Bent on Ruin.

Chicago Tribune.

Congress refuses to make any substantial attack upon the costs of government. Item after item in the economy bill has been struck out by the House. The bill was prepared by a committee which should have set a billion dollars of savings as its objective and instead undertook the modest task of frying out only $200,000,000 of fat. Of its proposals, $117,000,000 was reinstated in the budget in a week of debate, and in the same period only $39,000,000 was retained, a ridiculously inadequate sum.

While the House has refused to cut the costs of government, the Senate has been busily at work finding ways to increase taxation. The combined efforts of the two houses, if persisted in, can only reduce the Nation to chaos.

Senate Corrected.

Kansas City Star.

The question of whether the Senate has a right to change its mind, under given conditions, has now been answered. The Senate, important as it is, does not have that right, under given conditions. The United States Supreme Court has said so in an opinion sustaining George Otis Smith in the office of chairman of the Federal Power Commission. The Senate had confirmed the President's appointment of Smith and two others as members of the commission. Nearly everybody had forgotten the case. But the Senate must not forget that the Supreme Court has ruled that, when an appointment is confirmed and the office assumed, the Senate, no matter how it feels, can do nothing about it.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY EAR LOUISE: Yesterday, you said, your English teacher asked the class how many of them had read "The Good Earth," and you were able to answer truthfully that you had just completed it.

Your answer wasn't misleading. I can testify that you began reading at the front of the book and somehow got to the end.

But I'm sure you didn't read it. You never have read a book—nor has one person in any thousand selected at random.

People no longer read books. They skim, scan, skip and guess at the big words. And that isn't reading.

If you were listening to a speaker and four words in each five were unintelligible would you say that you heard his speech?

Or if you attempted Dumas in the original and found your French so inadequate that most of the words had no meaning for you, would you call that reading?

Where can you draw the line? What percentage of the words in a book must you comprehend before you can boast of "reading" it? Fifty per cent, or ninety?

You don't hear a message unless you hear all of it. And you aren't truly reading an author's message unless you understand every word he uses.

I have told you that any youngster who knows how to read can get an education at home, but he can't do it by skipping words he doesn't understand. He must get the dictionary habit.

No one small head can hold all of the words in the dictionary, for there are more than 180,000. But you can at least absorb the ones in common use among civilized people.

Words are something more than vehicles of speech. You think with them, also. And it is almost impossible to think beyond your vocabulary.

People stammer and stutter and at last resort to current slang phrases or profanity because they haven't sufficient stock of words to make their thought clear even to themselves.

You have learned something of Latin and French. Please learn English, too. Chasing a strange word to its lair is just as much fun as chasing foxes after you get the habit. And every one you catch makes your mind that much richer. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Slamming the President.

Schenectady Union-Star.

Realizing that an election is pending, Democrats fear lest President Hoover receive too great credit for the constructive legislation he initiated and whose enactment he secured by getting together the leaders in both parties. There should be credit enough to go around. No constructive legislation, however beneficial, could have been made effective without the cooperation of Congress. The President can not enact; he can only approve legislation and execute laws. The public must not be misled if forthcoming events at Washington assume the form that is forecast in the dispatches. When you begin to see the headlines screaming that whatever good has come out of the present session of Congress is due to the Democrats, and whatever bad that comes out is due to the Republicans, recall that there is an election coming, and the "boys" have to manufacture differences to make the campaign interesting. The administration need not fear that the country will not understand, and give credit where credit is due. The mere fact that they are training their guns on the President is enough to indicate that he has done something.

A Few Questions Still Unsettled.

Kansas City Times.

At a mock convention the students of Western Reserve University have nominated Newton D. Baker as the Democratic candidate for President. In a note of thanks Mr. Baker has expressed his appreciation of the convention's action. But there is not a word about his platform or a specific statement that he accepts the nomination. Thus the really important matters are left in doubt and the public mind is as hazy as ever as to where Mr. Baker stands. The other Democratic candidates, above all, would like to know something definite so that they could make their plans accordingly. The students should hold a serious convention and draw Mr. Baker out.

"Unheard of," but Impressive.

New York Evening Post.

And now comes another "unheard of" happening:

A congressional committee voted down a pension bill.

The ways and means committee of the House recently decided 15 to 10, to report adversely a group of bonus bills, including Representative Patman's proposal to hand over $2,400,000,000 to the service men and to pay for it through issuing fiat money.

Such a thing has never been known. Only the pressure of an awakened public sentiment would have forced it.

The country, to use the President's words, is beginning to "reflect its will in legislation." Congress had better look out!

Not Likely.

Thomaston Times.

It's a foregone conclusion that the Democrats never will win a Nobel peace prize.

Where Loyalty Is Found.

Hartford Courant.

The country has shown a far better understanding of all that is involved in this bonus proposal than has been shown by many members of Congress. Especial credit is due to those members of the American Legion who have faithfully reflected the action taken against the bonus at the Detroit convention. They have been willing to stand up and be counted. They have put their patriotism and the good of the country above every personal consideration. They truly represent the spirit in which they served the colors. On those that have denounced these real leaders of the Legion let the mantle of charity fall. However misguided their purpose, allowances must be made for the straitened circumstances in which many of them find themselves in this period of depression, circumstances no different, however, from those in which others equally deserving of consideration are placed through no fault of their own.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Montreal Correspondent Says Prosperity Is Waiting for Us.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos the present depression, my mind reverts to an incident in 1893, when I was interested in building a railroad in Maine, the Kingfield and Dead River Railroad. When the road was about half completed, the panic of 1893 arrived and it was next to impossible to raise money, never mind how good the security might be; for a time the banks simply would not loan money. I called a meeting of our directors, which was held in the boardroom of the Maine Central Railroad in Portland. Our directors consisted of Weston Lewis, Varnum B. Mead and the writer. Arthur Sewall, president of the Maine Central Railroad, and Payson Tucker, vice president and general manager, were present representing the Maine Central interest.

The meeting was called to discuss ways and means for the completion of the road at that time or its abandonment till times improved. If any one has any idea that the present depression is, as some have thoughtlessly said, the worst in history, I can only feel amused when I think of the summing up of the situation by Payson Tucker at that meeting. I was so impressed with what he said that his words, which I can repeat verbatim, are as fresh in my memory as if they had been spoken yesterday. He said, "If conditions continue as they are now, every railroad in the United States will be bankrupt in six months, and we might as well all be in the same boat, but if on the other hand we have a change for the better by that time, and we complete the road now, we will then be all ready for business when the good times arrive." That short speech by Payson Tucker decided the issue; the road was completed, and by that time we had all the business we could handle. There is a lesson for us today in the wisdom of Payson Tucker.

Having weathered three or four panics in my time, I have no hesitation in saying that prosperity is now simply waiting for us to go out and meet it half way. Don't keep on waiting; if both wait we shall never meet. If all of those who have the money, and there are a sufficient number who have, would go out and buy as freely as they did in 1929, the depression would soon be a thing of the past.

"Buy, build, repair and stock up now!" and by so doing save 30 to 50 per cent, and then advertise.

Montreal, Canada.

A Statement From the Junior League Regarding Out-of-Town Exhibitors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For some time the Junior League heard criticism by Washington merchants of its policy of renting space in its clubroom for out-of-town exhibits. About a month ago we received a letter from the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, stating very strongly their dissatisfaction. This was very distressing to us, and we felt it called for a statement of fact and action in the best interest of all.

The Junior League is of the City of Washington and for the City of Washington. Our idea in renting space to out-of-town exhibitors was in that way to raise money so that we might have more to give to our local charities. We never considered entering into any form of competition with our Washington merchants, or causing them any hardships; indeed, we would prefer to cooperate with them and help them, as we count on their support and sympathy when we endeavor to raise money for our philanthropic projects. We feel that the good will of our local merchants is of far greater importance to us than any sum of money, large or small, which we might realize from a plan which antagonized them.

Therefore, on May 9, the Junior League, by popular vote, decided to abolish this former policy and give up entirely out-of-town commercial exhibits. We will seek other methods of raising money, and will bank heavily upon the friendship and confidence of our local merchants to aid us in carrying on our work for local charities and hospitals and among the unemployed, and we trust that, in this definite action in answer to their letter, we are indeed living up to the title we so proudly bear.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE OF THE CITY OF WASHINGTON.

Boston Herald.

It is sometimes difficult to make out whether the two major parties in Congress are trying to trim expenses or only each other.

JUST FOLKS

VIEWPOINT.

We built this life with eyes and care
And the machine we call the mind,
And each with either hopes or fears
Colors whatever he may find.

Upon great streams of printer's ink
The thoughts of many mortals flow,
And as they see and as they think
They give us happiness or woe.

One finds the bitterness of strife,
With all its anguish, loss and pain,
Making a tragedy of life,
To him all song and mirth is vain.

Another looks about and sees
Men smiling though they've suffered much,
Giving to common tragedies
A graceful and courageous touch.

Some see the filth where roses grow,
And pass by virtue, sin to find,
And some, in spite of hurt and woe,
Retain a happier state of mind.

METHODISTS OFFER PLAN FOR WAR DEBT

Would Use Present Economic Situation as Basis; War on Liquor Change.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 13 (A.P.).—Settlement of World War debts based on present economic conditions and reduction or cancellation of reparations were urged today in a report approved by the committee of the state of the church of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The report, subject to action of the general conference in session here, said such action was "in the interest of prosperity and peace of the world." It also urged entrance of the United States into the League of Nations "with such Senate reservations as shall harmonize the constitution of the league with the Paris peace pact."

It also declared for changes in the naturalization law to permit "conscientious objectors" to become citizens, and for revision of article 231 of the Versailles Treaty, charging Germany with sole guilt for the World War.

Peace Moves Commended.

The report, which was drawn up by the subcommittee on international affairs headed by Dr. Ernest F. Tittle, of Evanston, Ill., went on to commend President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson for furthering the cause of peace by taking the position that "our Government will not recognize any situation, treaty or agreement which may be brought about by violation of treaty agreements."

Earlier in the day, the conference took action to send representatives to Chicago to urge that neither major political party adopts platform planks containing repeal, nullification or referendum plans for the eighteenth amendment.

Action to send representatives of the church to both the Democratic and Republican party conventions for that purpose was approved today by the General Conference in a resolution which directs the Board of Bishops to appoint a committee to work in cooperation with the Prohibition National Board of Strategy for a dry stand by both parties.

The resolution named "resubmission of the eighteenth amendment" as one goal of the wets in party platforms which will be opposed. It also named the "wet press and self-seeking politicians" as forces working to create sentiment against the prohibition laws.

Considered Retired Bishops.

The conference also considered legislation affecting the status and pension of a retired bishop. The proposal was regarded as a further move on the part of one group of delegates to restrict the power and privileges of the Board of Bishops, which they assertedly believe has been out of keeping with church principles.

The conference blocked several attempts to start balloting for two new bishops to consider the legislation, but finally adjourned without deciding the question.

The proposed legislation, stressing the fact that the bishopric is an office, not a religious order, provides that a retired bishop shall lose his Episcopal rank automatically and be returned to the conference of which he is a member. His pension would continue the same as that paid by the conference to its retired ministers instead of the $3,000 allowance bishops now have.

The pension provision would mean a reduction upward from 50 per cent in Episcopal pension.

Action Expected Shortly.

A sizeable group in the conference appeared to favor such a ruling to such a degree that one conference chairman said the delegates were "revolutionary" in their attitude toward the Episcopacy.

Action on the matter is expected tomorrow or early next week. If approved, it will not affect the existing board of bishops, but only those newly elected.

Once the question is decided, balloting for new bishops will start unless the rigid economy group carries out its threat to ask the conference to eliminate two additional Episcopal areas and thereby obviate the necessity for any elections.

The failure of this additional abolition move to come up today led conference observers to doubt that it would materialize later.

Arlington Schools Close June 3.

Friday, June 3, was voted as the day to close the public schools of Arlington County by the county school board at its meeting yesterday.

Blue Bus Line Writ Blocks Alexandria

City Restrained From Interference With Service to Washington.

In the United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Norfolk, Judge Luther B. Way yesterday granted a temporary injunction restraining the city authorities of Alexandria from interfering with the operation of the Alexandria-Washington buses, better known as the Blue Line, upon application of Charles Henry Smith, attorney for that company.

This act is of great interest in Alexandria, as it stops the city police department from interfering with the operation through the city of the Blue bus. A recent ordinance, known as Ordinance 115, passed by the city council, would after midnight tonight prohibit any but a bus having a Class A certificate from the State Corporation Commission operating over any route but direct through Washington street to Washington. The Red Line, or Washington, Barcroft & Alexandria line, is the only one having such a certificate.

The Commuters Association of Alexandria held a meeting recently and passed a resolution requesting city council to repeal the ordinance, and at a public meeting accorded the association and citizens generally, council took the matter under consideration, but at a special meeting held the next day they refused to reconsider their action by a vote of 3 to 2.

BAPTISTS' INCOME IS OFF $4,870,892

Report to Convention, Now Meeting in Florida, Shows Gains, Otherwise.

St. Petersburg, Fla., May 13 (A.P.).—Membership increases in all departments and heavy losses in financial contributions last year in the Southern Baptist Convention were reported today by E. P. Alldredge, statistical secretary, before the annual church meeting here.

Gifts to all purposes of the church decreased $4,870,892 to $32,618,125, while church membership increased 84,366 to 3,944,566 and Sunday school enrollment climbed 113,727 to 2,952,910.

"With the exception of our miserable and tragic fall off in contributions, both to the local work of the churches and to missions and benevolences," Mr. Alldredge said, "Southern Baptists achieved in 1931 one of the greatest records in all their history."

The value of all property of the church was set at $217,066,775, a shrinkage of $912,341.

The convention today received the telegraphic greetings and best wishes of President Hoover.

The President expressed his "deep appreciation of the importance to the national well-being of the service of the churches in the spiritual life of the Nation."

"I do pray," he continued, "that the deliberations of your convention may be fruitful of wise counsels for the benefit of our country."

"It's a great thing to have a Christian President," was the comment of Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, president of the convention, as he acknowledged receipt of the message.

200,000 Letters Sent In Memorial Cachet

Approximately 200,000 letters went through the Alexandria postoffice on Thursday, in the special cachet for the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Association Temple dedication.

The mail was for every State in the Union and for many foreign lands. There were 30,000 pieces of air mail and 600 registered in the special cachet.

Alexandria Poster Wins Contest.

Mrs. Leroy E. Peabody, poppy chairman of the Alexandria American Legion Auxiliary Unit, was notified yesterday that in the poppy posters submitted from Alexandria, the poster of Harold Siegel was selected by the judges as the winner of the first prize in the State contest.

YOUTH EXONERATED ON SHOOTING CHARGE

Aubrey Hardin Freed Also in Assault Case; Man Cleared in Death.

A Virginia youth accused of shooting a dry agent and another man indicted for manslaughter in connection with an auto accident were freed yesterday by juries in Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

Aubrey Hardin, charged with assault with intent to kill and assault and battery on Agent H. D. McMunn, was freed when the jury decided there was no evidence to show that he fired the shotgun charge which struck the agent in the face. Mr. McMunn was leading a raid on a still near Crooma, Md., last fall, when he was wounded. Hardin was defended by Attorneys J. Wilson Ryon and John S. White.

The other acquittal was that of Henry Clay Inemer, jr., of Baltimore, who was alleged to have caused the death in an auto crash of Preston Eugene Ruby, of Bradbury Heights, Md. The accident happened at Beltsville, Md., last fall, when Inemer's truck and the car in which Ruby was riding skidded into one another. Attorneys Lansdale G. Sasscer and Arthur C. Keefer defended Inemer on the manslaughter charge.

The case of Lomas Gordon, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Richard Dean, was continued until the next term of court. Mr. Dean, who lived in Washington, fell out of an auto driven by Gordon when it swerved suddenly near Silver Hill. Court will convene again in Marlboro on Monday.

Lone Policeman Takes 2 Rum Cars

Three Men Captured After Chase by Silver Spring Law Agent.

Policeman Charles Barnes, of the Silver Spring substation, Montgomery County police, yesterday captured three alleged rumrunners and two automobiles, single-handed, after an exciting chase on Colesville pike from Burnt Mills to Silver Spring.

Policeman Barnes saw the two cars on the road traveling at a high rate of speed and gave chase. He managed to get by the "blocking" car and alongside the liquor-laden one. Two men in the car jumped out and ran across the fields of the Indian Spring Golf Club. Barnes followed and caught Charles H. Hay colored, of Baltimore, and put him into the police car and started for Silver Spring when he sighted the blockading car and again gave chase. In this car he arrested Morris Boswell, colored, and Lee White, colored, both of Washington. Boswell had gone back to the road and was picked up by White, police say.

Ray and Boswell were charged with transportation of intoxicating liquor with intent to sell and with operating with fictitious markers and White was charged with speeding.

FAIRFAX 4-H CLUBS HOLD RALLY TODAY

Program to Depict Events in Life of Washington; Pageant Is Feature.

The annual rally day of the 4-H Clubs of Fairfax County will be staged today in the fair grounds at Fairfax, in the morning, followed by a pageant on the lawn of the Fairfax School in the afternoon.

The club members will be dressed in colonial costume and the affair will depict events in the life of George Washington as part of the Bicentennial program of the county. The costumes have been made by the clubs under the direction of Miss Sarah E. Thomas, county home demonstration agent. Miss Thomas, assisted by R. Walton Moore, prepared the sketch of the pageant.

The annual celebration will open at 11 o'clock in the fair grounds by taking the club pledge and singing songs. George E. Farrell, director of 4-H Club work in the Central States, will address the gathering on "The 4-H Club Program." A novelty program will be presented by several of the clubs and the Herndon 4-H Club, followed by a picnic lunch.

The pageant will open at 2 o'clock on the lawn of the Fairfax School. The 4-H Clubs council plans to honor Washington will be portrayed by the Floris and Pohick Clubs, with the other clubs taking part as follows: Washington as a schoolboy, Potters Hill; Washington the surveyor, Clifton; Washington as an Indian leader, Oakton; making the first plow at Mount Vernon, Fairview; Washington the farmer, McLean; Betsy Ross making the first flag of the United Colonies, Baileys Cross Roads; planting of thirteen chestnuts at Fredericksburg, Lorton; Washington bids his mother farewell, Vienna; the inauguration of Washington as the First President, Herndon.

Family prayer at Mount Vernon, Woodlawn; Washington keeping accurate accounts, Franconia; after the hunt, Lee-Jackson; outdoor life of Washington, McLean; Washington freeing bond girl in Alexandria court, Burke; home life at Mount Vernon, Floris; children presenting Mrs. Washington birthday flowers, Fort Humphreys; friend helping Nellie Custis make wedding dress, Forestville R. A. H. Club; wedding of Nellie Custis, Forestville; the ball after the wedding, Fairfax, and planting a 4-H clover in Washington's friendship garden, Annadale.

The pageant will close with singing of "America the Beautiful" by all the clubs. Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, will make the announcements in connection with the celebration.

Women Select Delegates.

Three delegates to represent the Oxon Hill Women's Community Club at the meeting of the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs have been appointed, in addition to the president and director, who are automatically delegates. Mrs. Henry Kerby is the president and Mrs. W. C. Jones the director, the other delegates being Mrs. Charles Grimes, Mrs. R. W. Brooke and Mrs. William Standbach. Alternates are Mrs. R. J. Campbell, Mrs. W. G. Breen and Mrs William W. Cohen.

Alexandrian to Tour Historic Homes Today

The second annual tour of historic and interesting homes in Alexandria, under the auspices of the Rector's Aid Society of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mrs. Thomas B. Cochran, president, will be held today, beginning at 10 o'clock this morning. Fourteen homes have been listed and the interesting studio of Miss Blondell Malone, of 130 South Fairfax street, has been added.

This annual tour, conducted for the benefit of the church, is the only time that these homes are open to the public, and the attendance was so great last year that the society was requested to make it an annual event.

DUNCAN'S LAWYERS ENTER MORE PLEAS

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Appearing in the Circuit Court of Arlington County yesterday, Attorneys Amos C. Crounse, of Arlington County, and Lee P. Harlow, of Washington and Alexandria, counsel for William H. Duncan, former county clerk, indicted on charges of grand larceny of public funds, filed additional pleas in abatement to the indictment claiming it illegal. In addition to the 15 already filed the pleas contend that the grand jury summoned and sworn to find the indictment was illegal and the indictment is null and void because H. L. Simcoe, as a grand juror, was not at the time a citizen of Virginia.

Counsel further claim that the grand jury, consisting of J. J. Flaherty, Mr. Simcoe, Louis Storck, Homer Bauserman, V. W. Buknight, T. J. Crack, J. Eustace Crux, A. E. Dye, J. J. Flanagan, L. M. Kelley, Leonard King, F. C. Imboden, Gordon Marcey, W. W. Rucker, and T. J. Manning was not summoned and sworn in accordance with law in that the members were not properly apportioned among the three magisterial districts.

The pleas were received by Judge Walter T. McCarthy and time for argument was continued until the June term.

Police Hunting Robbers Of Falls Church Bank

Arlington County police continued their search yesterday for the two bandits who held up A. H. Barbor, manager of the East Falls Church branch of the Falls Church Bank, Thursday afternoon, escaping with $1,700 after slugging Mr. Barbor with a gun and binding his feet and wrists.

Up to a late hour last night no arrests had been made. Washington and Fairfax County police are aiding the county authorities in their search.

TRURO PARISH PLANS 2 SPECIAL SERVICES

Programs in Pohick Church to Be Held Tomorrow and Next Sunday.

In commemoration of the bicentennial of Truro Parish, special services have been arranged for the next two Sundays in historic Pohick Church, on the Washington-Richmond Highway, in Fairfax County, Va. The Rev. C. A. Langston, rector of the church, will have charge of the services tomorrow and next Sunday.

Tomorrow morning the Mount Vernon Ladies Association will attend in a body, as is their annual custom. A corporate communion of regent and vice regents will be given. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Berryman Green, D. D., dean emeritus of the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia. He will speak on "George Washington, the Churchman."

A special candle light service will be held in the evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, with a vested choir trained and directed by Lyman McCrary, organist of the Emanuel Church in Alexandria.

On Sunday morning, May 22, in commemoration of the Bicentennial, a historical address will be given by the Rev. C. A. Langston, and the special candle-light service, under the direction of Mr. McCrary, will be repeated.

Beginning this morning and continuing through May 23, the Wigmore collection of water color views of the colonial churches of Virginia, together with maps and explanatory notes, will be on free exhibition in the new Pohick vestry house. This notable collection was first exhibited in the Library of Congress. The exhibition at Pohick will be arranged by Dr. Roberts, chief of prints in the Library.

Double Victory Is Won By Mason High School

George Mason High School, Alexandria, scored a double victory yesterday afternoon on the Alexandria High School grounds, when in the third annual competitive drill between the local company and the Washington-Lee High School company, and also the Girl Cadets of both schools, boys and girls of George Mason carried off the honors.

A recent competitive drill was held between the Alexandria and George Mason companies, and the latter won, thereby winning the place of competing for the local cadet corps against the Arlington county school's winning company. Col. Clarence Deems, jr., U. S. A. retired, professor of military science and tactics in the Alexandria high schools, stated yesterday that as a result of contest yesterday later appointments in the commissioned rank will occur.

Takoma Park Man Is Missing.

Montgomery County police yesterday were asked to look for Xenocrates Katsaros, 37 years old, of 310 Tulip avenue, Takoma Park, Md., who left his home Sunday morning to go to work and has not been heard of since.

Tour of Alexandria Homes Will Be Conducted Today.

The second annual tour of interesting homes in Alexandria, sponsored by the Rector's Aid Society of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, will be held today, with the homes open from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. and again from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Members of the society will receive the visitors at the homes, and in the afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, without extra charge, tea will be served at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert South Barrett, 404 Duke street. This house was at one time the residence of Richard Bland Lee, the brother of "Light Horse" Harry Lee, and is joined on the west by the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Rathbone Smith, the latter the daughter of the late Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, Mrs. Smith keeping open the interesting home of her mother, who was an international character.

The tour lists fourteen houses, among them the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bryant, northeast corner of Washington and Oronoco streets, the house in which Benjamin Hallowell conducted his famous school, where Robert E. Lee prepared for entrance into West Point, while to the east another house to be open, now unoccupied, is the house in which Gen. Lee lived with his mother while attending school next door.

Col. Charles B. Moore, U. S. A., and Mrs. Moore will open their home, 207 Prince street, a house erected in 1752 and owned for twenty years by the Fairfaxes of Belvoir. Another pre-Revolutionary house, owned in 1765 by Col. John West, now the home of Mrs. Anna Farrar, at 219 South Lee street, attracts interest, as does also the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Brown, 123 Prince street, an early colonial house restored.

Mr. E. Hodgson Smart, well-known painter, has returned to the Powhatan after passing several months in Bermuda.

Mrs. Houghton P. Metcalf, of Providence, R. I., is at the Carlton for a short stay.

Mrs. Arch F. Coleman, who has been the guest of her husband's parents, the Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. Arch Coleman, at the Broadmoor, left Tuesday for Minneapolis, Minn., where she will join Mr. Coleman before returning to their home in Mexico City.

Christian Science Churches

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The text is from Romans 8:16.

"The Spirit itself beareth witness with out spirit, that we are the children of God."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Therefore, fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, saith the Lord; neither be dismayed, O Israel: For lo, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity: and Jacob shall return, and shall be in rest, and be quiet, and none shall make him afraid. For I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee" (Jeremiah 30-10,11).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Immortal man was and is God's image or idea, even the infinite expression of infinite Mind, and immortal man is coexistent and coeternal with that Mind. He has been forever in the eternal Mind, God; but infinite Mind can never be in man, but is reflected by man.

"The spiritual man's consciousness and individuality are reflections of God. They are the emanations of Him who is life, truth and love. Immortal man is not and never was material, but always spiritual and eternal."

BUILDING CEREMONY ANNIVERSARY IS SET

Concordia Lutheran Church, Built in 1892, Plans Special Service.

Sunday, May 15, 1932, was a great day for the members of Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church, Twentieth and G streets northwest. On this day the new church was dedicated. This new edifice was erected to take the place of the first church building, which had been erected in 1868 and which had been outgrown by the needs of the congregation.

The movement for a new building was started in 1888. Necessary preliminary steps, however, prevented the immediate consummation of the plans. A new parsonage was erected in 1888 to permit the tearing down of the old parsonage to provide the additional ground space needed for an enlarged church.

Further, in 1889 a building was erected to serve for the use of the Sunday school and other church organizations. This has been known as the chapel and was used for church services during the building of the church proper. Finally, under the leadership of the Rev. Ernst Drewitz, work on the church edifice was begun in the fall of 1891 and completed the following May, when the dedication took place, 40 years ago.

The anniversary will be celebrated in the morning services tomorrow. The Rev. Ernst Drewitz, pastor of Concordia Church at the time of dedication, has sent a message of congratulation which will be read to the congregation in both the German and the English service. It is further expected that the Rev. Dr. Paul A. Menzel, who was one of the speakers at the dedication and later served the church as pastor for 23 years, will bring a word of greeting in person.

The Rev. Charles Enders, the present pastor, will preach at both services. Holy Communion will be observed in connection with both the German and the English services.

On Thursday the Concordia Missionary Society will observe its thirty-fifth anniversary. It was organized May 31, 1897, by the Rev. Dr. Paul A. Menzel. The meeting will be held at 11 a. m. A special program will be prepared for the occasion.

Methodist Home Body to Give Tea

Board's Anniversary Fete to Be Attended by Ministers' Wives.

The board of managers of the Methodist Home for the Aged will give a colonial tea on Wednesday afternoon, from 3 to 5 o'clock, at the home, 4901 Connecticut avenue northwest, in observance of the forty-second anniversary of the founding of the institution. A program of entertainment will be held in the evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. J. S. Nuber is chairman of arrangements for the two functions. Assisting her are Mrs. Frank Campbell, Mrs. Edward M. Hall, Mrs. John R. Wright and Mrs. Harry Underwood. Wives of all Methodist ministers in the District are expected to attend.

At the affair, the slogan, "Make the Home a Memorial to your Mother," will be stressed, according to Mrs. Harry Hoskinson, president of the board. Rooms now available as memorials are listed by Mrs. Hoskinson as follows: Lounge, $2,500; dining room, $2,500; infirmary suite, $1,500; nurse's suite, $1,500; room in the infirmary, $500; double bedroom, endowed, $800, and single bedroom, endowed, $500. Officials of the institution are seeking to increase the endowment fund and establish additional memorials.

Widow of Philosopher Will Deliver Lecture

"The Rose Cross Philosophies as Related to Life—Death—Immortality" will be the topic Mrs. Max Heindel, of Oceanside, Calif., will treat in an illustrated free lecture at the Carlton Hotel on Monday at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Max Heindel is the widow of Max Heindel, internationally known Christian philosopher, and is continuing his work. The Order of the Rose Cross Philosophies is the authorized representative for the present period of the ancient Rosicrucian Order, of which Christian Rosenkreuz is the head. The order was founded in the thirteenth century. The order, in 1908, authorized the formation of the fellowship by Max Heindel for the purpose of carrying the western wisdom teachings to the western people.

Dr. Dudley Will Preach At Calvary Methodist

Dr. H. M. Dudley will preach at Calvary Methodist Church tomorrow morning. His subject is "Carry On." In the evening Dr. W. L. Darby will preach. His subject is: "Wanted: Christian Leaders."

Dr. Mark Depp, the pastor, is attending the sessions of the general conference of his church.

Church Group Names June Festival Head

At the parish council meeting of the Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration last evening, Weldon Price was appointed chairman of the Bicentennial June Festival.

Bishop James E. Freeman will administer the rite of confirmation to a class on Sunday evening, May 22.

COLORED CHURCHES.

Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, D. D., of the Temple at Cleveland, Ohio, will address students and friends of Howard University at the religious service tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Andrew Rankin Chapel.

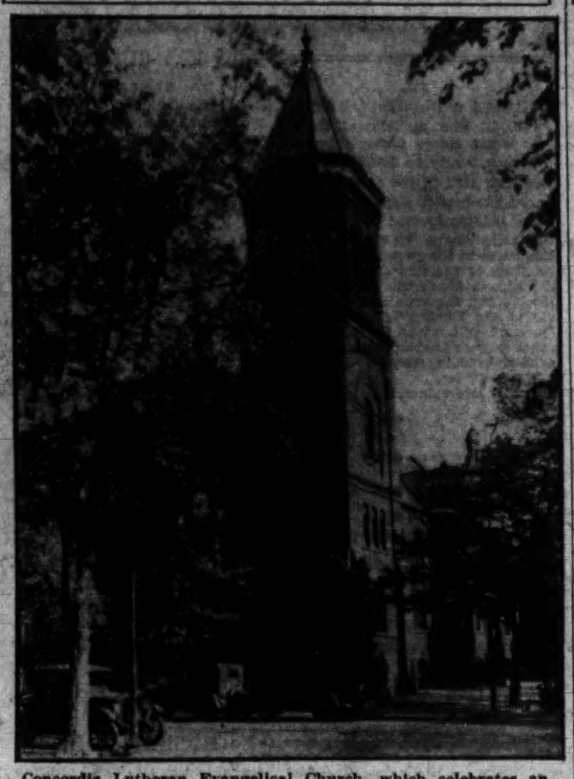
The Rev. R. W. Brooks, pastor of Lincoln Congregational Temple, will speak tomorrow on the subject: "One Way to Solve America's Problems." Newly elected officers of the church will be installed at the evening service, when Dean D. Butler Pratt, of Howard University, will preach.

Dr. James L. Finn, pastor of the Goodwill Baptist Church, has chosen for his morning theme tomorrow "The Decoration of the Wooden Cross."

The Rev. William D. Jarvis, pastor of the New Bethel Baptist Church, preaches tomorrow on "God, Who Giveth Cleanness of Teeth."

"The Christian Religion a Necessity" is the theme of the Rev. J. L. S. Holloman at the Second Baptist Church, tomorrow morning. In the evening Dr. A. Clayton Powell, pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church of New York, will preach.

CHURCH PLANS CELEBRATION



Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church, which celebrates an important anniversary tomorrow.

EUCHARIST DOCTRINE WILL BE EXPLAINED

Georgetown U. Professor to Talk at Evidence Guild Meeting Tomorrow.

The Catholic Evidence Guild will have as speakers at its open forum tomorrow afternoon, Prof. William McKee, of Georgetown University, who will explain the Catholic doctrine of the Eucharist, and Miss Grace E. Reardon, whose subject is "The Marks of the Church." The meeting is at 4 o'clock in Immaculate Conception Hall, 711 N street northwest, and is open to the public. Questions on any phase of Catholic doctrine will be cheerfully answered.

The evidence guild has been locally organized in direct responce to a call from Pope Pius XI, who wishes the Catholic laity to join actively with the clergy in spreading the truths of the Catholic faith.

Receive First Communion.

A class of 65 children will receive their first Holy Communion at St. James' Catholic Church, Mount Rainier, Md., tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Mass will be celebrated by the Rev. J. Edward Malloy, pastor. The annual May procession will be held at 3:30 p. m., and approximately 450 children will take part in the procession. Miss Doris Shields will be the May queen. The children will renew their baptismal vows, after which there will be benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The celebrant at benediction will be the Rev. R. Cotter Fitzgerald. The Rev. J. Edward Malloy will preach the sermon.

St. Cyprian's Chapter.

The congregation of St. Cyprian's Parish will meet at the parochial hall at 5:30 o'clock, tomorrow afternoon, for the purpose of becoming affiliated with the National Federation of Colored Catholics. They will organize the St. Cyprian's Chapter of the Federation.

Sir Knight Patrick J. Haltigan, K. S. S., and Dean Lucy Slow, dean of women at Howard University, will be the principal speakers.

Large Class Confirmed.

His excellency was assisted by the Very Rev. Louis B. Pastorelli, S. S. J., and the Revs. William A. Murphy, S. S. J., Michael Gumbleton, S. S. J., L. H. Schaefer, S. S. J., and Thomas J. Duffy, S. S. J.

James Chase and Aloysius Campbell were sponsors for the boys and the Misses Mary Quander and Annie Butler, for the girls.

Boys' Choir Will Sing.

The St. Augustine's Sanctuary Boys' Choir will sing the music of the Solemn High Mass tomorrow, at St. Augustine's Church.

Services to Continue Throughout Summer

Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, 628 F street southwest, announces that he will keep his church open all summer, with all services running as usual. "More than 100 persons have united with the church in the past few months," he says, "and the prospects are as bright as the promises of God."

Tomorrow morning Dr. Briggs will preach on "The Unconscious Sin of the Respectable."

Central Union Mission.

Martin A. Morrison, member of the Federal Trade Commission, will be the speaker at the Central Union Mission Chapel, 613 C street northwest, service tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock.

ORGAN RECITAL SET AT INGRAM CHURCH

Program Tomorrow Night to Be Led by Noted London Musician.

Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, Tenth and Massachusetts avenue northeast, will have an important organ recital tomorrow night, as its contribution to the celebration of music week in this city. Dr. Minor C. Baldwin, of London and New York, will be the artist. His concerts in the Royal Albert Hall, in London, are said to have been famous musical events.

A program of varied interest has been chosen. Among the composers selected are Rossini and Wagner. Not all of the music, however, will be as severely classical as this.

Clarence Eddy dedicated the organ at Ingram Memorial some years ago in a recital that has not been forgotten.

The church has set aside 1,000 seats for visitors, and extends an invitation to the public to attend this recital.

At the 11 o'clock service the pastor, Dr. Frederick Vining Fisher, will preach on "The Perils and Power of Music in Human Life."

Birthday Message At Luther Place

Rev. C. C. Rasmussen Will Tell of Rise of Christian Church Tomorrow.

"The Birthday of the Christian Church" will be the theme of the message by the Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen, of Luther Place Church, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. At the 8 o'clock service the assistant pastor, the Rev. Frank H. Clutz, will speak on "Would Amos Be a Preacher Today?"

The Christian Endeavor Societies meet at 6:45 o'clock. The Senior Christian Endeavor Society will be led in the discussion of the topic, "How May We Work for World Good Will?" by Miss Yetha Horn. "Heroes of Peace Times" will be studied by the intermediate Christian Endeavor Society under the leadership of Miss Effie Canham.

Rev. Harry L. Collier To Preach 2 Sermons

The Rev. Harry L. Collier will preach tomorrow at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets. Communion will be observed at 11 a. m. He will speak on "Girding Up the Loins of Your Mind." At the popular evengelistic service at 7:30 p. m. his topic will be "Died Abner as a Fool Dieth."

The Sunday school crusade continues at 9:30 a. m.

Minister to Discourse On "Choosing a God"

"Choosing a God" is the arresting subject of the evening sermon which the Rev. William Pierpont will preach tomorrow evening at the McKendree Methodist Church, on Massachusetts avenue.

"A Sound From Heaven."

The Rev. Harold E. Beatty, pastor of historic Georgetown Lutheran Church, preaches tomorrow on "A Sound From Heaven," and in the evening his subject will be, "This Is My Father's World."

NEW YORK BISHOP WILL PREACH HERE

Rev. Charles Fiske to Deliver Morning Sermon at Cathedral.

The Right Rev. Charles Fiske, Bishop of Central New York, and the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will be the preachers at two notable Whitsunday services tomorrow in the great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral.

Known as one of the most eloquent preachers and a leading author in the Episcopal Church, Bishop Fiske will deliver the sermon at the 11 a. m. celebration of the Holy Communion. Bishop Fiske has been a frequent occupant of the pulpit at Washington Cathedral, and has also conducted a number of conferences at its College of Preachers. He took a prominent part in the recent meeting of the House of Bishops at Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., where he presented the report on the balancing of the church's budget to the national council.

At this service the Whitsunday offering in response to a request from the presiding bishop and the national council, made to all American Episcopal churches, will be given to the special missionary emergency fund. This fund will be applied to the deficit of approximately $400,000 in the church offerings to missions in 1932, which threatens to curtail seriously the domestic and foreign missionary activities.

Bishop Freeman will preach at the people's evensong at 4 p. m. This service and his sermon will be broadcast, as usual, over the radio through Station WMAL.

At both the 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. services the processionals will be "The Hymn to the Holy Spirit," written by the late Right Rev. Alfred Harding, second Bishop of Washington, with the music by Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster of the Cathedral.

Members of the Young People's Society of approximately 50 Episcopal churches in the Diocese of Washington will make their annual pilgrimage through Washington Cathedral tomorrow afternoon and will attend the people's evensong.

The members of the society will assemble at the south transept of the Cathedral at 3 p. m. and will make their pilgrimage through the Cathedral under the guidance of the Rev. John W. Gummere, canon of the Cathedral.

The pilgrimage will be under the leadership of Russell Lowe, of Christ Church, southeast, president of the diocese's society, and Mrs. Doris Seabold, of Chevy Chase, D. C., in charges of arrangements for this event. In June the society will place a memorial stone in the Cathedral fabric as a gift from the organization.

Clericus to Meet At Tuesday Noon

St. John's Church at Broad Creek Event Will Honor Washington.

On Tuesday the Clericus of Washington, the membership of which consists of most of the clergy of the diocese, will hold a meeting at St. John's Church, Broad Creek. Lunch will be served in the parish hall by members of the Woman's Auxiliary at 1 o'clock.

Following this, historical addreses will be made by the Rev. William Hirst Reigham, D. D., rector of the parish, and C. C. Magruder, chairman of the Prince Georges County George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Broad Creek Church is diagonally opposite Mount Vernon on the Maryland shore and Gen. Washington attended its services on several occasions, his pew in the church being suitably inscribed. St. John's was built 50 years before Pohick Church and the same number of years before Christ Church, Alexandria. The meeting of the Clericus will be, at least in a measure, in honor of the first President.

Dr. Perkins Will Speak On "Tongues of Flame"

"Tongues of Flame" is the sermon topic of Dr. F. W. Perkins at the Universalist National Memorial Church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The service will be a special observance of the Day of Pentecost. Dr. John van Schaick, pastor emeritus, will assist in the service.

On Tuesday the mission circle will meet for luncheon in Perkins Hall at noon. The business session will be at 1:30 o'clock, followed by the program. On Thursday evening at 7 o'clock the church school association will meet in the parish house. The Boy Scout troop will meet on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Perkins Hall under the leadership of Edwin Smallman.

Capt. Wise to Preach On 'Soul Satisfaction'

"Soul Satisfaction" is the subject of a sermon Capt. Arthur E. Wise will preach at services tomorrow afternoon in the Volunteers of America Relief Mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Capt. Wise will be assisted by Lieut. Esther Montando, who will also direct the musical program.

The Christian Companionship League, a service for children, will be held this week on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the mission.

"Her Two Pies Lured Him," Is Sermon Title

"Her Two Pies Lured Him" is the subject of a story the Rev. E. Hez Swem will tell at the Centennial Baptist Church, Seventh and I streets northeast, tomorrow night.

Pentecostal Talk Will Be Delivered

Dr. H. H. Harmon to Speak on "When the Spirit Comes" Tomorrow.

Dr. H. H. Harmon will preach on "When the Spirit Comes" at the morning worship hour at the National City Christian Church. The pentecostal note will be further emphasized by the singing of Bennett's "God Is a Spirit," by the mixed quartet of the church.

At the evening hour the sermon topic will be "Our Resources in Christ." The chapel choir will furnish the music for the service, assisted by Miss Virginia Sellers as soprano soloist. Miss Sellers will sing "Come Ye Blessed," by Scott.

The concluding organ recital in a series which has been given through the winter months at the National City Church by the Washington Chapter of the American Guild of Organists will be given on Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock by Robert Ruckman, National City Church organist, assisted by Mrs. Helen Turley, contralto. Mr. Ruckman will present a program of American compositions, including several numbers by Washington composers. Especially interesting will be the "Nocturne," by John Prindle Scott, which Mrs. Turley will sing with organ accompaniment, and violin and cello obbligatos played by Ruth Bronson Logan and Edward Vaccaro.

Talk on Pentecost By Dr. J. M. Bader

Federal Churches' Council Aid to Speak at Ninth Street Christian.

Pentecost, the birthday of the church, will be observed throughout the day at Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D streets northeast, tomorrow.

Dr. Jesse M. Bader, field secretary for the department of evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches in America, will be the preacher at the 7:45 o'clock evening service. Dr. Bader will speak on "Perpetuating Pentecost." For nine years Dr. Bader was superintendent of evangelism for the Disciples of Christ, and during the first five years of his work nearly one million members were added to the churches throughout the United States. Through his influence, Pentecost has become an important day throughout the Protestant churches.

The full choir and orchestra will feature the music of the evening. The choir is singing "Unfold Ye Portals" (from "The Redemption"), accompanied by the orchestra. The offertory will be a cornet solo, "The Holy City," by Charles Kocher, accompanied by the orchestra.

At the morning communion hour the pastor of the church, the Rev. Clifford H. Jope, will use as his sermon topic, "Pentecost and Jesus." The choir anthem will be an arrangement of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," by Jude.

Churches' Federation Board Meets Thursday

The first meeting of the new board of directors of the Federation of Churches will be held on next Thursday, at 12:30 p. m., in Calvary Baptist Church. This body, which was elected at the annual meeting a month ago, comprises about 60 men and women, including officers, committee chairmen and denominational representatives, together with the officers and committee chairmen of the women's council. The new president is Col. W. O. Tufts, manager of Rand, McNally & Co., who is an active layman in Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Men's Bible Class Will Hear Pastor

Dr. J. J. Rives will address the Men's Bible Class of Francis Asbury Methodist Church South, Sixteenth near Lomont street northwest, tomorrow morning.

His subject is: "Climbing the Spiritual Ladder of Life." Special music will be provided by a male quartet. The public is invited.

ANNIVERSARY RITES AT GOSPEL MISSION

The Gospel Mission, 214-16-18 John Marshall place northwest, is celebrating its twenty-sixth anniversary tomorrow.

During the past fiscal year there were 786 regular chapel services held. Evening services were attended by 67,869; morning services by 44,401, and professed conversions were 3,124. There were 87,200 beds for homeless men and boys, and a total of 122,040 relief meals served.

Bible kindergarten attendance was 2,341; Sunday afternoon school attendance 3,541; hospital, jail and institutional visits numbered 118; Converts' Bible class attendance, 1,549; food given to needy families, 772; men's garments to 7,759; haircuts, shaves and baths to 8,308; jobs secured for 591 men; mothers' class attendance was 722; 1,418 garments were distributed to women and children; work was secured for 32 women; Girls' Club attendance, 299; Homemakers' Club attendance, 740; bread to white and colored families, 29,000; dispensary cases treated, 770; sent to hospital, 81; treated at home, 114.

The anniversary services are to be held at the First Baptist Church tomorrow morning, and at the Grace Lutheran Church tomorrow night.

The new Gospel Mission, to be located at 812-14-16 Fifth street northwest, is being rapidly erected, and the announcement for a corner stone laying will be made in the near future.

Young People's Group To Hear W. C. Barnes

Will C. Barnes, who received the Congressional Medal of Honor for services in the West, will address the young people of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church Sunday evening, May 22. He will lecture on India, Egypt and Palestine, using colored slides by way of illustrations. Refreshments will be served, and the meeting is open to the public.

Tomorrow morning the rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder, will preach on "The Fellowship of the Spirit."

Dr. Darby to Preach On 'Religion for Today'

Dr. W. L. Darby will preach at West Washington Baptist Church tomorrow morning on "Religion for Today."

The pastor, the Rev. C. B. Austin, will return from the meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention at St. Petersburg, Fla., Wednesday.

Tomorrow's Talk By Dr. McCartney

Lindbergh Baby Tragedy to Be Theme of Pastor's Morning Sermon.

Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, minister of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, will deliver his sermon tomorrow morning under the general theme of "A Little Child Shall Lead Them," an appeal based on the Lindbergh tragedy.

On Thursday evening there will be an informal reception after the prayer meeting to those members who have joined the church this year in order that the members may become better acquainted.

The Society of the Covenant (Women's Missionary Society) will meet on Wednesday at 11 a. m. in the chapel. Dr. Charles Ernest Scott, of Tsinan, China, will be the speaker.

The Men's Society will hold its final meeting of the season Monday evening at 6 o'clock in the chapel of the church. After dinner Maj. George Oakley Totten will deliver an illustrated lecture on the "Mayan Civilization of Yucatan."

St. Paul's Methodist Church Will Observe Anniversary

St. Paul's Methodist Church (South) will have a birthday anniversary tomorrow—its twenty-seventh; and it is going to celebrate it in a proper manner. At the morning service, over which E. R. R. Armentrout will preside, short addresses will be made by charter members, and a special musical program will be given by the robed choir, under the direction of J. Nelson Anderson.

A former pastor of the church, the Rev. J. Judson Ringer, who was also for a time superintendent of the Methodist Home at Gaithersburg, will preach in the evening. After the sermon motion pictures of the erection of the church will be shown. Thomas G. Anderson, chairman of the board, will have part in this service. Mr. Anderson has been a member since 1906.

Although it was organized on September 13, 1904, this church did not complete its organization until May 14, 1905, when it formally opened its first edifice. This building, located at Second and S streets northwest, was occupied until late in the year 1927, when it was sold to a colored congregation. In 1928 the present property at Thirteenth and Crittenden streets northwest was purchased, and the first unit of its plant erected. The second unit was completed and formally opened April 5, 1931. Plans are now being laid for the last unit, the educational building.

St. Paul's is the daughter of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. The Rev. D. L. Blakemore was its first pastor. The present pastor is the Rev. W. W. McIntyre, under whose direction the second unit of the church was built.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

STRYCHNINE POISONING.

OF ALL the poisons, none equals strychnine in the amount of pain and general discomfort caused. Persons contemplating suicide rarely select strychnine because it causes convulsions that are so painful. Ordinary cramps are not a circumstance in comparison, because they involve but a few muscles. The convulsions of epilepsy and those which usher in attacks of disease in children fortunately come when the brain can not register pain. On the other hand, the person enduring the convulsions of arsenic poisoning is clear mentally, and every pain and discomfort registers in his keenly alert mind. As is the case with hydrophobia, the sufferer dreads unusual noises, drafts, and other phenomena, because his keen wit tells him that these are the minor shocks which throw him into convulsions.

But if we have few cases of strychnine poisoning due to voluntary taking of the drug, the same is not true of accidental poisonings. Unfortunately, strychnine has a reputation as a medicine to which it is not entitled. Many people take it for different complaints, and, nine times out of ten, with no beneficial effects. In spite of this the old time reputation of the drug is so good that it is widely used. It is found in a large proportion of the family medicine cabinets. When children raid the medicine chest, as children have always done and will continue to do, they not infrequently eat more than a plenty of the pretty, sugar coated strychnine pills.

To make matters worse, we have had no satisfactory antidote for strychnine. The usual instructions are to pump out the stomach, give Epsom salts, and put the poisoned person under chloroform. Epsom salts has no virtue and nothing is gained by using it. Efforts to pump out the stomach and make the person vomit are generally useless, because they throw the sufferer into convulsions. The shortcoming of chloroform anesthesia is that the effective dose of chloroform against the effects of the strychnine is nearly the same as the fatal dose of the anesthetic.

Two Yale scientists offer us two genuine antidotes. They are phenobarbital sodium and apomorphine. Of these the first is the better. It seems to be a genuine antidote to the poison. It not only quiets the spasms but it puts the patient into a deep sleep and holds him there until the strychnine has been eliminated and its effects are gone. The remedy is not particularly poisonous. The effects of a single dose large enough for the purpose soon pass off and there are no worthwhile after effects.

Apomorphine is not an antidote in the proper use of the term, but it does overcome the tendency to convulsions, and since it is these that threaten life the remedy meets the need. Apomorphine is commonly given to produce vomiting. If the dose given is large enough to cause vomiting two birds are killed with one stone.

Both remedies are found in nearly all drugstores. Medicine chests sometimes contain one or both.

PATCH BALDNESS.

V. W. S. writes: Is the disease of the head and beard, called alopecia areata, contagious?

REPLY.

Patch baldness may be due to any one of several causes. When due to ringworm it is catching; when to any one of several other causes it is not.

FLOATING SPECKS.

J. V. writes: What is the cause of floating specks before the eyes? Are they symptoms of disease? Is there any cure?

REPLY.

They are generally caused by floating solid particles in the liquids that fill the eyeball. At that, they do not differ, markedly, from the other contents of the eyeball. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred they are without significance. Level headed people ignore them. Neurasthenics and others given to examining their works too closely watch them and worry. In a few cases they signify trouble.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Expert Answers Readers' Inquiries.

A. B. C.: Exercise is the best way to trim down the protruding abdomen. No doubt your abdomen muscles are relaxed.

Elsie Pierce.

Trunk bending exercises are very good. Trunk twisting exercises are also excellent. A very simple (sounds simple, but is really difficult) exercise can be done ten times every morning before getting out of bed. Lie flat on your back (no pillow). Attempt to rise to a sitting position, keeping knees rigid. This is splendid to strengthen relaxed abdomen muscles.

• • • •

B. L.: I should be happy to send you my bulletin, "Freckles—How to Deal With and Dim Them," if you will send self-addressed, stamped envelope. Dimming is all I advise in the case of freckles and they can be bleached mildly until they are scarcely noticeable. Anything strong enough to actually "remove" freckles may prove dangerous and injure the skin.

• • • •

MRS. C. C.: The good creams and astringents you have been using should not enlarge your pores. Proper cleansing is important and if you use a cleansing cream be sure to follow with a tonic so that none of the cream remains on the skin and also to help stimulate the circulation and close the pores. An ice rub (cover the ice with cheesecloth or very soft linen) should prove helpful. Since your skin is dry in parts and oily on nose and forehead, it is a clear case of "combination skin." Stimulation is necessary to help the oil glands to function properly. Aside from local treatment, do take some general exercises every day. Treat the dry parts to a good lubricating cream and the oily parts to skin tonic or astringent.

• • • •

Devoted Reader: To make your closeset eyes seem farther apart, try increasing the space between the brows by removing some of the little wild hairs there. Good luck and thanks for your nice letter.

• • • •

A. K.: You are right about the little roll at the back being monotonous and are wise to try treating the hair different ways. Have you had the hair at the back thinned out considerably? This is one way of keeping the hats in shape at the back. And try to have the knots quite low on the nape of the neck so that they do not have to be forced into the hat. Have you tried parting your hair at the center in the back, criss-crossing both sections and then tucking the ends under? This makes a flat and at the same time flattering arrangement.

• • • •

E. B.: No, it is not true that the use of creams and lotions causes superfluous hair. This is a time-worn prejudice. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for my bulletin on superfluous hair, how to bleach or remove it.

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

The Usual Story.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Two years ago I went to work at a large business office in our town. The son of the firm was in charge. I was rather afraid of him as there were so many stories about him, affairs in which he had been ruthless in hunting girls with whom he had gone about. Somehow I never quite believed him. He is not bad looking, of medium stature; is partly bald and is 39, while I am 24. October one year ago he asked to drive me home from the office. Being half afraid, and yet admiring, I went. You must understand he has a very charming, boyish and sweet personality. Well, that started things. Soon he told me he loved me and wanted me to marry him. I was dumfounded. I never dreamed that he cared. I accepted and he gave me a beautiful ring, but refused to allow me to wear it in public, except when we went out of town. (He only gave me the ring when I refused to wait any longer to get married.) Shortly after that I was taken ill with appendicitis and was operated upon. This man knew I had not the money for the operation so he offered to loan it to me and I accepted, as my parents could not afford to do it. Well, he refused to allow me to pay him back. During the whole time we had been going together he spent money lavishly on me. After I was out of the hospital I naturally thought as soon as I would be well we would be married. He had stood by me so loyally in the hospital. Well, of course, our marriage was put off, but I met his people, who treated me politely, but frigidly.

He soon persuaded me to side-step convention with him. I loved him devotedly.

From time to time I begged him to marry me and he joked about it. Because I loved him we never broke the ties until tonight. I could stand it no longer and I told him just how matters stood. I asked him to tell me, begged him to speak of our future, to decide things definitely, and he would not talk to me, just sat there mum. So I sent him away, said good-by. He said I would soon see reason. I've always been a decent, well-balanced girl until I met him, but sometimes temptation is great, and I weakened. I know now I should not have but it is too late. What I want to know is, was I unreasonable in refusing to go on trusting him blindly? He had never broken his word to me. Did I do right or wrong? Should I say I'm sorry and go on believing in him?

P. S. He is very conservative, does not drink nor want me to smoke, which I am glad of, so you see he isn't a rake. "DISTRACTED."

Whether you cast him off or wait for him to cast you off makes little difference, for he is through. You probably will meekly return to him, but another girl will soon replace you. It is one of the oldest stories, but to each girl who plays the grateful Cinderella it is brand new.

Your future depends upon how much spine you have. If you summon a little will power you can still escape the supreme humiliation of being discarded by this cad. And, incidentally, it is significant that this insect who promises marriage, then laughs at the thought, should "object to your smoking," and equally significant that this petty intolerance on his part should be interpreted by you as some symbol of deep-seated nobility on his part.

Heaven speed the day when our system of public education will educate. When we will send out into the world really intelligently prepared citizens instead of such material as you so thoroughly represent. To you this man is moral because he disapproves of a woman who smokes! He has defiled every sacred right of womanhood. Has laughed at your resulting pain. And you still believe he must be an upright soul because he is intolerant! What a spectacle for men and angels.

Find another job. Scrub if you must. But don't continue until this mongrel has disposed of the last bit of pride which you hold. Your fate is in your own hands.

What Today Means

"TAURUS."

IF May 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. to 11:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:40 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m.

May 14, from astrological configurations, will be externally eventless and placid, but there will be several moves made on your checkerboard of fate which will in the near future bring about some alterations and changes in your life. Revival of old associations, which will be all to the good.

The child born on this May 14 may not show scholastic ability in its mastery of the 3 R's, but it will have decided passions and talents which should be fostered and cultivated. It will return love for love and hate for hate, and will be more sensitive than it outwardly appears to be.

Born on May 14, patience is not one of your particular virtues, and you easily get fed up and desert your posts. Your own chronic boredom is the most boring quality which you possess, and one which others both fear and resent. You are poor material out of which to wring enthusiasm or gladness. Your emotional indifference, however, is somewhat of a pose, as you have more feeling and love in your nature than you are able or willing to express. You are not a person with whom to take liberties, and you are on a familiar footing with but few. You are, however, an enigma in many respects to even your intimate or family associates.

You will never travel through life in any respect second or third class, if it can possibly be avoided. Your tastes are extravagant, and nothing for you can take the place of comfort. You shy from the sordid side of life and shut your eyes to many inevitable sights and contacts. There is one world to which you are friendly and at home—the book world. Many characters of history, fiction and newspaper renown are familiar figures in your mind. You do considerable dreaming and thinking, about which the world knows little. It does not occur to you that people are interested in your ideas or viewpoints. You are indifferent to most sports and games, but are fond of music and the theater.

Successful people born on May 14:

Julian Eltinge, actor.
Sir Hall Caine, author.
Alton B. Parker, lawyer and politician.
Sir Squire Bancroft, English actor.
Billy Dove, film artist.
Timothy Dwight, clergyman.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I BOUGHT a hyacinth for Easter and would like you to give me full instructions as to its care, also the care of bulbs which have flowered in a dish of pebbles.

MISS VERONICA W.

Continue to water your hyacinth until the leaves are yellow. Then set the pot aside until fall, when the dead tops can be removed and the bulb planted in some sunny place in your garden. Paper-white narcissus which have flowered in water and pebbles are of no further use.

Please tell me how to prune a moss rose bush. CHARLES K. C.

A moss rose should be pruned sparingly. Cut out the old wood and merely cut back the growth of the previous year.

What shall I do with an Easter lily after it has finished flowering?

MRS. EARL H. T.

Continue to water the plant until all the leaves have turned yellow. About the first of June remove the dead top and plant the bulb in a sunny place in your garden. It should bloom profusely in late August. Before frost take the bulb into the house, keeping it in a cool, dry place in winter and replanting it in the open in the summer.

I have had beautiful freezias all winter. Can these bulbs be saved and potted again in the early fall?

MRS. FREDERICK F.

Yes.

I have a number of begonias which did rather well until April, when they began to drop their leaves and even some of their shoots. If I cut them back will they be apt to make any new growth this summer?

Y. E. R.

Yes.

I have two bushes of fall-flowering hydrangeas which do not flower well. When should these bushes be pruned? MRS. THOMAS E.

You can prune large-flowered hydrangeas in the late fall or early spring. They bloom on wood made the same season. Pink-and-blue-flowered French hybrid varieties flower on wood made the previous season.

Baby ramblers do not require pruning, simply remove the last season's flower stems.

Lupines are easily raised from seed. The plants will self-sow if the soil is not too dry. They can also be propagated by cuttings or by dividing the roots.

Do sedums like a sandy soil and do they require sun?

AN AMATEUR GARDENER.

They generally prefer a sandy soil and they thrive best in strong sun, though some varieties will do very well in shade, even growing under trees.

I have a bed of petunias which I have just planted. How often should I water these plants and is it necessary to keep the dead flowers removed? MRS. WILLIAM A. F.

Water petunias daily and remove the fading flowers promptly.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

NEW YORK, May 13.—I say the pyjama is a permanent feminine institution!

Yes, in spite of what the couturieres say, or wish we would say—that the pyjama for this and that is slightly demode. It is not. It is just one of those things that never will be in or out of style—now that women have learned about pyjamas from—pyjamas.

For this useful garment has so many advantages. The least is usefulness! The most is chic, and it's flattery. The pyjama for miladi's sleeping, for her lounging, if any, for her house work, for her beach wear, is undeniably flattering, no matter what some say to the contrary! And unquestionably comfortable, practical and chic, which no one tries to deny. Then, there remains only the question, are pyjamas going to stay in style?

Remember I told you yes!

Oh, of course, this or that famous celebrity will wear slacks or trousers or trousered skirts, and some famous couturiere will offer "bar aprons" or something equally novel. And miladi will go into a panic for fear her several dozen pyjamas are out of date. But that will all pass, and pyjamas will remain just as important to feminine figures and needs as ever.

Have you ever tried those pyjama house dresses, the kind that are made of heavy enough material and all in one piece, needing scarcely any lingerie under them? If you ever try them, I'll promise you that you will never again do housework in anything else.

Then have you ever tried sleeping in the really new and chic pyjamas? Those with wide trousers, all in one piece, too. Are they sleep inducing? And though you may believe that you never have time to wear lounging pyjamas—well, just have a pair around and see how much you wear them, that's all. Sundays, evenings after children are in bed—or those few hours between the office and dressing to go out—you'll see.

And then see if you care whether pyjamas go out of style or not.

Would you like to actually see the very best, easiest to make and wear, most flattering, simplest to wash and iron, perfectly foolproof and gorilicious pyjama design ever invented, designed or figgered out? If so, just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for a new one-piece pyjama sketch 'n' directions for making it. Takes 3 yards of material, I said a whole pyjama suit, with wi-i-de trouser legs, too. And it most flattering to the f..ure and most perfect to wear for any and all pyjama uses. Better send for it—whether you would like a new pyjama to sleep in, work in, rest in or just be adorable in.

Hints for a Happy Housewife.

Sister Dionne says that by now she has so many hints for other housewives that they make one big yell! After all, between the mountain lieyun that came to the back door and ho-o-o-owled, and the nice little cute rat who made its bed—or isn't it a who?—in the woodpile and then proceeded to make Darwin out a genius again, sister has had her sense of humor badly stretched. But she say to tell you that Saturdays are good days to make new lingerie out of old! Meaning that tinting soaps and powders make dingy things look new. Also that silks and things that should not be put in the sun should be washed in the afternoon late, instead of in the morning—and rolled in a towel and ironed in the cooler morning, instead of in the afternoon. And that few-cent stores are a snare and a delusion, unless one has strength of character—but that the household helps one can buy there are simply splendid, if one has the fortitude to spend only $2 when one goes in to spend 15 cents instead of $5.

Illustrated some pyqamas for you today, made from the design of ours that the new leaflet tells you how to make. There is one for sleeping, another for lounging, and a third for housework—all from the same design. Nice?

Rebellious Prisoners Sentenced.

Princeton, England, May 13 (A.P.).—Extended prison sentences ranging from a few months to twelve years were imposed today on prisoners held responsible for the attempted outbreak at Dartmoor Prison last January.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Polka dots score for a big success this season.

And here's a model extremely becoming, wearable and inexpensive to make.

It is blue and red crepe silk print. Note the youthful higher waistline treatment of the bodice. It is given supple lines by tiny gathers of the upper part that uses plain blue crepe. The bow and buttons are vivid red.

The wrapped skirt will give you a very slender appearance.

Style No. 2801 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Then, again, you may prefer it of one color. For instance, in crinkle crepe in marine blue or the new bright green shade.

Beautiful styles covering the complete range for the woman, miss, child and the stout, articles showing what hats will be worn, hairdressing hints, afternoon wear, subdeb frocks, &c., &c.

It points the way to better dress and will help you economize.

You can save $10 in patterns, materials, &c., by spending 10 cents for this book.

Just write your name and address clearly on any piece of paper. Order one book. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin and mail your order to Fashion Department, The Washington Post, Twenty-third street and Fifth avenue, New York City.

MAKING A DOUBTFUL TRICK.

THOSE who participated in the World Bridge Olympic had an opportunity on Hand No. 12 to test their skill in the play of a suit in order to develop a trick when their honor holding in that suit was only the Queen-Knave. In order to attain this result in the play, quite accurate counting of the suit distribution in the adverse hands was required. In the bidding, the hand illustrated the use of the Forcing Takeout with a four-card suit, while the play illustrated play at that declaration. The hand and bidding were:

North—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ Q 8 7 4 ♡ J 8 3 2 ◇ A K Q 7 ♣ 6
♠ K 10 9 2 ♡ Q 10 4 ◇ 9 ♣ Q J 10 9 5	W E S	♠ A 5 ♡ 9 6 ◇ J 8 6 5 3 ♣ 7 4 3 2
	♠ J 6 3 ♡ A K 7 5 ◇ 10 4 2 ♣ A K 8

The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
		1◇	Pass
2♡(1)	Pass	3♡	Pass
3NT(2)	Pass	4♡(3)	Pass
Pass	Pass

2—South's three notrump bid shows his four-card suit and evenly balanced hand.
3—North, however, of course, prefers to play the hand at hearts.

In the play, West was permitted to open the club Queen, which, of course, is the natural and correct opening lead. South won the trick, and then laid down two rounds of trumps, only to find that he must lose a trick to the trump Queen. In order to make his contract, then, he must either find a favorable break in the diamond suit or must be able to develop a trick in the spade suit. Two rounds of diamonds disclosed the fact that that suit could not be made to produce more than three tricks.

When West discarded a club on the second diamond lead, South realized that he would be forced to play for the spade suit. As West had held only one diamond, and East held five, according to the law of probabilities, if there were four spades in either opponent's hand, West held them. It was improbable that these spades included both the Ace and King, for, in that case, spades would be opened. South, therefore, elected to play East for the Ace and one, or King and one in spades.

In accordance with this plan, he led a low spade from the Dummy hand, and when East played a low spade, played the Knave. This trick was won with the King of spades in West's hand, and West then laid down the Queen of hearts, and, to the eighth trick, led the Knave of clubs, which was won with the Ace in the closed hand.

South now tested out the correctness of his theory. He led the trey of spades. West played the nine, but the Declarer refused to play the Queen from Dummy and East's Ace dropped, establishing the Queen of spades for the game-going trick.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The play of a suit, in order to develop a trick when the two top honors are missing, presents unusual difficulties. Today's hand illustrates one method of securing a trick in such a suit, by reading the cards held by the opposing players.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

RADIO, the world's most modern means of communication, will gather all its facilities to pay tribute to the seed from which it sprang when the centennial of the conception of the telegraph by Samuel F. B. Morse is celebrated in an international program arranged by the N. B. C. for broadcasting today.

Guglielmo Marconi, whose invention of wireless was based on the telegraph; David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, and Morse's daughter and granddaughter are among the speakers who will pay tribute to the inventor's memory. New York, Washington, Paris, Rome, railroads and ships at sea will join in the celebration, which will reach Washington listeners over WRC beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Standing in the room in the Nation's Capitol from which Morse sent the first message from Washington to Baltimore, and using the same instrument used by the inventor, his granddaughter, Miss Leila Livingston Morse, will tap out the message, "Attention, the universe; by kingdoms and republics, right wheel!" This, Miss Morse says, actually was the first message sent. The familiar "What hath God wrought?" was sent later, she explains.

Speaking from Rome, Guglielmo Marconi will pay tribute to the American pioneer. In Paris, Ambassador Walter Edge will introduce Mrs. Leila Morse Rummel, 80-year-old daughter of the inventor. Sarnoff will speak from New York, telling of the worldwide communication systems which have developed as a result of Morse's invention.

Beginning with the ancient smoke fires of the Indians, communication will be dramatized for the radio audience through the conception of the telegraph to the development of modern broadcasting. From train dispatchers' offices and ships at sea actual messages will be picked up and relayed around the world.

A DESCRIPTION of the Preakness at Pimlico, one of the classics of the Eastern turf season, will be broadcast over WMAL by Thomas B. George, racing expert, beginning at 4:10 p. m. George replaces Ted Husing, who underwent an operation for appendicitis in New York three days ago.

The WJZ-WBAL network will carry Clem McCarthy's description of the race, beginning at 4:15 p. m.

Addresses by Prof. Harold Reed, of Cornell University, and L. J. O'Rourke, psychologist, United States Civil Service Commission, will be heard on the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education program (WRC, 7:30 o'clock tonight). Reed will discuss "Credit as a Social Instrument," and O'Rourke, "New Measures of Ability."

"IT wouldn't be at all surprising if the head men of the broadcasting industry were to announce suddenly that they are about to unite under the dictatorship of a czar, as the movies and baseball have done," "Aircaster," a New York radio authority, writes.

"Having plodded along for twelve years without an arbiter of this type, the studio chieftains are finding their days and night fraught with multiplying problems, the bulk of which can only be solved by coordination on a large scale. Not the least of these headaches is their current quarrel with the American Society of Composers, which, as you have read before, is demanding a 5 per cent cut-in on the gross receipts of the broadcasting companies in return for blanket permission to use music turned out by the society members. Leadership in radio's fight somehow has fallen to Oswald F. Schuette, who looms as a possible candidate for imperial arbiter.

"Such a parallel for Will Hays or Judge Landis would assume power at the point where the Federal control of radio ends, and would represent the entire industry instead of a mere group of broadcasters. He would relieve the executives of the networks of many onerous tasks and responsibilities and obviate all possible clashes of policy that, under present circumstances, could weaken radio's front defenses in any sort of controversy.

"I am told that the idea of a czar appeals strongly to the radio bosses, and that it may materialize well in advance of the National Association of Broadcasters' convention in St. Louis next October.

NEW YORK CITY'S beer parade will be described over both N. B. C. networks and the Columbia system at intervals from noon to 10 p. m. today. It has been estimated that it will take fourteen hours for the parade to pass a given point.

The broadcasts will be heard for not more than fifteen minutes at a time from shifting vantage points along the route of march. Ben Grauer, N. B. C. announcer, will fly in the blimp Resolute during most of the afternoon, giving an aerial description of the parade.

Announcers Ed Thorgersen, George Hicks, Ezra McIntosh and Charles P. O'Connor will be stationed at various microphones along the route of march to describe the marchers and pick up music from the scores of bands in line for N. B. C.

A new prohibition plan, said to be receiving serious consideration by one of the major political parties, will be revealed by Dean Gleason L. Archer today (WEAF network, but not WRC, 6:15 p. m.).

The British Broadcasting Corporation's good-by to Savoy Hill and the dedication of its new studios at Broadcasting House in London will be heard here today (WJZ-WBAL, 5:30 p. m.). The half-hour broadcast will present a reconstruction of a typical British radio day and a resume of ten years of broadcasting.

James A. Reed, former United States Senator from Missouri, formally will "throw his hat into the presidential ring" when he delivers his platform speech tonight (WMAL, 9:15 o'clock). His talk will be entitled "Common Sense in Government," and will be picked up from St. Louis, Mo.

A HANDFUL of comments on his singing, published in Czechoslovakian and Swedish, are still in the possession of Lanny Ross, tenor, although he has never had them translated. They were gleaned when Lanny toured Europe as soloist with the Yale Glee Club, long before he thought of radio. His notices in French and German he could interpret himself, but not a single one of his friends has even a passing acquaintanceship with the languages of the Czechs and the Swedes.

Naturally, Lanny wants to Czech whether or not they said anything Swede about him.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SOME BILLS CONGRESS HAS MYSTERIOUSLY FAILED TO CONSIDER.

HOUSE BILL N. 5732—A bill to prohibit the desire for personal gain and curb the instinct for self-preservation.

(This measure, introduced by Representative Felix Phlootz, of Clam Creek, provides that a commission be set up to investigate the desire of man to safeguard his future by the acquisition of money; to arrive at ways and means of curbing this desire, and to bring about a distribution of money so that everybody will be satisfied.)

House Bill No. 7893—A bill to abolish greed, avarice and selfishness and to substitute generosity, self-denial and the kindred virtues.

(This measure, submitted by Representative Oscar P. Jitters, of the Sourland Hill District, vests in the Federal Reserve the authority to act on all complaints of greed in business; to proceed against selfishness as unconstitutional and to issue weekly bulletins on the state of selfishness in the country. It empowers the board to conduct lectures seeking to convince the public that complete happiness can be attained only in a state in which everybody aims to give the other fellow an even break.)

Senate Bill No. 8356—A bill to define how far is up and how low is down.

(This bill, introduced by Senator Peter ("The Shriek") Hammerhead, provides for the appointment of a board of forty-two members more clearly to determine the meaning of "up" and "down" and to arrive, through a series of conferences, at a happy medium with which all good Americans shall be content in the estimating of their personal fortunes, security holdings, state of mind, &c.)

House Bill No. 9967—A bill to create a level of human happiness, foster lightheartedness within the Federal boundaries and engender in all men an appreciation of small favors.

(This bill, the child of Representative Harry J. Kettlemaier, of Spruce Corners, authorizes the President, the Secretary of Commerce and any four Y. M. C. A. secretaries to designate a level of human happiness and to see that everybody is made to take it and like it. It provides that citizens short of lightheartedness may borrow from the Government a supply of this virtue in the form of temporary loans.)

Senate Bill No. 555—A bill to prohibit the competitive instinct in all business relationships, to wipe out personal rivalries in trade and to promote whistling and soft-shoe dancing in all office conferences.

(This measure, hot from the brain of Senator Hemingway Caterwaul, of Little Neck, would make competition unconstitutional, establish brotherly love in all forms of bargaining and make it illegal for any man to get the better of another man in any deal, contract, operation, argument, discussion, &c. It provides for an appointment of six boards of 83 members each to be stationed in six Federal zones to see that nobody gets the short end of anything, and that good humor is restored to the 1929 level. Great stores of whistles and soft shoes shall be set up by the Government and distributed where they will do the most good.)

H. B. TREMAINE DIES; DECORATED ABROAD

Aeolian Company Chairman Is Heart-Attack Victim on Visit Here.

Henry Barnes Tremaine, chairman of the board of the Aeolian Co. and a leader in the piano industry, died suddenly at Wardman Park Hotel yesterday from a heart attack.

Mr. Tremaine, who held several high foreign decorations, was in Washington visiting his daughter, Mrs. Robert M. Kempton. His son-in-law, Mr. Kempton, is president of the Kempton Cadillac Corporation.

The recipient of the Belgian Orders of Leopold and Knight and of Philip the Magnanimous, the Papal Order of St. Gregory the Great, the Order of the Crown of Italy and the Legion of Honor of France, Mr. Tremaine made his home in Pelham Manor, N. Y.

Mr. Tremaine was chairman of the board of Kempton Cadillac Co. here. He was in his sixty-sixth year. The late Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, who died recently, was his cousin.

In addition to Mrs. Kempton, he is survived by Mrs. Tremaine and a son and a daughter. Funeral services will be held at Pelham Manor tomorrow.

W. P. Cresson Dies In Massachusetts

Lecturer at Georgetown and Architect Expires at Age of 59.

Dr. William Penn Cresson, lecturer at Georgetown University, architect and a diplomatic secretary on the Conference on Limitation of Armaments, died Thursday at the home of his father-in-law in Stockbridge, Mass., at the age of 59.

Dr. Cresson is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret French Cresson, who was before her marriage Miss Margaret French, the daughter of Daniel Chester French, nationally known sculptor, who created the figure of Lincoln in the Lincoln Memorial. She is also a sculptor of merit.

He was a member of the American Society of International Law, a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society of London, a member of the Metropolital Club of Washington, the Nassau Club of Princeton and the Raquet Club of Philadelphia.

EGGLESTON RITES TODAY.

Riverdale Inventor Will Be Buried in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Funeral services will be held today at 2:30 o'clock for Robert N. Eggleston at his former home in Riverdale, Md., where he died suddenly Thursday. He will be buried in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Eggleston was the inventor and promoter of a new system for heating houses by electricity, and had maintained an office in Washington for about twelve years. He was a native of Macon, Mo., but had lived in Riverdale for about ten years. He made his home in Riverdale with John Harlan, at 607 Adams avenue. His sudden death was due to a stroke of paralysis.

He is survived by his widow, Blanche G. Eggleston, two sisters, Mrs. Caroline Bacon and Miss Grace Eggleston, and a brother, Fred Eggleston.

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

COLUMBIA

"GRAND HOTEL." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel and play by Vicki Baum, adapted to the screen by William A. Drake, with all-star cast, headed by Greta Garbo, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis S. Stone, Jean Hersholt, Robert McWade, Purnell Pratt and Tully Marshall. Directed by Edmund Goulding. Two performances daily; three on Sunday. All seats reserved.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Here, at last, is the picture cinema enthusiasts and the critical fraternity have been patiently awaiting all these years as an excuse to do a little real, Grade A gloating and to unlimber and swing into action their vocabularies of appreciative and commendatory superlatives.

It is, from every point of view, the most completely praiseworthy cinematographic achievement that has come out of the studios of Hollywood to date. It is vibrant, vigorous, vital drama, expository of the most modern technique in settings, direction and photography. And it is, as goes without saying, superbly acted.

"Grand Hotel" adheres with remarkable fidelity to the major episodes of the novel and stage play, which, as originally written, were virtually already in phonodramatic form. It speedily introduces its major figures, their aspirations, hopes, perplexities and fears, over the switchboard of the smartest hotel in Berlin—Grusinskaya, the famous dancer, whose personal maid is harrowed by the realization that her charge's popularity and public both are waning; the Baron, an impecunious nobleman, reduced to bickering with a band of crooks, intent on stealing the dancer's pearls; Industrial Magnate Preysing, in Berlin to effect a gigantic merger that never comes off; Flaemmchen, the submissive stenographer, more troubled by money than morals; Kringelein, the underbookkeeper, doomed by the doctors, who is determined to taste of the fullness of living before encountering the grim adventure of death; the Doctor, a casualty of the war, abstracted, isolated and gazing always through unseeing eyes, whose constant lament, even when tragedy stalks the corridors of the fabulous hostelry and lives are being caught up in an avalanche of events, is "Same thing every day. People come and people go—The Grand Hotel—nothing ever happens"—all these and more are quickly identified and indexed, as an inexorable Fate begins the strange task of inextricably tangling their petty destinies.

There can be no question, I think, that the screen is a more efficient medium through which to encompass the sweep of such a drama than the stage. The breadth of scene, the pictorial supremacy and the many strikingly realistic effects in "Grand Hotel" are no less due to the art creations of Cedric Gibbons and the camera work of William Daniels than to the inspired direction of Edmund Goulding.

But it is, after all, in the cast that chief interest centers.

Garbo, as need hardly be remarked, contributes a fascinating performance of Grusinskaya, the dancer. Her transition from a victim of morose despondency that perceives a welcome solace in suicide to the gay impetuosity of a brilliant and buoyant young artiste, transfigured by the opportune love of the Baron, is effected with a degree of artistry that affords eloquent justification for her sometime designation as the Swedish Duse. To the role of the Baron, John Barrymore brings perhaps less of distinction than was promised by the years of his "Justice," "Jest," "Peter Ibbetson" and "Hamlet" on the stage, but still offers an impersonation of a complex and charming personality that any other actor would find it difficult to duplicate. It is a notable fact, however, that in their close-ups, Barrymore always is subordinated to Garbo.

In the assumption of attributes farthest removed from those with which the player is naturally endowed, it seems to me that Lionel Barrymore does the best acting of any member of the cast, as Kringelein, the pathetic underling, to whom the last moments of life brought a complete and inspiriting emancipation from the harassments by which his entire existence had been hedged about. Having been among those who could not mentally visualize the elder Barrymore as Kringelein, I am eager to be among the first to acclaim the astonishing perfection of his portrayal.

Wallace Berry, as a well-nigh flawless Preysing, and Joan Crawford, the paradoxically flamboyant and wistful Flaemmchen of the story, together with Lewis S. Stone, in the oddly conceived role of the Doctor, complete a stellar ensemble that marks the cinema's high point of histrionic achievement before the cameras and microphones.

There are many others whose less important contributions serve to enhance the merit of this most impressive of all films—among them Jean Hersholt, as Senf, the doorman suffering the travail of fatherhood; Robert McWade, Purnell Pratt, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Tully Marshall, Murray Kinnell and Rafaella Ottiano, playing the role of the maid which she created on the stage.

If you have not read "Grand Hotel" and intend to, by all means read it before and not after the late Arnold Bennett's "Imperial Palace," to which it is vastly inferior as a library exhibit, but infinitely superior as exciting theater.

RIALTO

"NIGHT WORLD." Universal picturization of a story by P. J. Wolfson and Allen Rivkin, featuring Lew Ayres, Mae Clarke and Boris Karloff. Directed by Robert Henley. "THE MYSTERY OF LIFE." Universal exposition of evolution, arranged by Dr. H. M. Parshley, presented by Clarence Darrow and directed by George Cochrane. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Through the fields of organic, inorganic and superorganic evolution, describing the development of the world, its population, and the accoutrements of that population, "The Mystery of Life" unfolds the finest assemblage of scientific material ever gotten together for almost feature-length presentation. The pictures are enhanced by the expository dialogue of Clarence Darrow, one of the leading militant advocates of evolution of the present day, and Dr. H. M. Parshley, Smith College professor.

Not only has Universal plumbed its own resources in getting together the material for this film, but also have they drawn generously from the nature films of UFA, and, for their treatment of fossil animals, resurrected with profit the monsters of the pictorial version of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Lost World."

Opening with an account of the origin of the earth, the discussion proceeds through the period of the vitalization of matter and the beginnings of life, but through the representatives of the animal kingdoin to man, and his postulated development from Pithecanthroups down (or up) to that erect, sapient biped referred to as man. Briefly outlined also are the developmental stages of man's inventions.

Notwithstanding several ill-advised bits of cutting which result in garbled dialogue (but without effect of the pictorial continuity), "The Mystery of Life" remains the sincerest attempt to date adequately to present cinematographically the doctrine of evolution in its various ramifications and its really significant facts.

As for the so-called feature offering "Night World" revolves around the habitues of a Manhattan night club, with the climacteric gang-shooting and the club's singer leading the redemption of the star patron from addiction to drink.

Lew Ayres is the roue who tries to drown the thoughts of his mother's transgressions in liquor; Mae Clarke, the singer who befriends him, and Boris Karloff, the oily proprietor finally put on the spot. Dorothy Revier, Bert Roach, Hedda Hopper, Robert Emmett O'Conner and Clarence Muse have supporting bits.

It is not that the picture is devoid of merit, for it is not; but the triteness with which it is treated, the obviousness of the plot development and Mr. Ayres' dissertation on the duties of motherhood all combine to make "Night World" not quite all that might be desired in the way of sound-screen entertainment.

For subsidiary attractions, William T. ("Big Bill") Tilden 2d, struts his stuff in "Victory Plays," a presentation of tennis strokes described by Genevieve Tobin, and Graham McNamee describes the ten outstanding architectural achievements of the United States for the Universal News

METROPOLITAN

"WAYWARD." Paramount picturization of the novel, "Wild Beauty," by Mateel Howe Farnham, featuring Nancy Carroll, Richard Arlen and Pauline Frederick. Directed by Edward Sloman. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

"The Battle of the Century," in the opinion of this reviewer, would be a far better title for "Wayward" than the title given it. While it is not a prize fight film, the nine-reel struggle between two mothers, selfish in their love of children and husbands, is decidedly noteworthy. "Wayward" would have been an epic of the silent screen with an added touch or two. It is the kind of picture which was all the rage in the old silent days, for it points a heavy moral.

However, there is something missing in this one. Just what is hard to say, but it lacks the spark which might lift it above the run-of-mine productions. Probably it is that the leading characters, with the exception of Pauline Frederick, walk somewhat woodenly through the parts.

Nancy Carroll is sweet and attractive, as usual, and Richard Arlen is his handsome self, but their performances are what might be termed "routine." Miss Frederick is splendid throughout, although her role is one which the audience despises. She does not let down, giving a sustained characterization which is outstanding. Bob Litel as the comic villain of the piece, and Burke Clarke (National Players), as a cranky old banker, have excellent bits, as does Dorothy Stickney in the role of a maid.

The story is that of Daisy, star of the "Scandals," who falls in love with David Frost, a bank clerk, during his short visit to New York. They are married and he takes his bride to a family set in its ways and, as the maid puts it, that "hate each other, but they get together to hate outsiders." David's mother does her best to buy off Daisy and, failing, finally succeeds in blackening her character in the eyes of David. In the meantime, David and Daisy have had a daughter. The grandmother forces the mother from her home and keeps the baby, lying to her son about his wife. Five months of suffering by both David and Daisy furnish the groundwork for a climax in which both mothers expose their love for their children, with little Daisy the chief gainer at the finish.

"Absent-Minded Abner," an alleged comedy featuring Jack Haley; an issue of Ripley's "Believe It or Not" and the Paramount Sound News, with a vocal, rather than pictorial history of the Lindbergh case, complete the bill.

LOEW'S FOX

"THE WOMAN IN ROOM 13." Fox picturization of the stage play by Samuel Shipman, Max Marcin and Percival Wilde, starring Elissa Landi, with Neil Hamilton, Myrna Loy and Ralph Bellamy. Directed by Henry King. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Wesley Eddy, full of songs, fire and appreciation, returned to the city and the street, but not the theater, of his greatest professional success yesterday afternoon and was tumultuously greeted at Loew's Fox by approximately 1,000 more customers than were ever able to cram themselves into the Palace.

Mr. Eddy was in top form as an entertainer on three separate and distinct occasions during the running off of the stage attractions—which was well, since he had precious little to do in the way of mastering ceremonies. This function is largely performed in song for the "Blue Waves" revue by the Phelps Twins. Mr. Eddy's formal introduction served as a dividing interval between the Victor Herbert and Gounod halves of a two-part overture, during which Phil Lampkin went through his daily callisthenics, which do not seem to mean much musically, but are no end showy. Mr. Eddy took this occasion to thank his friends for the warmth of their welcome and sing a paraphrase of a popular ballad having to do with "Back Home," or something of the sort.

Later on in the program he wowed the pewholders with a swell rendition of "River, Stay Away From My Door," with "Old Man River" cleverly countermelodied. Still later, he offered a medley of requested numbers during the course of which he unlimbered his trick violin with the phonograph horn attachment, guitar—or maybe it was a tarapatch—and banjo, all of which went over with such a bang that he did a brief impersonation of Joe Penner as an encore. On another occasion he confined himself wholly to monologue, with a "gag" finish that registered in spite of the age of the story upon which it is based.

Altogether this was a most auspicious and salutary home-coming, if applause means anything.

Mr. Lampkin's overture number, by the way, was looked upon with such favor that the orchestra was compelled to rise to its feet four times in recognition of the ovation it received at the first performance.

"Blue Waves" is a so-so revue, featuring the Phelps Twins, Serge Flash, juggler; Douglas, Eddy and Dolores, adagio artists; the Four Runaways and the Chester Hale Girls. Not too hot, this one.

"The Woman in Room 13," which brings Elissa Landi, Neil Hamilton and Ralph Bellamy to the screen in the principal roles of the familiar melodrama of a faithful wife who professed gross infidelity to save her husband from a sentence to the electric chair for murder, has been materially altered since it was presented years ago as a silent picture, it seems to me, with Pauline Frederick in the stellar role. Instead of a courtroom confession to bring justice to the innocent fraudulently convicted of crime, the young wife who has been tricked by a dictaphone, similarly traps the private detective, who was her former husband, and the play ends there.

The new arrangement of dramatic incident is the speedier, more logical and more interesting of the two. Miss Landi is an attractive but not especially inspired figure as the wife suspected of moving her husband to murder by her infatuation for a famous concert artist. The swift movement of the narrative is due primarily to the momentum of its own situations, rather than to any impetus it receives from its placid star. Neil Hamilton and Ralph Bellamy are effective as husbands, current and past, and Gilbert Roland looks as little as possible like a great singer. Myrna Loy appears in the part that has been so seriously cut short by the introduction of the second dictaphone.

As an auxiliary film feature, Hal Roach presents his "Rascals" in "Spanky." Spanky is a baby comedian I had never seen before, but shall never miss again, at least until he outgrows his present precocity! Fox Movietone news completes a hurrah program.

PALACE

"LETTY LYNTON." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Maria Belloc Lowndes' novel, starring Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery, with Nils Asther, Lewis Stone, May Robson and Louise Closser Hale. Directed by Clarence Brown. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Letty Lynton is distinctly to be met, and her adventures and tragedies make a picture honestly well worth a rave—and going to get one.

It is thoroughly excellent, exciting, inherently tragic, yet sufficiently lightened to be an entertaining exhibit. A picture well directed, superlatively well acted by an exceptional cast and a picture permitting Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery free rein, well used, for every iota of their ability, plus a new-found subtlety for each.

Letty is another gallant, free soul, but not just another, for she is individual enough, both as written and played, to be intriguing in her own right. With a home broken by tragedy and scandal (left nicely to inference), and a mother who ignores her with apparently chilly indifference, Letty goes wandering independently (and lonesomely) about the world, turning one new page after another.

In Montevideo she begins a new leaf, which, tragically enough, will not stay finished when she wants it to. For after a feverish affair of three months' duration with Emile Renaul, Letty, escaping homeward, meets and falls deeply in love with Jerry Darrow, only to find Emile waiting for her at the New York pier with love letters and threats. To tell more would be sacrilege.

Not particularly new in its essentials, it is a coherent picture, moving swiftly along without waste motion, never faltering from its high dramatic pitch and reaching moments of real intensity.

Good dialogue helps.

The picture has the dignity about it of authentic emotion, to which Joan Crawford contributes inestimably by completely abandoning the artifice she has been employing lately and really acting, naturally, sympathetically and sincerely. No more hands-on-hips, eyebrow agony for her.

Robert Montgomery is not a whit behind, and, as Jerry, is a far less cocky and consequently more attractive young man than usual. His is rather a fine character, finely drawn and quietly, easily played, jogging up his recent good work another notch.

A rather routine "Boy Friends" comedy, a delicious musical Krazy Kat cartoon and the newsreel complete the week's offering.

A new policy inaugural that's one for the books.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THAT amazing dramatic phenomenon, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," continues to achieve records that place it absolutely in a class by itself as a box-office attraction. The following bulletin, which has just come to hand from Miss Katharine Cornell's indefatigable publicist, Mr. Ray Henderson, speaks for itself:

Because thousands of people have been turned away from the Harris Theater in Chicago, unable to obtain tickets for Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," Katharine Cornell and her company will give a special matinee of this play in the Chicago Civic Opera House on Sunday, May 15, when all the seats will be priced at one dollar and the first come will be the first served. Miss Cornell and her company will receive no money for their services, Besier has waived his royalties, Lee Shubert has given permission for the performance and Samuel Insull has let the Civic Opera House for the occasion at a nominal fee. The proceeds will be given to the sick teachers' fund of the Chicago Teachers' Federation, directly benefiting instructors severely affected by economic conditions in Chicago.

As the Cornell engagement could not be extended and as all the lower priced tickets were sold out immediately they were placed on sale, it occurred to Miss Cornell that one performance in the great Civic Opera House, seating 4,000 people, at the uniform price of $1 a ticket would permit many playgoers to see the play who were not able to afford the more expensive seats in the smaller Harris Theater.

Miss Cornell breaks her long-standing rule of not acting on Sundays because of her great interest in presenting the Besier drama before an audience under these unusual circumstances. It is the first time since she was an unknown young actress in stock that she has appeared at such a low-priced admission fee.

Since Miss Cornell paid her cast full salaries throughout the period of her summer vacation, it would appear that with her pelf is not paramount!

Yesterday marked new responsibilities in the theatrical careers of more than one member of the Loew executive forces in the Capital.

At the Palace, Orangelo Ratto, "Angie" to thousands of regular customers, in full charge of the house under the new policy of sound-screen entertainment exclusively, beamed until his cherubic countenance was mistaken by many for a baby spotlight! He was not only elated over the volume of business attracted by Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery in "Letty Lynton," but explained further that for the first time in years he was spending an opening day without being required to listen to the wails and woes of vaudeville perfawmers!

Down at the Columbia, "Bill" Fisher, one of the youngest and most competent executives on the Loew circuit, was going through his paces as manager in complete charge of the "road show" engagement of "Grand Hotel" on a reserved seat basis.

Roscoe Drissel, formerly manager of the Columbia, was in evidence about the spacious lobbies and promenades of Loew's Fox, where many old friends were mixing congratulations in with their greetings.

This, I suppose, is what you might term the Loew-down on F street.

Speaking of Loew's Fox, I regret that it is necessary to report that the Four Runaways, in the "Blue Waves" revue, still deem expectoration one of the major sources of comedy and continue to ruin their act for many by squirting water in each other's faces in most disgusting fashion.

It has been reported that a relative has successfully brought suit against a theater manager for exhibiting "The Mouthpiece," opening at the Earle today, because it libeled the man after whom the character portrayed by Warren William on the screen was fashioned.

If there is a barrister in the house, I should be glad to have him explain what has happened to that pronouncement of the law that says you can't libel a dead man!

And don't forget to stop by today and get these tickets for the testimonial bill to be given at the National Theater tomorrow night for the reimbursement of the National Theater Players, who voluntarily cut their own salaries to pay musicians' wages and thus prevent the closing of the local repertoire season at the end of two weeks instead of a minimum of ten.

The entertainment you will derive from the performance—unless all signs fail—will be worth considerably more than the prices being assessed for the tickets.

"It oughta be a lotta fun!"

While I look upon the screen trailer as more or less of an abomination, there is no denying that those being shown in natural colors are a bit of an improvement over the old black-and-white eye tests. Not much, but a bit.

So all the boys will probably drop around to take up my season passes.

And then all they will have to do is try and get them!

Anyhow, I am never in my office—as any bill collector will tell you.

CHIEF SHOW EVENT WON BY PENDENNIS

Miss Dodge's Mount Gets Cup in Local Saddle Feature at Bradley Farms.

Pendennis, exhibited by Miss Frances M. Dodge, won the local saddle horse event yesterday at Bradley Farms, when the National Capital Horse Show, premier event of Washington riding society, was opened.

Postponed for two days on account of inclement weather, the show attracted a large crowd of local and out-of-town horse lovers. Events originally scheduled for Wednesday were run off yesterday morning and Thursday's in the afternoon. Today the riding will start at 10 o'clock and those events not completed this afternoon will be ridden tomorrow. Previous engagements of exhibitors will prevent holding over the show until next week.

Chatter Chat, a 2-year-old, won the opening event for 2 and 3 year olds suitable to become hunters. The horse was exhibited by Mrs. Ellsworth Augustus, of Willoughby, Ohio. Sandy, exhibited by Thomas H. Somerville, of Montpelier Station, Va., placed second.

Among the exhibitors was Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Llangollen, Va., whose stable fared well in the day's ride. Her horses included Bon Diable, Two Leggins, Hopeful Jim, Gray Knight, Bowling Green, Cornelius and a hunt team.

Maj. George S. Patton, of 3117 Woodland drive, showing Patches, Kalil, Budway, Keanakolu, Hookupu and Hoapili, led the local list of exhibitors.

There were no serious spills or accidents and a large crowd attended, including Dr. Luther Reichelderfer and Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, Commissioners of the District.

A committee under the direction of Mrs. Lutz Wahl served luncheon and conducted the sale of cigarettes, soft drinks and ice cream and tobacco. The committee was assisted by debutantes of this season.

The show is being given for the benefit of the Army relief fund.

CLASS 25 (2 and 3-year-olds)—Suitable to become hunters. To be shown in hand. Prizes, first, $35; second, $15; third, $10; and fourth, $5. First, Chatter Chat, Mrs. Ellsworth Augustus; second, Sandy, Thomas H. Somerville; third, Doctor Borneo, Nancy Louise Patterson; fourth, Red Sea, Foxcatcher Farms.

CLASS 21 (Novice Saddle Horse)—Prizes, first, $40; second, $20; third, $10. First, Clara Dare, Russell L. Law; second, Donna Vivienne, Bell-Ho Stables; third, Misbehavin, George H. Calvert, jr.

CLASS 24 (3 and 4-year-olds)—Suitable to become hunters. To be shown under saddle. Not to jump. First prize, $50; second, $25; third, $10; fourth, $5. First, Partas, John W. McComb; second, Sandy, Thomas H. Somerville; third, Doctor Borneo, Nancy Louise Patterson; fourth, Queen's Pride, Mrs. D. N. Lee.

CLASS 31 (Green Hunters)—Middle and heavyweight. To be shown over course No. 1, jumps not to exceed 4 feet. First prize, $50; second, $30; third, $20; fourth, $10. This class to be rejudged.

Class 38—Local hunters—Entry must have been owned by a resident of the District of Columbia or by one whose place of business is in Washington for at least 30 days prior to May 11 or by any Army, Navy or Marine Corps officers stationed within 25 miles of Washington. Prizes, first, cup; second, $25; third, $10; fourth, $5; first, Bandit Flag, G. W. Rust; second, Clearanfast, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Plummer; third, Keanakolu, Maj. George S. U. S. MOVES DELAY WORK AT AIRPORT

Postponement Due to Loss of Money Spent if Title Goes to Government.

Prospective improvements of the Washington-Hoover Airport are being held up pending settlement of litigation instituted by the Federal Government to determine title to 46 acres of ground in the area of the flying field, it was learned yesterday.

Airport officials have been warned by the Department of Commerce that unless improvements are made in the landing area a suspension probably will be made of the permits of airlines which use the landing field.

On the other hand, the agencies of the Federal Government have warned airport officials that they will not be paid for any improvements they make on the property in the event that it is taken over by the Government.

As a result of this warning, improvements at the airport have been suspended, because any money they might expend on improvements would be lost if the Government should take over the property.

The Eastern Air Transport has been attempting to acquire land to erect a large hangar and other facilities. The only land available for the purpose lies in the disputed area. If the Government should take over the property, the field would have to close because the landing stretch would be cut beyond the limit of safety.

Youngest Prisoner Is Freed From Jail

Justice Proctor Relents and Remits Sentence of 14-Year-Old.

After having spent 48 hours in jail, Francis Russell, 14-year-old student of the Polk grade school, yesterday was released from custody by order of Justice James M. Proctor.

The boy had been sentenced to serve ten days for contempt of court for failure to respond to subpenas that had been served at his home. Justice Proctor relented yesterday, called Francis before him, and after a short lecture, released him from the remainder of the sentence.

Francis is the youngest prisoner ever to be held in the District Jail. At the discretion of jail authorities he was kept away from the men prisoners by being confined to the infirmary.

Good Citizens' Group Organized in County

A Good Citizens Association, seeking to improve the moral condition of Prince Georges County, has been formed as a corollary to the Ministerial Association, which was formed last Sunday.

The Good Citizens Association is "nonsectarian and nonpartisan. It will not have anything to do with political strifes. It is a moral movement and will seek only to improve the moral conditions of the county," its announcement says. Officers will be elected soon.

THE SATURDAY FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS PAGE

Appearing Each Week in The Washington Post

PRIZES ARE OFFERED FOR FOOD BUDGETS

Best Entry on Weekly Cost for Family of Five to Get $5 Award.

How much does it cost to keep an average household of five persons, three children and father and mother, in food for a week?

The Washington Post is anxious to find out, and a contest to this effect is announced hereby. It will close on June 1. Send in your weekly budgets, giving amounts of food purchased and from what stores. The only requirement is that each budget submitted must contain items purchased from stores and firms advertised on the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post.

The best food budget received will be awarded a special prize of $5. Address all entries to the Food Editor, Washington Post.

(Awarded Book Prize.)

1 pound moderate thick chops
1 tablespoon of sugar (Sanitary)
1 tablespoon of dry mustard
2 onions (Sanitary Store)
1 cup water

Put chops side by side in a baking pan, rub into both sides of the chops the sugar and mustard, that has been well mixed. Then slice the onions. Put them around the side of the chops. Pour cup of water in the pan. Cook three-quarters of an hour.

MRS. E. M. GRAHAM.
211 Peabody street northwest.

CARAMEL PIE.
(Honorable Mention.)

5 eggs (Sanitary Grocery)
1 cup preserves
½ cup cream
1 tablespoon vanilla
¾ cup sugar
Lump of butter size of an egg (Land o'Lakes butter)

DORA SWAN.
Brandy, Va.

WASHINGTON CREAM PIE.
(Honorable Mention.)

6 egg yolks (Sanitary Store)
1 cup sugar (Sanitary Store)
½ cup boiling water
1½ cups of flour (Washington Flour)
2 teaspoons baking powder
Salt
½ teaspon lemon extract
1 teaspoon of lemon rind (grated)

Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; add the sugar gradually and continue beating. Add boiling water and mix well, then the flour sifted with salt and baking powder. Beat till smooth and add flavoring and lemon rind. Pour into two well greased layer cake pans. Bake in slow oven for 25 minutes. Remove from pans and cool in rack. Split each layer and spread with the filling, making two pie-cakes of two thin layers each. Top with sweetened whipped cream.

Filling.

2 cups of milk
½ cup sugar (Sanitary Store)
3 tablespoons corn starch
4 egg yolks
2 tablespoons of Land o'Lakes butter
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat milk to scalding point, add to sugar, mixed with corn starch, then the beaten eggs; cook over hot water 15 minutes; remove and add butter, salt, flavoring. Cool before spreading on cake.

GRAYCE POWELL DUNLOP.
203 Hammond Court.

BLOSSOM SALAD.
(Honorable Mention.)

4 lettuce leaves
1 can Libby's pineapple
10 strawberries
2 teaspoons powdered sugar
¼ pound white cream cheese
4 tablespoons M. B. Frazier's walnuts
Hellmann's mayonnaise (Sanitary Grocery Co.).

Place two slices of pineapple on each lettuce leaf. Form small balls of cream cheese, fill center of pineapple and cover with grated walnuts. Slice berries in halves and dip bottoms in powdered sugar. Arrange five on each salad so as to form scarlet petals around the cheese-nut centers. Decorate edge of pineapple with mayonnaise, using a pastry set, or place a tablespoonful to one side.

MISS ALICE KERFOOT.
Riverdale, Md.

(Honorable Mention.)

4 cups strong black coffee (Swing's Town Club)
1 cup sugar
2 cups double cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
3 eggs (Rockingham)
(All from Sanitary Grocery.)

Strain and cool coffee, add whipped cream, sugar, beaten eggs and vanilla. Mix well, turn into a freezer, pack in ice and salt and let stand about 2½ hours. Serve in tall glasses with whipped and sweetened cream piled on top. Lady fingers are a nice cake accompaniment to this dessert.

MRS. J. L. O'CONNELL.
994 I street northwest.

COFFEE RING DESSERT.
(Honorable Mention.)

2 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
2 cups strong clear coffee (Swing's)
½ cup granulated sugar (Sanitary Stores).

Mix well cold water and gelatin. Add boiling water. When dissolved, add coffee and sugar. Cool. Pour into wet ring molds and chill until firm.

Make a hard sauce by mixing:

1 cup XXXX sugar
1 heaping tablespoon butter and enough milk to moisten.

When time comes to serve, unmold the gelatin on round platter and pile sauce in center of ring.

MRS. C. A. REPLOGLE.
701 Erie avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

BRIDE'S SHOWER CAKE.
(Honorable Mention.)

2 cups sugar
½ cup Jumbo butter
3 eggs (separated)
3 cups pastry flour
3 teaspoons baking flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter, add sugar gradually, mixing thoroughly into butter. Add unbeaten egg yolks, working the mixture to a creamy mass. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk to the creamed mixture. Beat in vanilla and a small amount of pink coloring, then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in three-round layers about 375 to 385 degrees.

Bake and spread jelly between layers or ice with boiled icing to which a little pink coloring has been added.

The cake may be decorated with small varied-colored gum drops, which give a pleasing effect.

RECIPES NECESSARY FOR WEEK-END PLANS.

ANOTHER week-end and how wonderfully soon it will be vacation time! It's a happy thought to bear in mind these spring evenings, not, however, that any of us are likely to be a forgetting of it!

But now for our recipes for the week-end menu and then two recipes for preserving, early though the season be, for a friend who has not signed her letter, which leaves us with no name to attach by way of identification. However, the recipes are for grape conserve and quince jelly. She will recognize her request, I'm sure, and clip her recipes.

Pot Roast of Beef.

3 pounds beef, rump or chuck
1 tablespoonful drippings
2 cupfuls boiling water
1 tablespoonful flour
1 finely chopped onion
2 bay leaves
Salt and pepper to taste.

Season and prepare the meat and sprinkle with flour. Fry the onion in fat until a light brown, add the meat and brown on all sides to keep in the juices. Pour on the boiling water, add the bay leaves and simmer slowly for about two and three-quarters hours or until tender. Add a little boiling water to prevent burning. Thicken gravy with one tablespoonful flour.

Spanish Lima Beans.

2 pounds shelled lima beans
1 small onion
2 cupfuls tomato
1 teaspoonful salt
1 green pepper
¼ cupful butter.

Cook lima beans until tender in boiling, salted water to cover. Place butter, chopped onion and pepper in a saucepan and brown very slightly over a low fire. Add tomato and beans and heat thoroughly. Serve hot.

Jellied Carrot Salad.

1 package lemon or orange-flavored gelatin.
1½ cupfuls grated raw carrots.
1 cupful diced celery or shredded cabbage.
2 cupfuls boiling water.

Pour boiling water over gelatin and stir until dissolved. When partly set fold in carrots and celery and chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Strawberry Meringue.

1 quart strawberries.
½ cupful sugar.
Whites of 3 eggs.
¾ cupful granulated sugar.

Wash and stem strawberries. Pile in a high mound on a flat baking dish. Dredge with one-half cupful sugar. Beat egg whites stiff; add ¾ cupful sugar, folding in lightly. Spread this meringue over the mounded berries. Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees) until meringue is a delicate brown. Serve either hot or cold.

And now the two request recipes.

Grape Conserve.

3 pounds Concord grapes.
3 oranges
1 pound seeded raisins
¼ pound walnut meats
Sugar.

Wash grapes, stem and remove pulp from skin. Add the water to the skins and simmer for 20 minutes. Simmer the pulp for 10 minutes and strain through a colander, removing the seeds. Grind together the oranges, raisins and nuts and add to the pulp and skins. Measure ingredients, add an equal quantity of sugar and cook for 20 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal with paraffin.

Quince Jelly.

Rub the fruit with a coarse towel until clean and smooth. Remove any imperfections and cut the fruit in pieces without peeling or coring. Place in kettle, barely cover with water and boil very slowly until fruit is tender, then strain off the juice through a cheesecloth bag. Do not squeeze if clear jelly is desired. Measure the juice and to each pint allow a pound of sugar. Boil the juice in a preserving kettle five minutes, add sugar, and stir until it dissolves. Continue the boiling until a little of the sirup jellies when dropped on a cold plate. The time for cooking will be from 20 to 30 minutes. Turn into sterilized jelly glasses.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey—I have been on a vegetable and fruit diet and have counted my calories for six weeks. I have lost only nine pounds. I am 5 feet 2 inches tall and now weigh 151 pounds. I should like to keep losing until I reach 136. I have an orange and bran with milk for breakfast; for lunch, soup and crackers, and for supper, meat, crackers, an apple (sometimes a piece of candy) and a bowl of soup.

Thank you for any information you may give me. SARA B.

First of all, Sara B., may I suggest that your diet needs careful revising? There is too much sameness there, my dear; too much of routine planning, which is even more disastrous to reducing than a too great variety. Granted you have been fairly successful thus far, I doubt if you could continue for long on a diet lacking in the generous amount of vegetables and fruits so strongly recommended. Your diet is satisfactory in so far as it goes, but therein lies the trouble. Where is the pint of milk required daily (unless in the soup)? Where are the two servings of green vegetables, the salads, the fruits, two servings at least, which should be part of your daily diet plan? Reform before it is too late, my dear, before your stomach, outraged and shrunken, begins to exact payment due. There is no fooling with nature, you know. A stern mistress when abused, she is most kind when carefully treated.

Let us hear from you soon. Unfortunately, there is not room here for all that our folder contains, nor to outline menus for you to follow. But I am sure the folder will help, and hope that you will follow its directions carefully. You may then reduce to 136 pounds safely, happily and healthfully.

$5 PRIZE RECEIVED FOR CHERRY PUDDING

Frozen Delicacy Prepared by Alexandrian Is Winning Recipe.

Even George Washington—we think—whose name has been linked with cherries quite often in history books, would relish the product of this week's winning recipe.

An Alexandria woman—Mrs. W. D Elam, of 128 North West street—is awarded the $5 weekly prize for her recipe for frozen cherry pudding. The products were purchased from stores which advertise on this page.

FROZEN CHERRY PUDDING.
(Awarded $5 Prize.)

2-3 teaspoon granulated gelatin
1 tablespoon cold water
2-3 cup sour cherries (measured when stoned and cut up)
1¼ cups sugar
2-3 cup cherry juice
1½ cups Pet milk, ¾ teaspoon gelatin, 2 teaspoons water, prepared for whipping
2 egg whites

Cover gelatin with cold water and let stand until soft. Cook cherries and sugar until sugar is dissolved. Add cherry juice and let come to a boil. Add gelatin and remove from fire at once, stirring until gelatin is dissolved. Add unbeaten egg whites to milk that has been prepared for whipping. Beat until stiff with a rotary egg beater. Fold into cherry mixture. Pour into mechanical refrigerator tray and freeze.

To prepare milk for whipping: Soak gelatine in the cold water for five minutes. Scald evaporated milk in double boiler. Remove from fire, add gelatine, stir well and place in bowl of cracked ice to cool. When thoroughly chilled whip with rotary beater.

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

SIMPLIFYING YOUR DAILY MARKETING.

I AM often asked: "Please tell me how to select good food." That's a rather comprehensive question. But Judge Gordon has a rule that usually holds true. "What appeals to the eye is generally pretty good." Of course, there are exceptions to this rule. For example, grapefruit with russet spots on it may be just as good as the fruit with no blemishes. But as a general rule, you can "believe your eyes."

Cauliflower that is solid and creamy white is much better looking than discolored heads, loosely put together. And it is better. Veal that is light in color and firm in texture looks, and is, much better than veal that is red and flabby. Good quality meat has plenty of fat in it. The fat should be almost white, not yellow, and marbled or streaked throughout the lean.

Another good rule is to ask questions of your grocer and your butcher. They'll be glad to help you.

Of course, as almost every one knows, morning is the best time to shop. The early shopper gets the first choice of fresh fruits and vegetables—and usually the best service from the grocer. He has more time in the morning. And you can avoid crowds, to a great extent, if you buy your staples early in the week, instead of on Fridays and Saturdays.

It pays to take advantage of special sales—especially sales of canned goods and groceries—for you can often buy your favorite brands at a considerable reduction in price.

It usually pays to buy two or three packs of cans of an item at a time. And here is another tip—remember that one large can is cheaper proportionately than two smaller ones.

Flour and sugar and other staples can be bought in quantity at quite a saving of money, and also of time.

Buy fresh green vegetables only as you need them. Those that keep well—potatoes, squash, turnips and so on, might as well be bought in quantities to last a week, if you have a place to store them. Perishable vegetables and fruits should be bought fresh every day or so.

And it's a good idea to buy your fresh vegetables and fruits from busy, active stores, where the stocks are sold out by night, and fresh stocks brought in every morning. You can depend on getting only fresh produce in a store that's busy all day long.

Meat, too, should be bought only as needed. Meat markets are equipped with coolers which keep meat at ideal tempearture until you are ready for it.

Then you can shorten your marketing job and also help your grocer a lot by making a list of the things you need before you go to market. The grocer appreciates the efficient customer who tries to save him steps. And you can do that by grouping certain things together on your list; butter and cheese and milk and eggs, for example; all your canned goods; and all your packaged items. For dairy products are kept in one part of the store, packaged goods in another, and so on.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Watermelons Arrive, Slightly Ahead of Season, at Terminal Market; Blackberries Due Next Week; Cantaloupes Make Appearance.

Pulling in far ahead of the season to make the most interesting bit of food news in Washington this week was a carload of watermelons at a big Southwest terminal market. These early melons came from Florida. They averaged about 25 pounds each. They are selling at retail for about 75 cents to $1. The carload contained 1,250 melons, packed in straw in carefully laid tiers, separated by paper walls.

Not by rail, but by Potomac River transportation, many of the later watermelons will come to Washington. Then the melon boats from the Virginia capes and the Carolinas will crowd to the food terminal's wharf.

Blackberries are expected to arrive next week, according to the head of one of the largest fruit and vegetable wholesale houses in the terminal market. The early blackberries also are from Florida.

The few cantaloupes now on the food market are California cantaloupes, and their price is 35 cents each or higher.

The most attractive cake the Meander saw in all her wanderings this week was one made especially for a silver wedding anniversary by a G street pastry shop. The cake was large, white throughout, and decorated with silver leaves and candy flowers. Golden wedding cakes are decorated accordingly by this shop. Today an especially good value this shop is offering is a large chocolate layer cake and a half dozen Danish pastries for 70 cents.

Large, thrifty rhododendron plants were selling for $2 each at a market in Southwest Washington.

Sea food prices are now at the lowest point many of the local fish dealers have known them to be in their many years of experience, a well known dealer in the municipal fish market told the Meanderer. Many fish prices have fallen 300 per cent in the last several years. Therefore, it would seem that sea food is one excellent, appetizing solution to the housewife's meal planning problem. The list of fresh sea food now offered in the local shops includes roe shad, buck shad, sets of row, split shad, rock fish, striped bass, spotted trout, grey trout, pan trout, croakers, butter fish, Boston mackerel, white perch, blue fish, sea bass, halibut, salmon, herring roe, fillet of haddock, whole haddock, any size fresh cod, tile fish, filet of flounder, scallops, clams, shrimps, soft crabs, live lobster, lobster meat and crab meat.

A big-eyed little girl about 6 years old, granddaughter of a famous President—a little person about whom much has been written for the public—is a frequent visitor in one of the big food markets. She often accompanies her distinguished mother, or in charge of her nursemaid. The flower stands with their spring array seem to claim the little girl's attention more than does any other section of the market.

One dealer in a big downtown market is famous for his assortment of cold meat cuts. One particular favorite is a goose liver sausage compound of which he has sold hundreds of pounds to customers, year after year. Other cold cuts featured at this stand are ox-tongue and head cheese.

While tomatoes in many markets increased in value this week, the Meanderer insists that tomatoes may be bought in at least one spot—if the shopper is willing to cash and carry—for 50 cents for a 6-pound basket.

Scrambled Eggs in Sausage Cups.

3 eggs
4¼ inch slices of Salami sausage
¼ tablespoon salt
⅛ tablespoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter

Leave the rinds on the slices of sausage. Brown the sausage in the butter, letting them curl to form small cups. Remove to hot platter, scramble the eggs in the same skillet and fill the cooked eggs into the sausage cups. Makes two servings.

Raisin Hard Sauce.

1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons evaporated milk
2 cups confectioner's sugar
½ cup raisins

Cream butter, add sugar and blend thoroughly. Add milk slowly until mixture is light and fluffy. Add raisins. Keep cold until ready to serve. Yield: Six servings.

CAULIFLOWER LEMON DRESSING.
(Honorable Mention.)

For a dinner for five or six persons, remove the large leaves from a medium size cauliflower, but leave a few of the tender leaves, cut off the large part of the stalk. Wash in salted water. Cook (head up) twenty minutes or until tender in boiling salted water. Drain. Have ready a melted piece of Land o' Lakes butter the size of a large walnut, season with the juice of a lemon and pour over the cauliflower. Garnish with slices of lemon.

COTTON AGAIN LOSES IN RENEWED SELLING

July Contracts Drop to 5.60; Liverpool Demand Rises as Japan Buys.

There was some liquidation and local selling, probably influenced by the weakness of the stock market and continued favorable weather in the South. July sold off from 5.64 to 5.57 and closed at 5.60, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 1 to 2 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 2 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables. There was a little trade and commission house demand as well as covering, but it was quite readily supplied, and selling became a little more active after the call owing to the lower opening of the stock market.

Losses Are Narrow.

After showing net losses of about 4 to 5 points on active positions the market held within a narrow range. Closing quotations showed rallies of 2 to 4 points from the lowest on most positions.

The weather map was favorable, but it failed to stimulate much selling. A few additional May notices were issued without any appreciable effect on the market, and July liquidation was again largely in the form of switches from near to late months, with some trade buying of the near positions.

Liverpool cables reported trade calling and Japanese buying, supplied by Bombay selling in that market, and said there was a good turnover in Egyptian yarns.

Advices from the Southwest said that Statewide rains in Texas while beneficial on the whole, had delayed planting in most areas and checked field work, while continued cool weather slowed germination and growth.

Exports today were 15,236 bales making 7,664,266 bales so far this season.

Two Mines Will Close In Ceur d'Alene District

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—The Morning and Page Mines of the Federal Mining & Smelting Co. in the Ceur d'Alene district, will be closed down on May 31, the company announced today.

These are the only mines of the company now in operation. In its statement the company said it hoped conditions will permit the reopening of the properties on October 1.

COLUMBIA NATIONAL BANK ADDS CASHIER

Sheridan Kleindienst Made Assistant After 12 Years With Institution.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Election of Sheridan S. Kleindienst as an additional assistant cashier of Columbia National Bank was announced yesterday following the regular weekly meeting of the board of directors of that institution. The election gives the bank the services of two assistant cashiers again, Mr. Kleindienst and Albert E. Yeatman. Robert H. Lacey and Mr. Yeatman served as assistant cashiers until April 9, 1930, when the former was elected cashier, succeeding Arthur N. Mitchell, who retired.

Mr. Kleindienst has been in the employ of the bank since 1920 and during this period has had practical experience in all departments of the institution. Twenty-eight years old, he was educated in the public schools of the city and holds a standard certificate from the American Institute of Banking. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus and Washington Board of Trade.

Traction Earnings Decline.

A statement of Capital Traction Co. prepared yesterday for submission to the Public Utilities Commission showed net earnings for April of $22,086.55, a decline of $43,036.75 from those of April, 1931. For the four months of 1932, its net income was $50,834.36, a recession of $126,363.24 from that of the period last year.

April sales of Lerner Stores Corporation total $1,947,610, a 15.9 per cent decrease from those of April, 1931. Sales of the four months of the present year aggregate $6,936,277, a decline of 10.6 per cent. Last month's sales of Sally Frocks, Inc., amounted to $435,965, or 13.4 per cent under those of April, 1931. For the four months they are $1,311,158, or 16.5 per cent below the comparative period a year ago.

Capper Bill Report Is Made by P. U. C.

Substitute Plan for Taxing Utilities of District Is Rumored.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday submitted its report on the Capper bill to increase taxation on local public utilities to the District Commissioners, but neither body would make public the text of the recommendations until an agreement is reached. It is expected that both bodies will report to the Senate District committee next week.

A conference of the Commissioners, a representative of the Tax Assessor's Office, and Maj. D. J. Donovan, auditor, was held yesterday, but no action was taken. It is expected that a substitute proposal will be worked out as the utilities body is believed to have supported the contention of local utilities that the proposed tax would be difficult to administer.

The Commissioners will also recommend the elimination of a section of the bill relating to the taxation of banks, it is understood. Together with the Bureau of Efficiency, the two municipal bodies are expected to propose an increase in the percentage assessed against gross earnings in place of the ad valorem tax on personal property.

Money Issue Urged For Soldier Bonus

Minority Group of House Committee Reports on Patman Bill.

(Associated Press.)

Ten members of the ways and means committee told the House yesterday in a minority report on the Patman bill for redeeming the soldiers' bonus certificates by the issuance of new money that the greatest need of the country was for more money in circulation.

The report, favoring the cash payment plan which was rejected by the committee majority, was signed by Representatives Ragon, of Arkansas; Canfield, of Indiana; McCormack, of Massachusetts; Vinson, of Kentucky; Hill, of Washington; Cullen and Sullivan, of New York; Dickinson, of Missouri; Eslick, of Tennessee, and Sanders, of Texas, all Democrats.

"More money in circulation is needed and the payment of adjusted service certificates would supply that need by distributing $2,000,000,000 or more of actual money throughout every part of the country," it said. Next Tuesday the rules committee will hear bonus sponsors on a resolution to permit the House to consider the Patman bill despite the adverse revenue committee report.

Chicago Builders Tell U. S. Rights in Danger

Chicago, May 13 (A.P.).—United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson announced today that "rights have been jeopardized" in attempts to construct the Illinois Eye and Ear Infirmary here and that he had reported the complaints of the contractors to the Attorney General, in Washington.

Evidence of violation of the interstate commerce act was given, Johnson said, in a conference of the contractors. State officials, nonunion labor organizations, and crime-investigating groups. He said the investigation "must be authorized from Washington under the law." It involved interference with interstate shipments of stone, sand, gravel, and cement into Illinois and protests of union labor heads, chiefly George Barker, "public enemy and former convict," against unloading of the materials.

National Credit Issues Note Redemption Call

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—The National Credit Corporation today issued a call for redemption on May 23 of 40 per cent of the original principal amount of its outstanding gold notes.

This is the fifth redemption call by the corporation since the $135,000,000 of notes were placed with subscribing banks last January to provide funds for the assistance of solvent institutions which were experiencing difficulty in meeting the demands of their depositors.

The latest redemption call will mean the retirement of $13,500,000 of the notes, reducing the amount outstanding to less than $61,000,000.

MARKET COMMENT

Frazier Jelke & Co.—Distress among debtors, as in the past, is dividing economic thought into two opposing schools, those who seek relief in an inflation of currency and credit sufficient to effect a rise in prices, and those who contend that inflation is a cowardly policy destined to end in greater disaster.

G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.—Now that last week's rally has been lost and the market as a whole is approaching its low, speculators might resume moderate purchases on weak spots. We still see little reason for haste in making complete commitments for the rally which can be expected some time in the coming weeks.

Westheimer & Co.—Market depends largely upon what takes place at Washington concerning financial legislation. Buying support lacking at present, but liquidation has gone rather far, leaving the market in a favorable technical position to respond should the news take on a favorable turn.

New Orleans Road Plans Interest Cut

Great Northern Reduces Loss in April to $20,000; Total Deficit, $100,000.

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—Officials and bondholders of the New Orleans Great Northern Railroad Co. are working on a plan for scaling down the road's interest charges about 50 per cent, it was reported in railroad circles today.

The road, controlled by the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad Co., showed a deficit after charges of approximately $20,000 in April, bringing the loss for the first four months to about $100,000 against a loss of $55,000 in the same period last year.

Gulf, Mobile & Northern had a deficit in April of about $15,000, according to preliminary figures.

V. V. Boatner, former president of the Chicago Great Western Railroad Co., has been elected a director of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern.

$10,000,000 Discount Firm Starts in Wyoming

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 13 (A.P.).—Organization of the Wyoming Discount Corporation, designed to handle a maximum of $10,000,000 in State agricultural loans, was completed here today.

WORLD PHONE NETS $7,654,001 IN 1931

Gross Profit Drops to $78,570,000; Earnings $1.20 Per Share.

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—International Telephone & Telegraph Co., which had to contend with critical conditions in most of the countries it serves with communication facilities, had net income of $7,654,001 in 1931.

This compared with $13,750,000 in 1930 and was equal to $1.20 a share against $2.07 in the previous year.

The company's annual report, issued today, said that consolidated operating revenues and gross profit totaled $78,570,000 for 1931 as compared with $93,076,000 for 1930. Exchange losses on net current assets, mostly the result of gold standard suspensions, amounted to $2,506,584.

Combined gross revenues of the corporation's associated telephone companies showed an overall increase of 3.2 per cent, while net operating revenues on the same basis gained 15.5 per cent. Telephones in service increased from 668,082 to 769,920, the gain being accounted for in part by addition of the Roumanian lines to the international system.

The report made references to International's contract with Kreuger & Toll Co. for a block of Ericsson Telephone Co., Ltd., stock and to the payment of $11,000,000 in cash on account, the balance to be paid in International stock against an additional block of Ericsson shares.

The statement repeated a recent announcement to the effect that this contract had been rescinded early this year, before any International stock was delivered, on the discovery that "certain representations of fact, upon which the agreement was based, were found to be inaccurate."

"Under the arrangements made the stock of the Ericsson Co. previously delivered is held by the Swedish bank for the corporation's account as collateral security for the repayment of the amount already paid."

Senate Group Approves 4 Protested Postmasters

(Associated Press.)

A favorable report on four Tennessee postmaster nominees protested by Representative Lovette (Republican), Tennessee, was voted yesterday by the Senate postoffice committee. They are Lulu M. Divine, Johnson City; Jasper A. Berry, Bullsgap; R. T. Johnson, jr., Elizabethton; Henry I. Smythe, Bristol.

Stocks and Bonds Resume Slump to New Low Prices

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, May 13 (A.P.).—The relapse in stocks continued today, but volume was smaller than yesterday and the market seemed thin rather than weak.

Trading quickened moderately in the last hour when roughly a third of the day's business, which totaled 865,506 shares, was done. Brokers found it difficult to place their fingers on the cause of the decline, since spontaneous news developments were colorless, but assured that impaired margin accounts were being liquidated and that banks were plugging ahead with painful house-cleaning in their collateral loan departments.

Wall street had much more complete information on new Federal relief proposals.

U. S. Government bonds were steady to firm in comparison with yesterday's reaction, which in some quarters was interpreted as meaning that second thoughts on the suggested measures had caused a revision of opinion as to the possible effects of such aid.

Undoubtedly selling of railroad securities was a depressing influence all around, for several prominent carrier equities reached under previous minimums and small demand appeared for their bonds.

New Lows Recorded.

The Standard Statistics-Associated Press average for 90 stocks made a new low on the basis of final prices; thus the market has more than lost what it gained on last Friday's rally.

Net declines ranged from a fraction to half a dozen points, with losses of 1 to 3 fairly numerous. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, National Biscuit, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Woolworth, North American, Illinois Central and Allied Chemical yielded 1 to 1¾ net. American Telephone, Du Pont, General Foods, American Tobacco "B," Santa Fe, Western Union and Union Pacific were off 2 to 3 points. Peoples Gas, United Air Craft preferred and New Haven preferred closed 6 points lower. Norfolk & Western was off 4. Many stocks made new lows on fractional recessions.

Changes on the retail and wholesale map were somewhat more favorable, according to the weekly mercantile reviews. Although business continues irregular, said Dun's, "evidence of improvement in major branches are more numerously apparent."

Better Tone Evident.

"A better tone pervaded the entire list of reports from widely separated districts, and the general adoption of rigid economy in management at the low-priced structure now developed is aiding the progress of commercial activity and strengthening the general financial foundation."

Bradstreet's usual reports from 55 cities disclosed "a slight seasonal revival in retail business." However, "it is apparent that commerce is continuing to wait upon Congress, but with a little more hope for constructive action than has been expressed in the past."

Standard Oil of New Jersey's annual report for 1931 topped off the returns for a very poor year in the oil business. Jersey's strong position and diversified interests kept the company out of the red, earnings being 34 cents a share, against $1.65 in 1931, but maintenance of dividends necessitated a substantial draft on surplus.

Federal Bonds Higher.

The bond market lost its grip today and, with support lacking except in a few of the highest grade corporate issues, the averages staggered into new low territory for the year.

The United States Government list rallied sharply in the early part of the session, but reacted midly later. The majority of the Federals finished with moderate gains and the others were only off fractionally.

While the Government's plans for inaugurating public works projects for the relief of unemployment were still somewhat vague, it was felt in some financial quarters that large additional bond issues were not part of the scheme. Immediate relief for some of the suffering States, it was thought, probably would be handled by the issuance of debentures by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The railroads, which were the worst sufferers in today's painful operations, apparently were not directly affected by news from Washington or elsewhere. Their weakness was generally attributed to poor traffic reports and growing uncertainties as to just how much assistance they can expect in meeting interest charges and nearby maturities.

Losses of from 1 to around 5 points were recorded by a number of speculative transportation bonds. Among the chief losers were liens of Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Nickel Plate, Frisco, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Pere Marquette, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Wabash. Pennsylvania guaranteed 4s lost 8 points and Pere Marquette 5s were off 9.

The utilities and industrials sagged in sympathy with the rails, but their declines were more moderate. A few specialties such as Wilson & Co. 6s and both Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s dropped around 3 points.

Both Australian and New South Wales bonds were strong, following the resignation of Premier Lang of New South Wales. Other foreign obligations were somewhat mixed. British 5½s firmed, but loans of France were heavy and those of Germany barely steady.

Sales totaled $10,649,000, par value. The average for 60 corporate securities declined nine-tenths of a point.

Curb Undertone Firm.

There was no letup in the slow nearing away of values in today's curb market. Moderate selling continued to trickle through the list. The turnover of 120,000 shares approximated that of the previous session. Losses in the more active issues were largely limited to fractions, but many of the thinly traded shares slumped rather substantially.

In the oils, Standard of Indiana and Gulf were moderately active, particularly the former, but sagged only minor fractions. Humble lost nearly a point.

In the utility group, pressure against Electric Bond and Share relaxed somewhat, that issue closing at 11¼, off ¼. The $6 preferred, however, sold at 30, off 6½ and near its low. American Gas and Electric lost about a point, and Commonwealth Edison dropped 4. Shaninigan Water and Power, a Canadian issue in which trading was suspended when England abandoned the gold standard last September, was put back in the list, and traded at 10, off 13¼ points.

Great Atlantic and Pacific traded at 120, off 5 and a new low. Tonnage sales for the four weeks ended April 30 were reported as off about 7 per cent, while dollar volume was off, roughly, 15 per cent.

Apponsug Co. made its first appearance in months, selling at 20, off 10 points since it last traded.

The Swift issues lost about a point, and Ford of Canada sagged fractionally. Western Air was a firm spot, up ½ to 7.

New York, May 13 (A.P.)—Liquidation of a large account was responsible for the recent sharp decline in Colgate-Palmolive-Peet common stock, according to Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the company's finance committee. He stated there was nothing in the company's business to warrant a decline in its securities.

New York City officials are negotiating with the Chase National Bank and National City Bank for a loan of $5,000,000 to bear 5½ per cent. The loan is expected to be in the form of tax notes and special revenue bonds due in June, 1933.

Several large city and State bond flotations scheduled for next week will raise the weekly total of municipal financing to $46,402,746 as compared with $25,732,661 during the current week, according to the Daily Bond Buyer. The weekly average of all new offerings for the year to date is $20,845,795.

The "informal committee" of bankers which governs rates of interest paid by leading New York banks on foreign deposits has voted to reduce all rates by one-half of 1 per cent, effective on May 17. This action, according to bankers, is to bring the interest rate on foreign deposits in line with that paid on domestic deposits, which was lowered a short time ago.

The seventh successive low point was registered by Bradstreet's weekly food index of wholesale prices during the week ended May 10. It now stands at $1.67, a drop of 0.6 per cent from the previous week and 24.4 per cent from the corresponding week last year. The adjusted index is at 53.3 per cent compared with 53.4 per cent last week and 70.5 per cent for the same week a year ago.

Bank clearings of 47 leading cities for the week ended May 11, as reported to Bradstreets, aggregated $4,733,268,000 a decrease of 16.3 per cent from the preceding week and of 43.5 per cent from the corresponding week a year ago. Part of the decline from the previous week is attributed to the fact that the figures reflect neither midmonthly or month-end payments.

Henry Druere, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, has been elected a director of the New York Life Insurance Co.

Stockholders of Alliance Realty Co. have approved the plan to change the par value of the common shares to $5 from no par.

BURGOO KING CHOICE IN PREAKNESS FIELD OF 12 TODAY; CROWDER ALLOWS ONLY 2 HITS IN BEATING DETROIT, 7-0

Pimlico Classic Attracts Only Three Derby Horses With Favorite Likely to Be Scratched If Track Turns Muddy

Tick On Seen Chief Rival of Bradley's 2-to-1 Choice.

BALTIMORE, May 13 (A.P.). Burgoo King, winner of the Kentucky Derby, today was named to carry his newly won 3-year-old championship title into competition against eleven crack Eastern colts in the forty-second running of the $50,000 Preakness at Pimlico tomorrow.

Barring another deluge of rain, such as has soaked the picturesque course the last five days, Burgoo King is expected to face the barrier the favorite at 2-1. If the going is heavy, however, there is a strong chance that E. R. Bradley will scratch his third Derby winner, as the son of Bubbling Over has no liking for mud.

Only two other Derby starters, Mrs. Louis G. Kaufmann's Tick On and J. J. Robinson's Lucky Tom, were chosen to oppose the King. The remainder of the field, all Eastern-owned horses, earned whatever honors they have won in races over the Maryland and New York turf.

Racing Strip May Be Fast.

The racing strip gave some indication of being at least good for Baltimore's big event when the sun today came to the aid of Track Superintendent John Ryan and his score of helpers. Unless more rain falls before post time, about 4 p. m. (Eastern standard time), Ryan promises the track will be fast—just the type of going desired by Burgoo King. The Preakness is at 1 3-16 miles.

Despite his poor race in the Derby, Tick On appears to be the colt the King will have to beat. The small field will favor the son of On Watch, which usually is sluggish in breaking from the barrier. Alfred Robertson has been given the mount. Pete Walls, Tick On's rider in the Derby, will be aboard Morton L. Schwartz's Barcelona Pete. Tick On, Barcelona Pete and Schwartz Gusto will run as an entry.

Tick On also has a liking for mud, as has Walter J. Salmon's Mad Pursuit and Lucky Tom. Earl Sande will ride Mad Pursuit.

MACKS SLUG BROWNS FOR 9-4 WIN

Foxx Gets 4 Singles, Cochrane Hits 6th Homer of Year.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13 (A.P.).—The Athletics, and Jimmie Foxx in particular, fattened their batting averages at the expense of two St. Louis pitchers today as they pounded out a 9-to-4 victory over the Browns.

The Athletics nicked George Blaeholder and Dick Coffman for seventeen hits. Foxx getting four singles in five times up. Mule Haas got three hits and Mickey Cochrane his sixth homer of the year.

HURLER'S HIT WINS FOR CUBS, 3-2

Guy Bush Hero on Mound, at Plate, in Defeat of Braves.

CHICAGO, May 13 (A.P.). — Guy Bush produced one of his mystery hits in a ninth inning rally today to give the Cubs a 3 to 2 victory over the Boston Braves and run their lead to three games in the National League pennant race.

The score was tied at two-all, two were out and runners rested on third and first when Bush strode to the plate. Although he hits about four safe blows a year, Manager Rogers Hornsby took a chance and let him bat. He responded with a line drive that rolled against the left centerfield bleachers for a double, driving in the winning run easily.

Retzlaff Gets Decision Over Jimmy Braddock

Boston, May 13 (A.P.).—Charley Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight, won a close decision over Jimmy Braddock, of Jersey City, tonight in the Boston Garden ten-round feature bout. The decision was jeered. Retzlaff, who weighed 195, had a 14-pound weight advantage on his rival, as well as in height and reach.

Helen Jacobs Beaten In First Foreign Test

Berlin, May 13 (A.P.).—Helen Jacobs, number two ranking tennis star of the United States, was eliminated from the Berlin championships today by Jadwica Jedrze Jowska, of Poland, 2—6, 6—4, 4—6.

BIG REGATTA ON SEVERN TODAY

Tars, Harvard, Penn and M. I. T. Clash in Crew Races.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 13.—More than 100 oarsmen were assembled at the Naval Academy tonight ready to compete in the biggest college regatta ever staged on Severn River. The midshipmen are hosts of the occasion and the visiting groups are the sweepsters from University of Pennsylvania, Harvard and Massachusetts Tech.

There will be four-cornered races for varsity and junior varsity eights and triangular contests between freshmen and 150-pound crews. Harvard is entered only in the two big events, so that the minor brushes will be between Penn, Boston Tech and Navy.

All of the rival crews worked during the afternoon. Weather conditions were ideal following the four-day northeast storm that abated last night, and prospects are for favorable elements tomorrow.

All of the crews plan to take limbering-up spins tomorrow. The coaches, Charlie Whiteside, of Harvard, Bill Haines, of Tech, and Rusty Callow, Penn, and "Buck" Walsh, of Navy, pronounce their charges fit for the races.

The varsity contest will, of course, be the outstanding contest of the day's card, and four stalwart groups of bladesmen will go to the starting line. The races are scheduled for 8 o'clock, and will be run off at half-hour intervals. One hundred and fifty-pounders will be first to swing into action, then the freshmen, jayvees, and varsity crews in the order named.

Navy has two crews of about equal strength available for the varsity event, and Coach Walsh said tonight that weather conditions will be the determining factor as to which one will go to the scratch. If elements are rough, the heavier group stroked by Capt. Shelton will get the assignment; otherwise the Jewett-stroked group will have the call.

Indications are that the real battle in the varsity race will be between Navy and Harvard, and it would seem that the Tars have a tough assignment on their hands, in view of the

U. S. NETMEN TAKE LEAD IN SERIES

Vines, Allison Beat Mexicans in Davis Cup Singles.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13 (A.P.).—The United States Davis Cup Tennis Team won the first two singles matches from the Mexicans today at the New Orleans Country Club to take the lead in the semi-final series of the North American zone.

Ellsworth Vines, United States champion, defeated Alfonso Unda, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4, after Wilmer Allison won from Ricardo Tapia, Mexico's top ranking player, 6—2, 6—3, 6—4.

In both matches the Mexicans battled doggedly and at times broke through the Americans with flashes of brilliant tennis, but the variety of strokes displayed by the United States players was too much for them.

Both Vines and Allison played careful tennis to outstroke their opponents, but both had periods of ragged play, netting easy shots and overdriving the base line.

Vines ran through his first set with Unda in easy style, the Mexican being able to win only one of his own service games. In the second set, Vines sprouted a crop of errors and Unda tied the score at two-all with neat placements and base line driving. Vines then steadied to run the set out. Unda took the lead at two-love in the final set before Vines braced to run up a five-two lead. Vines lost two more and then steadied to win the match.

Tapia also was slow in getting started and Allison marched through the Tigers Unable to Reach Second Base as Veteran Hurler Has Brilliant Day

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

"GENERAL" ALVIN CROWDER was in rare form yesterday, holding the Detroit Tigers to but two hits, walking none, and fanning six, the result being a fourth successive victory for the Nationals, bringing their record on the present home stay to ten triumphs in eleven starts. The score was 7 to 0, which, incidentally, marked the fourth shutout recorded by the Washington Club to date and the sixth win credited Crowder.

Crowder had one of those rare days when he could not do anything wrong. He had his fast one working to perfection and a baffling change of pace which frequently had Harris' heavy hitters looking like novices at the plate. It was only on rare occasions that the "General" was not in front of the batter on the ball and strike count, and when he was close to walking a batter he was able to bear down.

No Tiger Hits After The Second.

Both of the Detroit hits were made in the early frames, Stone singling with two dead in the first and Richardson under the same conditions in the second. From then on the aliens came close to getting safeties only twice. In the sixth, after an error by Cronin had given Johnson life, Reynolds rushed back to the scoreboard to make a fancy overhead grab of Rogell's long looper, while Manush cut in toward second to snare another near-hit—a short pop which promised to elude every one, also off Rogell's bat—in the ninth.

With the Tigers unable to advance any of their three base runners past the initial sack, Crowder did not need much batting help from his mates. In fact, he took matters into his own hands on two occasions, singling home the Washington run scored in the second and starting a three-run rally in the eighth with a triple. That it went as a hit, though, was due to the fact that Walker misjudged the pop and overran it.

Herring no Help as Relief Pitcher.

Manager Bucky Harris gave his pitching assignment to Whitlow Wyatt, and, but for his wildness, Wyatt might have given Crowder quite a mound battle. But he walked eight and two of these passes were turned into runs. Harris changed his battery in the eighth, due to the use of pinch hitters, and this brought Art (Kippered) Herring to the hill in the home half, and his offerings were knicked for three runs. But for a double play, the game might have run on indefinitely, for he appeared

Australia Cup Netmen Take Lead Over Cuba

Havana, May 13 (U.P.).—Australia defeated Cuba today in the first two singles matches of their second round North American zone Davis Cup tie.

Jack Crawford, of Australia, one of the world's outstanding singles players, defeated Ricardo Morales, of Cuba, 6—3, 6—1, 7—5, and Harry Hoppman beat Gustavo Vollmer, No. 1 Cuban player, 6—2, 6—1, 4—6, 6—1.

If Australia wins the doubles match tomorrow, they will take the series, earning the right to meet the winner of the United States-Mexico tie at New Orleans, in the North American finals.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

PREAKNESS day is at hand again at Pimlico with Burgoo King and Tick On the top-heavy favorites in the field of twelve, but when the ground crew curries the track this afternoon about 4:15 o'clock to make way for the running of the $50,000 added, stake, it might be well to give a thought to the 1931 renewal of this famous classic.

A twelvemonth ago when Preakness time rolled around again at Pimlico, so were there also two outstanding favorites, Equipoise and Twenty Grand, most famous 2-year-olds of the preceding season and cofavorites in the winter betting for the Derby, but when the field roared down the stretch the message that the thudding hoofs beat out had to do with the victory of Mate, the third choice.

Burgoo King and Tick On may be false favorites today, as a victory by another outsider would prove, but their backing is based upon solid performances; Burgoo King's Derby triumph and Tick On's last two races against huge odds.

It is difficult to detract from Burgoo King's performance in the Derby. He followed the pace and took command when called upon to draw away into a five lengths lead at the wire. But he has shown no liking for the heavy going and anything short of a fast track may cause his withdrawal, the $50,000 stake notwithstanding.

Tick On suffered all kinds of interference in his last Maryland race, but was crying for his head throughout and in the Derby his fractiousness at the post which delayed the field more than fifteen minutes doubtless took much of the stamina from the Loma Stable colt. But he should have no excuses today.

Today's Preakness field is a comparatively small group of twelve, with no more than ten likely to face the barrier. The Preakness' starting fee of $1,000 as compared to the Derby fee of $500 has had much to do with reducing the field. But it should make for a more truly run race. And a true champion of the turf can run on any kind of a track, fast, good or muddy.

SUN MEADOW WINS PIMLICO FEATURE WITH STRETCH RUSH

Aegis Beaten By Smith's Finish

Portam, Entered for Preakness, Tires Near the End.

Faylin Scores Upset in Fourth, Paying $48 Mutuel.

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Post Staff Correspondent).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, May 13. Sun Meadow and Jockey Jimmy Smith gave the favorite players the heebie-jeebies today before horse and rider decided to put an end to a stretch duel that seemed to lie between Aegis and Portam to win the Pimlico Spring Handicap. Aegis wound up in second place, with Portam third and the remainder of the field, consisting only of Rehoboth, an added starter, fourth.

The victory brought $2,910 cash into the purse of Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt, owner of the son of Sun Briar and Red Clover.

Scratches took Barcelona Pete and Tred Avon out of the race and brought Rehoboth into action on a day when he thought he could munch his oats in the barn.

Portam Takes Lead At The Start.

Portam, overnight entry for tomorrow's Preakness, was hustled to the front of the vest pocket field as they left the barrier. Meade pulled in for the rail and seemed to have plenty of horse under him as Aegis, Sun Meadow and Rehoboth followed in a compact group. Turning up the back stretch, Portam held his advantage and there was no noticeable move from Sun Meadow or Aegis, but Rehoboth was tiring.

On the swing for the stretch Aegis moved up to give Portam a battle, but Smith, knowing his horse, stuck to his guns, pulling to the outside as they turned into the stretch. Aegis wore down Portam at the sixteenth pole just as Smith called upon Sun Meadow for speed. The colt answered with a rush that left Aegis and Portam fighting for second honors which were won by the former. Sun Meadow had a half length advantage at the finish.

Track Dries Out Fast During Card.

Preakness eve brought out some 15,000 after rain had marred racing here for four days. Friday, the 13th, seemed to hold no fears for the bettors and the lines at the mutuel windows were crowded. The track was muddy as the program opened, but dried out fast as the racing progressed.

My Care outclassed the field of jumpers in the opener at the weights and conditions. Jockey Mergler kept the gelding in the first group for most of the first swing around the course and then went to the front to draw away on the last turn, winning by 25 lengths. The only semblance of a contest was for second place, Moonstruck beating Autumn Bells for the lesser award. Muskogee was a keen factor until he lost his rider at the fifth fence.

Cutie Pace, aided by a hustling Gilbert ride, won from the field of a dozen 2-year-olds in the first race. Cutie Pace took the lead soon after the break and won from Bohemian Grove and Gala Time with plenty to spare.

Apprehensive Wins Yearling Race.

Apprehensive, the property of Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, won the third race, another test for juveniles. This filly had to be ridden out to take the decision from a long shot, Bobby F., which led from the break. Performance was in third place. Jimmy Smith had the mount on the winner and put up a sterling ride.

Faylin stuck to his recent good form and won a nose decision over Gloria Maris, with Syriac third. The race from start to finish was between the one-two horses, with Faylin setting all the pace and Gloria Maris moving up to battle with the leader. Clancy, on the ultimate winner, and Hanford, Gloria Maris' rider, went to their respective whips in the stretch. Gloria Maris moved up almost abreast of the leader, but Clancy held on to an advantage of inches in the last 10 yards. The race was marked by some weird betting and Faylin paid a $48 mutuel.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code)

—By Ken Kling

Another winner yesterday from reports from track said heavy commissions from Jersey spoiled Asbestos' price. The roll went up $1.05 and is now $25.69. Today the old boy plays one in the Preakness that few in the country will pick, lets wish him luck. He also bets $5 on code horse at Churchill Downs, 4, 17, 15, 19, 11, 3, 2, 18.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MY CARE, $6.10, $3.50, $3.50; MOONSTRUCK, $3.40, $2.90; AUTUMN BELLS, $4.70.

MY CARE, swerving to the outside when the break came, was straightened away quickly, raced close up early, assumed command of the eighth fence and, fencing boldly in the final mile, drew out at will to win with much in reserve. MOONSTRUCK, reserved for the first turn of the field, saved ground when entering into contention, but was never able to threaten the winner. AUTUMN BELLS, prominent and going in his best form, weakened in the final five furlongs. GLANEUR was stoutly ridden the entire trip. BLUE BANNER was in the final drive. He followed well. PROOF POSITIVE had excuses. BLUE BANNER was far back the entire journey. KAHLER went well. ERIC THE RED weakened early. MUSKOGEE lost his rider at the fifth fence.

SECOND RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The Prospect. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:33½. Off at 2:43. Winner, Mrs. F. C. Sedan's b. f. (2), by Chilhowee—No Regrets. Trained by W. H. Brooks. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CUTIE PACE, $7.60, $4.30, $3.30; BOHEMIAN GROVE, $4.90, $2.70; GALA TIME, $5.90.

CUTIE PACE, quick to settle in full stride, raced BOHEMIAN GROVE into defeat after three furlongs and went into an easy lead in the final furlong. BOHEMIAN GROVE, hard ridden and offering good contention early, weakened when straightened into the home stretch. GALA TIME, forwardly placed and saving ground wherever possible, finished with good energy. POLLY came with a belated rush on the outside during the final quarter mile. DROMBO was unable to reach the leaders. HIGH MIST raced evenly. THE BLACK could never enter contention. The others were outrun.

THIRD RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:00½. Off at 3:07½. Winner, Mrs. F. B. Clark's b. c. (2), by Apprehension—Recession. Trained by Jr. M. Walker. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:50 3-5, 0:57 2-5.

*Field. †A. M. Chichester, jr.-William Garth entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—APPREHENSIVE, $10.00, $6.40, $4.10; BOBBY F., $35.80, $19.70; PERFORMANCE $3.90.

APPREHENSIVE, going along in near pursuit of the pace, swung to the outside when moving into the home stretch and, finishing in stout fashion, wore BOBBY F. down slowly and was under strong urging at the end. BOBBY F., going in improved fashion, withstood keen contention from PERFORMANCE and continued willingly when the final drive came. PERFORMANCE, a forward factor from the start, weakened during the final sixteenth mile. LONE HAND, slow to get going, circled his field and finished with good speed. NUTTING closed a good gap after racing wide. ALEETA was unable to menace the leaders. GALLIC was outrun.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:42. Off at 3:46. Winner, A. J. Gerioche's b. f. (4), by Dunlin—Fay. Trained by A. Gilmore. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50, 1:17 3-5, 1:43 3-5, 1:51.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAYLIN, $48.00, $13.20, $9.10; GLORIA MARIS, $5.00, $3.50; SYRIAC, $8.50.

FAYLIN outran his field to the first turn, was steadied along under mild restraint, responded with excellent courage when forced to a drive and outstayed GLORIA MARIS. Letter, in close attendance of the winner from the start, made repeated efforts during the final half mile and fought it out stubbornly. SYRIAC, a forward factor and going in his best form, was held safe when the final drive came. SQUEEZE PLAY worked his way on the outside and finished courageously.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $3,000 added. The Pimlico Spring Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:16½. Winner, R. Hall's b. c. (4), by Sun Briar—Red Clover. Trained by C. Rodrook. Value to winner, $2,910; second, $900; third, $250; fourth, $100. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:44, 1:51 1-5.

REHOBOTH	99	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	Hebert	24.55

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN MEADOW, $2.70, $2.10, out; AEGIS, $2.30, out; PORTAM, out.

SUN MEADOW, rated close to the leaders for the six furlongs, was taken to the outside to secure firmer footing in the final three furlongs and, finishing in determined fashion, was up in the final twenty yards. AEGIS, rated close to PORTAM, disposed of the latter when approaching the home stretch, drew clear, but was allowed to loaf through the final sixteenth mile when he began tiring. PORTAM showed a good turn of speed for the first seven furlongs and came again through the final furlong.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:42. Off at 4:46½. Winner, Mereworth Stud's b. or br. c. (3), by Mad Hatter—Eurasia. Trained by J. R. Pryce. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:25, 0:50 3-5, 1:18 2-5, 1:45 2-5, 1:52 2-5.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MATTERAS, $5.10, $3.40, $2.80; RUANE, $10.80, $7.10; GENIAL HOST, $10.70.

MATTERAS, taken under slight restraint until settling in full stride, improved his position on the outside and, finishing in stout fashion, was up nearing the finish. RUANE, slow to set going, moved up fast to approach the leaders at the stretch turn, gained a slight lead, but hung at the end. GENIAL HOST made a stout bid when midway of the far turn and finished willingly. POLINOS was in tight quarters all during the stretch run and was unable to secure racing room.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. The North Point. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start poor from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:18½. Off at 5:20½. Winner, Mrs. J. M. Franklin's b. (4), by Wenonah—Parade. Trained by J. M. Black. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:43, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FERVID, $25.20, $7.70, $4.30; WILLIAM T., $4.50, $3.10; MAJOR GENERAL, $6.10.

FERVID, avoiding interference and following within striking distance of the leaders, swung to the outside for the final drive, wore the pacemakers down and, holding on resolutely, outstayed WILLIAM T. Latter, unable to break cleanly and badly blocked directly after the break, recovered sanely and, moving into contention steadily, secured racing room on the inside during the stretch run and was wearing the winner down at every stride. GENERAL LEE forced a good early pace, displaced HAPPEN, but was unable to stay when the final test came. HAPPEN tired when put to a drive.

CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE'S SENIORS WILL OPEN SEASON TODAY

Dor-A Plays Millers on Ellipse

Col. Ericson, League's President, Tosses Out First Ball.

Races in Three Other Classes Get Under Way Tomorrow.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

GIVEN an even break by the weather man, who has had a strangle hold on baseball the best part of the week, the ninth annual Capital City League, sponsored by The Post, will be inaugurated at 2 o'clock this afternoon on the West Ellipse, when the Miller Furniture and Dor-A senior teams clash. Col. Hjalmar Ericson, president of the loop, will throw out the first ball.

Tomorrow will be a red-letter day in the lives of the sandlotters, as three additional divisions of the league play inaugural games on far-flung diamonds. Unlimited, junior, midget and the remaining senior teams are scheduled to swing into action. The insect clubs will not open their season until the first week in June.

Close Races Are Expected.

Close races are expected in each division, although certain clubs are favored to cop the bunting in their respective sections. A veteran team, one that has almost reached the top of the ladder on three occasions, is enough to warrant the establishment of the Dixie Pigs as the leading contender in Section A of the unlimited division. Three clubs in Section B—Federal Storage, Rock Creek Service and St. Joseph's—appear to have an edge on their opponents. Union Printers, Horning Jewelers, Highway and Congress Heights may decide whether the Dixies will gain the crown in Section A, while Columbia Heights, Franc Jewelers and Diamond Cab may upset the calculations in Section B.

Miller Furniture rates its position as favorite in the senior division by virtue of its fine showing last season. The remaining teams, with the lone exception of the dark-horse Waverly aggregation, loom as strong, evenly matched clubs.

No Junior Class Favorite.

In the junior division the picture resembles a crazy-quilt. On paper there is not a team that can be singled out as the favorite. Swann Service is the lone holdover from the junior ranks of last season, but seven capable teams dispel any tendency to install this team on the long end of the odds.

The midget outlook is precisely the same as that of the junior. Wonder Bread, National Pale Dry, Goodacre's, Thompson's Furniture and Arlington Post comprise the division, all smart, powerful ball clubs. Past performances place Wonder Bread and the Pale Drys at the top of the heap, but the two are presenting line-ups changed somewhat from last season's, and these player losses may mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Triple Play Aids Robins Beat Reds

Wright Catches Line Drive to Start Brooklyn's 3-Ply Killing.

Cincinnati, May 13 (A.P.).—The first triple play of the major league season furnished the high spot of the game today as the Brooklyn Dodgers turned back the Reds, 5 to 3.

In the third inning a hit batsman and a single put the Cincinnati battery, Asbjornson and Kolp, on first and second. Douthit lined to Wright. The Brooklyn shortstop threw to Cuccinelli and caught Asby off the bag and the relay to Kelly caught Kolp off first.

SANDLOT DUST

ELDBROOKE M. E. is no little concerned over the security of its crown in the Georgetown Church League. Its greatest fear is West Washington Baptist, or to be more explicit, Mr. Paul Hodges, who is a past master at the art of doing tricks with a baseball. Hodges carried the pitching burden for his team virtually alone last season. He started and won six games, lost none, and did relief work in four other contests. All told, he twirled 74 innings in the guise of a rescuer, fanned 81, granted but 8 hits, and gave up but 1 earned run.

He also is rather handy with the wagon-tongue. At bat 45 times, he connected with 36 hits, including 11 home runs, 6 triples, 18 doubles and but 1 single, for an average of .800. As the season neared its end he merely strode to the plate, waited for the four balls to be purposely wasted, and trotted to first. Some man!

All members of the Discards nine are requested to call the manager at North 6945 after 5:15 p. m. today.

Springers Junior Baseball Club, of Richmond, Va., would like to arrange games with Washington teams. The Virginians have a team of players averaging 16 years of age and another averaging 20. Address Manager Charles V. Bosher, 1310 North Twentieth street, Richmond, Va.

Charley Corbett is scheduled to present his Banner Laundry nine today at Baggett's Stadium when a team of Government All-Stars will be met. Tomorrow the Laundrymen revert to their old role as St. Mary's Celtics and play host to Majestic Radio.

Phoenix will play the Blue Ribbons tomorrow at 3 p. m. on their home diamond. More games are wanted. Call Atlantic 5103-W.

Skinker Eagles and Auth's will battle today at 3 p. m. on the Eagles' diamond. The latter are seeking more games. Call Georgia 5681.

The Mount Rainier Unlimited Team will drill today at 3 p. m. on its home field. All players and candidates are requested to report.

Federal Employe Unionists will hook up with the Burroughs nine today at 2 p. m. on the latter's field. Bill Waldenmaier will hurl for the Unionists.

Petworth Yorkes will engage the Vienna Firemen Sunday at 3 p. m. on the Virginians' diamond. The team will meet at Second and Upshur streets northwest at 1:30 p. m.

The Hawks and Sanford nines will cross bats tomorrow at 3 p. m. on the former's diamond. The teams are insects. For games with the Hawks call Lincoln 8367-J.

Capitol All-Stars and Virginia Cavaliers are booked for tomorrow at 3 p. m. on the Annandale, Va., diamond. The All-Stars are scheduling games at Atlantic 0417.

Anacostia Eeagles and Griff-Blue Coals will play today at 3 p. m. on the Shady Oak field. Tomorrow the Griffs invade Rockville for a tussle with the home team. They will meet at the clubhouse at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

The Hyattesville All-Stars want a game for tomorrow. Call Hyattesville 1024 or Bradley 671.

Capitol College Teams In Seven Events Today

Seven events are scheduled for Capital college athletes today. Gallaudet's track team engages Lynchburg in a dual meet at Kendall Green and Bliss' tennis team meets Western Maryland at Silver Spring in the only contests on local grounds.

In foreign territory, Maryland opposes Navy in track at Annapolis and Penn States in lacrosse at State College. Georgetown's baseball team encounters its old rival, Holy Cross, at Worcester, Mass., and the Hilltop golfers play Harvard and Dartmouth at Boston.

Maryland U. Frosh Beaten at Lacrosse

Baltimore Poly lacrosse team vanquished the University of Maryland freshmen, 5 to 2, yesterday at College Park. It was the second loss against a lone win for the yearlings this season.

G. U. Golfers Trounce Holy Cross in League

Special to The Washington Post.

Boston, Mass., May 13 (A.P.).—The Georgetown golf team gained its first Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association victory of the season today by defeating Holy Cross, 8½ to ½ in the round-robin play with Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton and Dartmouth on the Belmont Spring course. The Hoyas will engage the Harvard links team on the same course in tomorrow's matches.

The Holy Cross golfers lost all three foursomes and managed to half a twosome, McParthin, of Georgetown and Doyle of Holy Cross finishing all even.

TWOSOMES—Tynan (Georgetown) defeated Fay, 6 and 5; McParthin (Georgetown) finished all even with Doyle; Slattery (Georgetown) defeated Collins, 4 and 2; O'Brien (Georgetown) defeated Hartigan, 1 up; Fisher (Georgetown) defeated Flatley, 4 and 6; De Stephano (Georgetown) defeated Case, 4 and 2.

FOURSOMES—Tynan and McParthin (Georgetown) defeated Fay and Doyle, 5 and 4; Slattery and O'Brien (Georgetown) defeated Collins and Hartigan, 2 up; Fisher and DeStephano (Georgetown) defeated Flatley and Casey, 5 and 4.

G. U. PREP GOLFERS WIN.

Georgetown Prep's golf team romped off with the decision in a match with Gonzaga played over the Garrett Park links yesterday. The final score was 9 to 0.

Allen defeated Sawyer, 9 and 8; Finn defeated Milowich, 9 and 7; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 9 and 7. Donoghue defeated J. Boger, 8 and 6; Zuroff defeated R. Barbarich, 6 and 6; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 8 and 6. Anderson defeated McMahon, 4 and 3; Cullinan defeated R. Barbarich, 4 and 3; best ball, Georgetown Prep, 4 and 3.

Cantonwine Meets Shikat at Stadium

Match to Feature Turner's First Outdoor Card Next Thursday.

Howard Cantonwine's ascendancy in the local rassling world is due for a rude jolt, or else a huge upset looms on the mat horizon, for the big Iowan will meet Dick Shikat, potent former champion of the Curley Circus, next Thursday night at Griffith Stadium in the first outdoor show of Promoter Turner's year.

In the semiwindup the two outstanding freaks in the grapple game, Mount Leo Pinetski and Fritz Kley, the cunny-thumb rassler, will meet.

Four other bouts will be added during the week.

Cards Down Phillies In 10th on Muffed Fly

St. Louis, May 13 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals slugged out an 8-to-7 victory over the Philadelphia Nationals in a ten-inning game today to go back into first division.

The Cardinals made Holley and Grabowski for a total of seventeen hits, doing their heavy work in the seventh inning when Hendrick's homer helped produce five runs to tie the score. Five St. Louis pitchers allowed thirteen safeties. Collins scored the winning run on Todd's muff of Gonzales' fly.

Maryland Park Nine Wins in County Game

Special to The Washington Post.

Maryland Park, Md., May 13.—Dominic Palmer, Maryland Park High School pitcher, let Hyattsville High down with two hits as his team conquered the latter, 4 to 2, here this afternoon. The defeat put Hyattsville, which last season won the county championship and went on to win the State title, out of the running for county laurels.

Lewis Beats Zaharias; Shikat Downs Szabo

Philadelphia, May 13 (A.P.).—Strangler Lewis threw George Zaharias tonight in a rough and tumble wrestling bout that lasted 42 minutes 17 seconds. Both men were groggy when Zaharias scored with two flying tackles but missed a third, and the prostrate Lewis pulled him off the ropes and held him down for the count. Lewis scaled 240 and his opponent one pound less.

BLISS NETMEN PLAY.

Bliss Electrical School's Tennis Team, Washington Collegiate Conference champions, will meet the undefeated Western Maryland outfit today at Bliss at 1:30 o'clock. Western Maryland defeated Bliss 5-4 last week at Westminster.

TIGERS HELD TO 2 HITS BY CROWDER

None Advance Past First Base as Nats Score 7-0 Win.

to have nothing with which to fool Johnson's henchmen.

The first four Washington runs were scored in as many different innings. Two were out in the first, when West coaxed a walk and successive singles by Cronin and Reynolds turned this into a run. Bluege opened the second with a single and a useful out and Crowder's one-baser propelled the runner home. In the next frame, Wyatt walked Cronin as a starter and a double by Bluege put the home guard 3 up.

Nats Get Busy Again In Seventh.

At least one Washington runner saw base-life in the next three sessions, but it was not until the seventh that there was any more scoring. Then West opened with a one-shot to right, advanced on Cronin's out, and counted on Judge's double to center. Wyatt followed by walking Bluege but then managed to put on the brakes.

Herring can not be blamed for Crowder's triple which greeted him when he took the hill in the eighth, for Walker misjudged it and what looked like a sure out went as a three-base knock, but there was nothing tainted about the blows which followed. Myer clouted a three-baser to the scoreboard. Manush walked and West and Cronin singled cleanly. These blows netted three runs still with none out. Reynolds fanned, however, and along came Judge with a looper to deep short which Rogell caught and turned into a double play when he got the ball to second before Cronin, off at the tap of the bat, could hustle back.

Of Washington's eleven hits, all members of the cast except Manush and Berg got at least one, with Crowder, West, Cronin, Judge and Bluege credited with two each. Crowder, Judge and Bluege getting an extra-baser apiece. Myer cracked out a triple for the hardest blow of the day and walked on three other occasions, being charged with but two official trips to the tee. As already mentioned, Reynolds and Manush furnished the fielding features although both Myer and Bluege had one fine stop to their credit.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

BECAUSE of the rainy spell which caused three successive postponements, Manager Walter Johnson has revamped his pitching plans. He moved Carl Fischer back on the list, started "General" Alvin Crowder yesterday, and switched to Lefty Lloyd Brown for today in the finale of the series with the Tigers. The veteran, George Uhle, will draw the mound assignment for the Detroiters.

Following this afternoon's game, the Tigers pull up stakes here and the St. Louis Browns show for four games. Manager Bill Killefer has sent word that he will start Irving (Bump) Hadley, former Nat, in the opening game tomorrow.

Catcher "Muddy" Ruel, former Nat here with the Tigers, is throwing better than during the past four or five springs, Manager Bucky Harris declared yesterday. "I only remember him failing to throw out two runners so far," said Bucky in praising the veteran.

Myer hustled over toward first to make a nice stop and peg of Gehringer's grounder, ending the first inning yesterday. It robbed the batter of what appeared to be a hit when the ball left the bat.

Richardson made a brilliant stop of Bluege's hot grounder directly over third, opening the home second, but had to steady himself to make the pag, and this gave Bluege time to beat the ball to first for a hit.

The fact that Moe Berg has gotten the call to work behind the bat in the last two games does not mean that he has knocked Spencer out of the job. The first-stringer merely has been indisposed for several days and is being allowed to take things easy.

Davis made a hit-robbing stop of Manush's mile-a-minute grasser in the fourth with men on first and second. He had no chance to get the batter, but made a forceout at second.

Bryant Turner, Nats' batting practice pitcher, who was injured when hit by a batted ball last Sunday, is still at Georgetown University Hospital. He is expected to be discharged shortly.

The Tigers did an unusual lot of ball-handling in the first five rounds, 12 assists being credited in the making of the 15 putouts. What makes this record more unusual is that three of the Nats were strikeout victims. Over the same stretch, there were but three Washington assists.

Reynolds raced back to the scoreboard to draw down Rogell's looper at arm's length over his head while backed up against the figures in round 6. It was a nobby catch, especially as the Tigers had a runner on first at the time.

Two of Crowder's first five strikeouts started innings and the other three ended them.

When Myer walked in the sixth, it was the third consecutive pass for him.

Bluege cut over in front of Cronin for Pinch Hitter White's slow bounder in the eighth and it took a rifle throw to first for him to nip the batter.

Walker misjudged Crowder's Texas leaguer opening the eighth and it went as a triple.

POLAND LEADS HOLLAND.

Warsaw, May 13 (A.P.).—Poland won the first two singles matches of its second round Davis Cup tennis series with Holland today.

Tloczynski defeated the veteran, Hans Timmer, 7—5, 6—3, 6—4; and Max Stolarow defeated Hughan, 6—8, 6—2, 5—7, 6—0, 6—0.

TECH TRACK TEAM IS BEATEN

Maryland Freshmen Win in Meet by 30 Points.

MARKED superiority in the running events, in which they were victorious in each test, swept Maryland's Freshmen to a handy triumph over Tech High, 73 1-3 points to 43 2-3, in a track meet yesterday at College Park.

The yearlings won every running event and held Tech virtually even in the field.

It was the second win for the Maryland Cubs over a District public high cinder-path team, Eastern, defending champion, having absorbed a 63-to-54 defeat about two weeks ago.

Boucher, former Central High athlete, and Widmyer, crack sprinter, took scoring honors in leading Maryland to victory. Boucher chalked up 11 points through a win in the high hurdles, one second, a tie for second and a third. Widmyer romped off with the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Chapman, Gormley and Esumas won the three events captured by Tech, accounting for the high jump, javelin and discus, respectively.

In the prettiest race of the meet Bowers, of Maryland, came from behind in the last few yards of the 880, after trailing Lank, of Tech, most of the way, to win by a scant few yards.

100-YARD DASH—Won by Widmyer (M.); second, Thompson (M.); third, Michaelson (M.). Time, 10.2 seconds.

220-YARD DASH—Won by Widmyer (M.); second, Hayden (T.); third, Peck (M.). Time, 22.8 seconds.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Boucher (M); second, Smith (T); third, Polis (M). Time, 17.1 seconds.

220-YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Bell (M); second, Smith (T); third, Ricker (T). Time, 27.2 seconds.

440-YARD DASH—Won by Evans (M.); second, Archer (M.); third, Hartman (T). Time, 54 seconds.

880-YARD RUN—Won by Bowers (M); second, Lank (T); third, Galliher (M). Time, 2 minutes 8.4 seconds.

Percy Williams Quits Olympics; Will Swim

Vancouver, B. C., May 13 (A.P.).—Percy Williams, Vancouver's sensational sprinter and winner of both dash events in the last Olympic games, has decided to quit the cinders and try to become a swimming champion.

He said today he will quit the track after the Olympic games in Los Angeles this summer whether he wins or loses there. He has been troubled a long time with a leg injury, but his trainer, Bob Granger, said Williams is in good condition now.

George and Sherry Here on Tuesday

Bowser Aces in Matches on Bolling Field's Next Program.

Some of Paul Bowser's highest priced rassling flesh will be displayed Tuesday night at Bolling Field in the city's first outdoor show of the season. The headlining figures are Ed Don George, former champion of the fraternity; Jack Sherry, one of the several "uncrowned champions," Charley Hansen, whom some people believe is the best wrestler, and Joe Malcewicz, who likewise has a number of followers.

Danny Winters, a local pride, meets George in the feature bout. Sherry engages Ivan Podubney. Hanson has an engagement with Len Macaluso, well-known Colgate fullback two years ago. Malcewicz meets Dr. Fred Meyers.

In one of the preliminaries the two roughest boys in the Bowser circle, Bool Martin and Charley Strack, both of whom number thousands among their enemies in this mat district, will be sic'd on each other.

Women, accompanied by escorts, will be admitted half price.

Schaaf Extended To Outpoint Gross

Decision Booed by 4,000 as Fistic "Dark Horse" Surprises Contender.

Madison Square Garden, New York, May 13 (U.P.).—Ernie Schaaf, the Apollo-like Boston heavyweight who spends his spare time posing for heroic statues, was driven to the limit here tonight in eking out a 10-round decision over Jack Gross, of Philadelphia.

Unheralded, unsung and all but unknown, Gross stepped into the Garden ring before the smallest crowd of the season and proceeded to give a man generally regarded as a coming heavyweight champion a tremendous run for his money.

One of the judges, Eddie Farrell, cast his vote for a draw, and a sound portion of the some 4,000 customers booed lustily when Joe Humphries lifted Schaaf's hand signifying victory for the Boston boy.

HANDBALL MATCH.

The final handball match of the season, involving the champion Y. M. C. A. team, will be held tonight in Baltimore, when the locals meet the Monumental City's Y. M. C. A. team. The teams have met twice this year and each hold a victory.

The District team will be represented by Channing Walker, District champion; Capt. Perrie McLean, J. B. Payne, Paul Pearlman, Ned Wallis, W. Neville, Joe Cowley and Ray Nash.

WASHINGTON VISION, WITH CAST OF 600, SEEN IN AUDITORIUM

6,000 WITNESS FEATURE THAT CLIMAXES WEEK

Entertainment Sponsored by Grand Chapter of Order of Eastern Star.

More than 600 local members of some Masonic affiliation, costumed to represent the changing panorama of events during and after the Revolutionary period, presented "Washington's Vision of a Triumphant Nation," a historical portrayal in music and pageantry, before an audience of about 6,000 at the Washington Auditorium last night.

The changing scenes of American life were presented in the costumes of the period. Bewigged ladies and gentlemen in knee breeches enacted the historic episode of Revolution. The United States Marine Band, led by Capt. Taylor Branson, lent a martial air to the pantomime performance of the "Spirit of 1776." Stately gestures by participants recreated the reception of the Marquis De Lafayette at Mount Vernon for the audience.

The pageant sponsored by the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star in the series of ceremonies of Masonic week was created and directed by Selma Selinger Klein, past grand matron of the order. Dr. James Shera Montgomery presented "The Voice," which explained the portrayals, and William J. Tucker was cast as "The Dreamer," who interpreted visions of past and future.

High Point of Week.

Members of the huge cast, garbed in the clothes of Indian ritual, cowboy finery, Southern, "Mammy" clothes and the old Southern "Colonel" gathered, mingled and chatted in the basement of the auditorium while waiting for their acts the group sang songs and gave extemporaneous dances. A feeling of good will seemed to emanate from the cast and audience.

In color and interest the pageant last night surpassed any of the ceremonies attending the past events of the Masonic celebration.

The officers of the national chapters of the Masonic orders who are attending the week's celebration attended the pageant. Officers of the local Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star who were present were Miss Edith A. Williams, worthy grand matron; Paul B. Cromelin, worthy grand patron; Mrs. Elizabeth Plitt, associate grand matron; F. Frank Kimmell, associate grand patron; Mrs. Rose A. Yost, grand secretary; Mrs. Lillie McKenzie, grand treasurer.

Miss Williams' Welcome.

Miss Williams welcomed the audience in behalf of the order, and Mr. Cromelin made an address of welcome to Masonic members attending. Officers of the national chapters gave short talks.

Portrayals in the various scenes were presented by the following: In the reception to Lafayette, Raymond N. Babcock was cast as George Washington; Helen L. Brashears, Martha Washington; Newton T. Hammer, Lafayette; Katherine Hersberg, Nellie Custis.

In the presentation of "The Visit of George Washington to Betsy Ross," Sallye Bogley was cast at Betsy Ross; Dr. Allen E. Cowles, as Robert Morris; Elgin Smith, Col. Ross.

"Indian Scene Prior to the War of 1812," Marie C. Deal, soloist, as an Indian princess; Ambrose Durkin, soloist, as Indian brave; Robert H. Sanford, Indian chief; Katherine Morrison, "Bow and Arrow" dancer. In the portrayal of the "Writing of the Star-Spangler Banner," Walter L. Fowler took the part of Francis Scott Key.

Lincoln and Dewey Scenes.

Others taking part were: Wilbert Bagranoff, Rose Hyer Hartung, Wanda Shreve, Amy C. Hollander, Edward S. Brashears, Fred Schickler, Dorothy Puryear, Charles M. Franklin, Edith Wallach, Mrs. William T. Reed, Robert Roy Allen, Eleanor Watson, J. Harry Cunningham.

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale presented the character of Abraham Lincoln in a portrayal of "The Gettysburg Address."

In presentation of the "Reception to Admiral Dewey at the White House," the following were cast: Arthur J. Richards, President McKinley; Belle Mellen, Mrs. McKinley; William Alf, Admiral Dewey. The pageant was concluded with a "World War Scene."

Bootblack Is Shot In Row Over Cash

He and Shop Manager Are Charged With Assault After Dispute.

An argument over a small sum of money sent Edward Green, 27-year-old colored bootblack of 320 G street northeast, to the hospital yesterday for treatment of bullet wounds in his right arm which he received, police charge, when Anthony Finnelli, 30, manager of the Blue Flame Valet shop, 940 F street, fired three shots from a .32 caliber revolver at Green, while they were both standing in the basement of the F street shop.

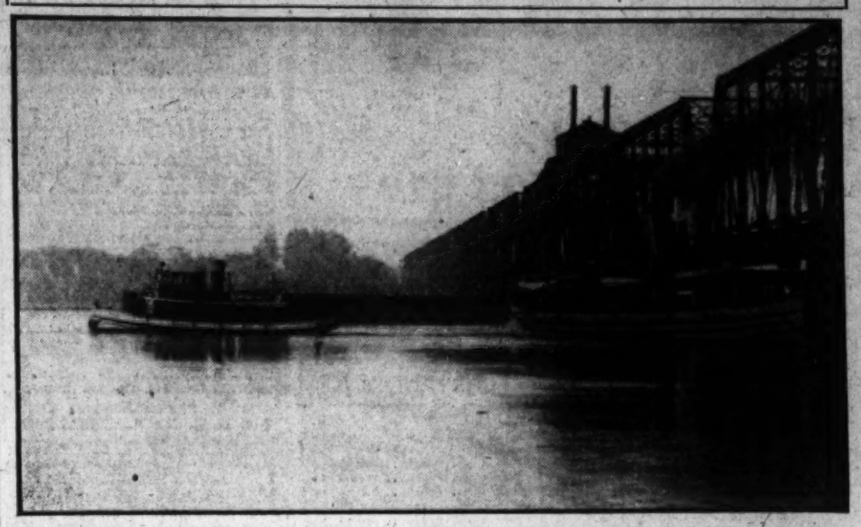
Finnelli said that the bootblack started to argue and that he told him to leave, but that Green, instead of going away, picked up a piece of pipe and advanced toward him. He fired when he thought that he was in danger, he said.

Green was taken to the Emergency Hospital and later removed to Gallinger. Both men were charged with assault at the First Precinct Police Station.

Locked Out Carpenters Accept $8 Wage Rate

Despite their first refusal to accept a cut in pay, a number of union carpenters, who were "locked out" of their work after declining labor when forced to take a reduction in wages from $11 to $8 a day, yesterday accepted terms and were placed back on the job.

FIRE TUG RUNS AFOUL OF HIGHWAY BRIDGE



Pictured above is the Firefighter, fire department steam tug, jammed against an abutment of the railway bridge across the Potomac River at Potomac Park. The fire craft was caught by the swollen current broadside and shoved against the bridge as she was turning to assist in corraling seven barges that had snapped their moorings.

JAMES BARRY WINS MODEL PLANE TITLE

James Barry, 18 years old, of 703 A street northeast, won the District of Columbia Model Aircraft League's trophy emblematic of the all-round championship of the scale model contest which came to a conclusion yesterday. Barry received the trophy from Col. C. deF. Chandler, U. S. A., retired, who had charge of the presentation ceremonies in the auditorium of the New Museum.

Barry's winning plane was a reproduction of a U. S. Navy Martin flying boat, type P. M. 1. The champion also had second and third place models in the senior "baby" class.

Owners of all first-place models were invited by Paul Edward Garber to place their planes on permanent exhibit in the Museum.

Class A—Baby.

Junior — First, Richard Hooper; second, John Simpson; third, Richard Hooper.

Class B—Detroit.

Junior—No entrants.

Senior—First, Edward Geigan; second, Eugene L. Abbot; third, William Kennon.

Class C—Optional.

Junior—First, Richard Hooper; second, Shepler Fitzgerald, jr.; third, Robert Wiehle.

All-round champion, James Barry, U. S. Navy Martin flying boat, type P. M. 1.

$400,000 of Park Fund Transferred

Federal Cash Is to Be Used in Rock Creek and Sligo Improving.

A transfer of $400,000 of Federal funds to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission for the development of Rock Creek and Sligo Valleys was completed yesterday following negotiations between Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the Washington commission, and Irving C. Root, engineer of the Maryland commission.

The Government lent two-thirds of the amount to Maryland, while one-third was a Federal contribution toward the development of nearby Maryland valleys. It is understood that $282,000 of the amount will be used to extend the second unit of Rock Creek, from the East-West highway in Montgomery County to Connecticut avenue just South of Kensington.

About $118,000 will go to improvements on the second unit of Sligo Valley, from Blair road to the Colesville pike.

Four Boys Injured By Runaway Truck

Driverless Vehicle Crashes Through Wooden Door to Sidewalk.

A runaway truck which crashed through a wooden door to a sidewalk yesterday, knocked down four boys who were walking nearby, slightly injuring all of them.

The truck, owned by the Nehi Bottling Co., Eleventh and F streets southwest, was parked on a runway. The truck started rolling, crashed through a wooden door at the end of the runway and out into the street.

Those injured were Leslie Loring, 5 years old; Richard Dodson, 15 years old; John Barrett, 5 years old, and Edward Barrett, 5 years old, all of 473 E street southwest. Young Dodson was treated for abrasions of the left arm. The other three received minor bruises.

Knowledge Bureau Urged by Hubbard

Standards Official Tells Round Table Clearing House Is Needed.

Dr. Henry Hubbard, assistant director of the United States Bureau of Standards, yesterday told members of the Washington Round Table that new knowledge is being created at such a rate that textbooks, no matter how fast they are published, soon become obsolete.

In his talk, "The Making of Tomorrow," Mr. Hubbard declared that there should be a central clearing house of knowledge where, in library style, all knowledge is numbered and stored and continually revised so that a scholar in any part of the world who wished a certain subject could obtain the latest to be found.

The scholar of today, Mr. Hubbard said, bears too great a burden in the way of memory work. He should have more ready access to all kinds of knowledge, Mr. Hubbard thinks, so that his mind can be free to approach matters through live channels.

ENGINEERS ATTACK WAGE INEQUALITIES

Council, Meeting Here, Sees Return of Prosperity as Being Hindered.

The return to prosperity is being hindered by wage inequalities, the administrative board of the American Engineering Council declared yesterday at a meeting in the Washington Hotel.

The board commended President Hoover's compromise relief plan and adopted a report of its committee on governmental expenditures, which asserted that the business of the Government should be controlled by the same principles which govern all other sound business.

"One of the most serious obstacles now retarding recovery from the prevailing depression is the disparity between the wage scales of certain highly paid groups of workers on one hand, and the wages received by other groups and the reduced income of the average citizen on the other.

"The public can not be expected to vote bonds for new public works on any large scale until the present relatively high wages of the construction industry are brought into harmony with wages paid for comparable services in other fields."

The committee also urged that the functions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation should be broadened so that credit would be available to industry. It also approved a normal program of public works construction.

Session Stresses American Music

Federation of Clubs Head Says Powell Will Write New Symphony.

In an effort to promote American music by American composers, the National Federation of Music Clubs, in convention here at the Mayflower Hotel, yesterday announced that John Powell, noted Virginia composer, would be asked to write a symphonic composition based on Anglo-Saxon folk themes.

This work, it was pointed out by Mrs. Elmer James Ottaway, president of the federation, would be performed by a major orchestra during the winter of 1933.

A resolution was adopted to stress the importance of training American students of music with American teachers. It was declared that as soon as people realized that the finest opportunities can be offered, the temptation to send music students abroad will cease.

Federal Workers' Group to Meet.

A special meeting of the Government Workers Council of the National Woman's Party has been called for tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock at 144 B street northeast, it was announced last night.

GREEN DOUBTS NEED OF BUDGET BALANCE

Addresses Chamber of Commerce, Which Opposes Wholesale Pay Cuts.

Opposition to any "wholesale" personnel or salary slashes in the various Government units was expressed last night by a resolution adopted at the meeting of the Washington Chamber of Commerce in the Mayflower Hotel.

The action was taken after William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, had forcefully presented the side of labor against wage cutting by the Government. He discounted the necessity of balancing the budget at this time. He said: "Failure to balance the budget would not be the greatest calamity which could be experienced by the Government.

"The greatest task of the Government is to provide for the unemployed, to relieve existing human distress and to restore the faith of the American people in American business and Government.

"Wage cutting must cease and the people must be assured that it is at an end if buying power is to be restored and business revived."

The labor head pointed out that the present legislation which would cut Federal salaries over $2,500 to the extent of 11 per cent would take more than a million dollars a year from business in Washington.

Legion's Bicentennial Fiesta Extended Week

Arrangements have been made by the District of Columbia department of the American Legion to continue their Bicentennial fiesta all next week on the grounds at Fourteenth and R streets southeast, and the Bernardi Greater Shows will remain to furnish the entertainment features.

The drum corps, for whose benefit the celebration is staged, suffered considerable loss on account of the four wet nights at the beginning of the week, but expect by the prolongation of the festival to raise sufficient funds for their expenses to the national convention to be held in Portland, Oreg., this year.

Brightwood Group Fights Hucksters

Adopts Motion to Complain to City Heads; Stadium Drive Outlined.

A campaign against hucksters of gasoline, fruit, nuts and other merchandise was launched last night by the Brightwood Citizens Association on a motion by Lieut. M. D. Smith, of the Traffic Bureau. The secretary was authorized to write a letter to the District Commissioners asking that legislative action be taken to get them off the streets.

Lieut. Smith, a member of the association, declared that the pushcart merchants hurt the business of the "legitimate" merchant and that their carts detract from the beauty of the city. He complained particularly of the territory on Michigan avenue adjacent to the United States Soldiers' Home grounds, where he said the hucksters seemed to congregate.

Edward R. Williams, president of the Business High School Parents and Teachers Association, told of the fight for a stadium for the new Roosevelt High School. The association will sponsor Decoration Day services at the Battle Cemetery and Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, will speak.

Moving Truck Is Attached As Reserves Rush to Scene

Much loud talk, and some little action, yesterday sent several squads of police and deputy marshals to Ninth and L streets northwest to rescue two beleaguered Municipal Court marshals who were endeavoring to seize a large moving truck.

The deputies, F. P. Bell and R. G. Biers, were attempting to seize the truck on a Municipal Court attachment when the driver, a fellow burly enough to fulfill the usual popular conception of this profession, said no. There was some little argument ensuing and then some neighbor sent in a call for police.

The police refused to play a hand, since they claimed there was no disorder. Finally, after the irate owner of the truck had come on the scene, the truck was taken away by the marshals and last night was safely locked in a garage.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES HELD THREATENED IN SALARY CUT SCHEME

Head of Postoffice Clerks Says They Were Forced to Ask Slashes.

UNSAVORY TACTICS LAID TO PAY TRIM SPONSORS

Questions Immediate Need of Balancing Budget; Raps Campaign Methods.

Charges that Government employes "have been coerced, through fear of dismissal, into appealing to their representatives in Congress to slaughter salaries and to suspend or eliminate privileges" were made in a statement issued last night by Thomas F. Dolan, president of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks.

"The carefully planned but ill-concealed plot of capital and employers," said Mr. Dolan's statement, "to goad an already tired and harassed Congress into a hastily conceived method of economy and retrenchment is still rampant."

"Wages which are already meager," continued the statement "would be slashed and public service would be crippled, if the program is successfully completed.

Cunningly Laid Scheme.

The statement said that the "folks back home are contributing to the cunningly laid scheme which would eventually be to their own embarassment and undoing. They are being gorged to capacity with inflated pictures of the munificant salaries, privileges and easy living of Government employes whose average princely income is $1,440 a year."

Mr. Dolan said that the proposed 10 per cent reduction in the Postoffice Department appropriation would result in a crippled service "which will greatly hamper the expected upward trend and maintenance of business."

"It is sincerely hoped," continued Mr. Dolan, "that the members of the Senate will give full and sympathetic consideration before confirming any such merciless program which demands so much sacrifice on the part of Government employes.

"The proposed balancing of a budget which has been in the same predicament, in greater or less degree, for a generation is not suddenly necessary. It should be accomplished only after mature study, with the purpose, not only of a balanced budget, if we must have such a thing, but of establishing renewed confidence and faith which some would scorn in the name of 'economy.'"

Unsavory Tactics Charged.

"Unsavory tactics" were charged by Mr. Dolan to have been used by the "sponsors of the 'wage cuts at any cost' subterfuge." Government employes' privileges have been "either knowingly or ignorantly exaggerated," he said.

"The erroneous and stupid statement, generously heralded through the press, the mail and other vehicles of release," continued Mr. Dolan, "that Government employes are still exempt from payment of Federal income taxes," has caused a resentment which is unfounded.

"These and similar unworthy weapons of attack have left to Government employes no choice but appeal and lobbying, if you please, as a justifiable means of defense."

Leg of Boy, 5, Broken As He Runs Into Auto

Five-year-old Eugene Schneider, of 1334 Seventh street northwest, suffered a fracture of the left leg yesterday afternoon when struck by an automobile after he had run from behind a parked automobile at Eighth and M streets northwest, according to police.

The driver of the car was Leroy Archer, 17, of Silver Spring, Md., and he conveyed the injured child to Emergency Hospital. Archer's orakes were tested, found to be in good condition, and he was not held. The child's condition was said to be not serious.

Gale Again Is Elected Open Forum President

The Washington Open Forum at its annual business meeting last night at 1410 G street northwest, elected Linn A. E. Gale to his fourth term as president. Leland Barton, John A. Savage, Mrs. Gertrude E. Mackenzie, Edward J. Irvine and Milton D. Mettee were elected vice presidents. Other officers are: Secretary, Ann Giddings; treasurer, Ethelyn Korbel.

The weekly meeting of the forum will be held tonight in the Sears, Roebuck Art Galleries, when a symposium will be conducted on "The Sex Origin of Religion."

Washingtonian Heads Masonic Club League

Election and installation of newly nominated officers will feature the closing session today of the twenty-seventh annual convention of the National League of Masonic Clubs. The meeting will be the first to be held in the George Washington Masonic Memorial in Alexandria, Va., since its dedication last Thursday.

New officers of the league were nominated yesterday at the morning session in the Willard Hotel. Melville E. Hensey, of this city, the sole nominee for president to succeed J. W. Tidswell, of Detroit, Mich.

Other nominations included Roy Price, of West Haven, Conn., first vice president; Lewis Waters, of Freeport, L. I., second vice president; Maj. Gen. Amos Fries, of Washington, third vice president, and Arthur C. Eaton, of Philadelphia, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, was the principal speaker at yesterday's meeting. His talk was devoted to the educational fund maintained for the university by the league. A program of entertainment was furnished by the George Washington University Glee Club.

The auditorium of the newly dedicated memorial in Alexandria will be the scene of the final session today. Following the meeting, officers and delegates to the convention will journey with their families to Mount Vernon, where a tour of inspection has been arranged.

A banquet scheduled for last night in the Willard Hotel was canceled because of interest in the presentation of a tableau at the Washington Auditorium.

FESTIVAL OF YOUTH BEGINS AT 12:45 ON MONUMENT GROUND

More Than 2,000 Boys and Girls to Take Part in Varied Pageantry.

ATHLETIC MEET TO BE ONE OF BIG FEATURES

High School Cadet Corps to Lead Parade; Scouts Have Prominent Part.

More than 2,000 boys and girls will join in the staging of the Festival of Youth on the Monument Grounds and in West Potomac Park this afternoon under auspices of the District Bicentennial Commission.

Shortly after noon the program will begin with sports activities near the Washington Monument. These will include pageants, processions, golf, baseball, tennis, roller skating, playground games and a track and field meet for boys.

"Procession of Tribute."

A part of the program will be a "Procession of Tribute" to George Washington. The parade of children and youths will form at 4 o'clock at Constitution avenue and Fifteenth street. This feature will be supervised by Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest.

The column will be led by the Washington High School Cadet Corps. The High School Cadet Band will participate.

Thomson Community Center.

There, boys and girls from the Thomson Community Center will offer dances in costume. Other dancing and musical bits will be presented by children from Friendship House, the Harmonica Band, of Hyattsville, the Southeast Community Center and several other groups.

Bands will be at the Sherman Statue and at both ends of the Lincoln Memorial Pool.

"Trail to Citizenship."

The "Trail to Citizenship" will be presented by Boy Scout troops at the north end of the Tidal Basin. "Life in an Indian Village" will be shown by the Salvation Army Life Saving Scouts.

Groups participating in the immense affair will include the Sea Scouts, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boys' Club of Washington, Washington Model Yacht Club, District Model Aircraft League and groups from schools, community centers, playgrounds and other agencies. Miss Sibyl Baker is chairman of the general committee in charge of the Festival of Youth.

Whitsunday Services Are to Be Observed

Pentecost, or Whitsunday, will be commemorated in St. Paul's Lutheran Church at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow by a special sermon on "The Meaning of Pentecost," by the pastor, Dr. Henry W. Snyder. In keeping with the spirit of the day, a group of new members will be received into the church. At the vesper services at 8 p. m. Dr. Snyder will preach on "The All-Seeing God."

On the coming Thursday evening, St. Paul's will hold a congregational reception at the church. The guests of honor at this reception will be the new members who have joined within the past year.

$2,500 in Property Taken From Home

Jewelry, Clothing, Furnishings Stolen at Residence in Wisconsin Avenue.

Thieves looted the home of Felix Lake, real estate operator, at 2800 Wisconsin avenue, taking clothing, jewelry and furnishings valued at $2,500. The robbery is believed to have occurred between midnight and 5:30 yesterday morning.

Apparently the thieves had used a truck or a large automobile to cart away the stolen articles. At the time of the robbery three people were asleep in the house, police said.

After a preliminary checkup, Mr. Lake disclosed that 50 articles, including clothing, paintings, silverware and furs, had been taken. Entry was made by jimmying a rear window.

Greely Tells Of Trip North 50 Years Ago

Reminicent tales of a heroic struggle against the bitter elements of the Arctic circle were brought to light last night when six close friends of Gen. Adolphus W. Greely gathered in a private dining room of the Army and Navy Club to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the Greely expedition to the "farthest North." The dinner was given by Gen. Davis L. Brainard, member of the expedition.

The eyes of the 89-year-old explorer dimmed as he rose before his friends and told of the hardships of the North that took the lives of 18 of the 25 members of the expedition on quest of scientific information. Gen. Greely described in detail the movements of the expedition which established a record 50 years ago when it moved to 83 degrees north and surpassed the three-century record held by England.

Among the guests were Miss Rose Greely, daughter of the explorer; Capt. E. B. Baldwin, member of the second Peary expedition to the North Pole, and Mrs. Davis L. Brainard.

CITY MARKING TIME IN GAS RULE FIGHT

P. U. C. Undecided on Course After Ouster of Head of Company.

The Public Utilities Commission marked time yesterday while preparing for its next move to force the Chase, Harris, Forbes Corporation to relinquish its control of the Washington Gas Light Co., after failing to prevent a meeting of the latter's directors and the ouster of George A. G. Wood as president on Thursday.

A complete investigation of the action of the directors is being made, it was said, before any action is taken. Several courses are open to the commission if it is established that the controlling interests of the gas company violated the order issued Saturday by the utilities body.

The commission may file suit for penalty for violation of the order; it may seek an injunction to set aside the action of the directors in accepting Mr. Wood's resignation and electing Robert D. Weaver to membership on the board, or it may file suit to dissolve the local gas company.

A conference was held yesterday afternoon between Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, and Riley Elgin, vice chairman, and William A. Roberts, special counsel, of the commission, but no announcement was made regarding the discussion.

Fred S. Burroughs, of the Chase, Harris, Forbes Corporation, who participated in the meeting Thursday afternoon, returned to New York yesterday. George B. Fraser, as vice president, was nominally in charge of the gas company yesterday pending the selection of a successor to Mr. Wood.

Zionist Campaign Will End May 22

Dinner and Program to Mark Close of Drive for $50,000.

Dr. Nahum Sokolow, president of the World Zionist Organization, and James Marshall, son of the late Louis Marshall, will be principal speakers at a dinner marking the close of the united Jewish campaign for $50,000, it was announced yesterday. The dinner will be held May 22 at the Jewish Community Center.

The campaign in Washington is being conducted under the joint auspices of the national Jewish distribution committee and local Zionist organizations.

The campaign here is progressing rapidly, according to its sponsors. A $2,000 donation from Mrs. Emil Berliner was announced yesterday, with other donations to follow, it was said.

Pickpocket Lifts Two Wallets at Auditorium

Two persons were victims of a pickpocket last night while standing in a crowd in front of the Washington Auditorium, awaiting entrance to the Eastern Star pageant. They were Guy Harper, of 2804 University place northwest, who lost a billfold containing $12, and J. L. Bateman, 806 Maryland avenue northeast, who lost a billfold containing cards and papers.

WOMAN, 24, KILLED IN FALL FROM HORSE SHE HAD BORROWED

Mrs. Marie Myers Is Dead When Taken to Hospital by Searchers.

The body of Mrs. Marie Myers, 24 years old, of 1118 First street southeast, was found yesterday near a gravel road in a wooded patch, about a mile from the bridge at Pennsylvania avenue and Seventeenth street southeast, shortly after a horse, which she had been riding, returned to its stable.

Body Is Found.

James Burke and Charles Gregg instituted a search for her and found the body. She was pronounced dead upon her arrival at Casualty Hospital. Death was attributed to a fractured skull. Deputy Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said last night that he would issue a certificate of accidental death. The indications were that the rider had been thrown from the horse and struck her head.

Mrs. Myers came to Washington from Reading, Pa., about three months ago. She is said to have been a former circus horse rider. According to Burke and Gregg, workers on a farm in the Mount Dome section, Mrs. Myers borrowed the horse at the farm.

Was Riding Bareback.

The animal was used for hauling work at the farm. Mrs. Myers set out to ride the horse bareback. About 20 minutes later the horse returned to the farm and the search was begun. Mrs. Myers' husband, Albert Myers, is attached to the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J.

Old Hymns Festival To Be Held at Church

Albright Memorial Evangelical Church, Fourth and Rittenhouse streets northwest, had such a good time last Sunday night with its "Old-fashioned Gathering," that it is going to repeat it tomorrow evening. The program will be called "Sunday Night After Church," and the whole choir will join with the congregation in singing old hymns.

In the morning the pastor, the Rev. George E. Schnabel, will preach on "Christianity and Religion—A Difference."

P., B. & W. Railway Bill Hearings Set Monday

Hearings on a bill authorizing the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad Co. to extend its track connection from the Navy Yard into the Buzzards Point area, were ordered yesterday by Chairman Loring M. Black, jr., of the House District public utilities subcommittee.

Hearings will be Monday at 10:30 a. m., in room 377, House Office Building.
